are set down as proofs that if not a lawyer, he had been at least a lawyer's clerk. On the same principle, we think, it would not be difficult to prove him a doctor or a divine, a sailor, a Cresari or a shoe-black. Read his description, in Romeo, of an apothecary's chop, and he must be set down a Doctor Hornebook, in spite of himself. Or you might make a very bad lawyer out of him, by quoting Degberry's rulings, though that might be held "flat barglary."

Lord Campbell'a book is very interesting, because it contains a multitude of excellent quotations, but it seems to us togo but a small distance in proving Shakspeare a lawyer, for the reasons, among others, above adduced. For such a genius, it were needless to study a science or a semilar of the such as a super section of the such as genius, it were needless to study a science or a courses. As editor of a Free Soil paper in a Slave State, Mr. Browa's position was not "a bed of rose."
We hope he may be successful in whatever pursuit he may adopt.

Curtosity.—With what overwhelming desire to "soo, and hear" the Sickles trial, some of the ladies of Washington are beset, may be inferred from the following serio-indigro-comico-tragico letter from some moist-eyed Jenkins, who has often the following serio-indigro-comico-tragico letter from some moist-eyed Jenkins, who has often the stable beside him, ready for use at a moment's warning.
