any appropriation to carry on the department" over which he has been called upon to preside; but it appears his colleagues are content to go on in their old way of extravagance and poculation, until they are forced to desist by the occurrence of a calamity in the shape of an empty treasury, or the happening of some good fortune for the nation which would involve their dismissal from office. Our democratic rulers do not think economy is necessary unless it is enforced by circumstances similar to those which govern the affairs of the Post-office department. The practice of that virtue in time of plenty they regard as entirely out of the outstion, preany appropriation to carry on the department govern the affairs of the Post-office department. The practice of that virtue in time of plenty they regard us entirely out of the question, preferring to adopt the prodigal's plan of wasting his substance without a thought or care for the future. The good old principle which enjoins a careful and discriminating use of the public money is regarded by modern democrats as a matter which will do well enough to talk about on the stump, just before elections, but decidedly too antiquated to be reduced to actual practice. They have too many live oak contractors to favor; too many coal agents to reward; too many politicians to support and enrich, to encumber them selves with the introduction of reforms, which

The object of this Convention is to elect delegates from this county to the silest Convention, and act upon a set of this county to the silest Convention, and act upon a set of the state administration the party has got rid of some corruption and and rascality—in the party itself ought to be the best judge of that; the party itself ought to be the best judge of that; the party itself ought to be the best judge of that; the party itself ought to be the best judge of that; the party itself ought to be the best judge of that; the party itself ought to be the best judge of that; the party itself ought to be the best judge of that; the party itself ought to be the best judge of that; the party itself ought to be the best judge of that; aspect. REPUBLICAN PAIMANT MEETINGS.—The primingers.

REPUBLICAN PAIMANT MEETINGS.—The primant afternoon, throughout the townships and at more "crushing" to the party for which the Union night in the cities and boroughs. We refer to speaks than its acknowledged "complicity" with the "rascality" of the State administration.

the call, which we put at the head of our columns, for a statement of the purpose of this Convention, and urge the Republicans generally to attend the meetings and participate in the selection of delegates.

Extrescument.—Postmaster General Hour Research to the democratic press. The Harrisburg Sential, policies the national government, including the President himself, who shows any disposition to commence, and if possible perfect, the work of economy and retrenchment so much talked about within the last year by democratic politicians in Congress, and editors and leaders politicians in Congress, and editors and leaders politicians in Congress, and editors and leaders outside of that, body. He is compelled to do what he is now doing by the pressure of circumstances "brought about by the absence of any appropriation to carry on the department."

THE RESIGNATION OF PRINCE NAFOLEON.—The office we require the case, the read of the state of those democrats opposed to the Mational Administration and the late State Convention on the late State Convention on the late State Convention, is not likely to receive much aid from the democratic press. The Harrisburg Sential, Doylestown Democrat and Philadelphia Press are the only ones we have heard of that respond to the movement. There will probably be two or in Chester, one in Chester, one in Schuylkill, and one in Lycoming, but the National Administration of strength, with perfect fearfeances of any what he is now doing by the pressure of circumstances "brought about by the absence of circumstances" brought about by the absence of circumstances "brought about by the absence of circumstances" or vicinity of the disease of the circumstances or vicinity required by the peculiar principles, to receive much aid from the democratic pressure of the substances of a maticion of strength, with perfect fearfeances of any without having relation to carry the democratic pressure of the substances of concess and Sickles to elect; and too many politicians to support and enrich, to encumber themselves with the introduction of reforms, which would require so many individual scarifices to perfect. We grant that Mr. Buchanan can appreciate the excellence of these precepts, when inditing a letter to a public celebration, intended for general circulation, but he is the last man in the country who would consent to adopt them as Lis system in the administration of the affairs of government. He is willing to preach the corthodox doctrine, but he will not, unfortunately for the country, practice it.

In the meantime we trust Mr. Holt, whatever may be the cause of his efforts, will proceed earnestly in the work of reform in his department. We hope he will continue until the end, and not halt or faint by the way. In the general waste at the capital it is semething of a consolation to know that there is at least one person endeavoring to practice economy, even if that one person is acting under other motives than absolute and unavoidable necessity. We are thankful for small favors, in these wicked Bucide.—The lifeless body of Mr. Charles was an absolute and unavoidable necessity. We are thankful for small favors in these wicked days, and shall not permit curselves to scrutinize too closely an action that has even the semblance of virtue on its face.

Some time ago a Southern clergyman, Mr. Helper, of South Carolina, published a deeply interesting work entitled "The Impending Crisis of the South," and several gentlemen of New York, esteeming it a work well calculated to impress the public mind with the evils of Slavery, have set on foot a subscription to procure the publication and circulation of 100,000 copies of the work in a condensed form. The author is a native of a Slave State, and is thoroughly familiar with the workings of the system of slavery, its operations upon the Slave States, and above all with its effects upon the laboring and non-slaveholding population of the South. It is to show the blighting influence upon this class, first, and then upon every interest of that por-first, and then upon every interest of that por-first and port of the port of the second port

Our Future.—The Pennsylvania Democracy is like Millton's young man waking from sleep and shaking his invincible locks. All corruption is and impediments have been sloughed off—all the care and of the county to got their ploughand was and before the people in the proud attitude of defenders of popular rights and the union of the Estate.—Harrisburg Union.

This is from Buchanan's organ at Harrisburg.

Its coolness would be refreshing in warmer wather. That a party which has just endored the people was the recking corruption and rascality of the National administration should plume itself upon the provider will be generally actional administration should plume itself upon the provider will be generally actional administration should plume itself upon the provider well taken.—Bucks (Co)
