multitude of volunteer counsellors who surround the chief actors in the Sickles affair-from Robert J. Walker, who did the tragedy in the witness box to the old lady of sixty, whothought the safety of her sex required a vindication of Sickles by her presence in the court room-it is to be deeply regretted that not a single individual among them has had the good feeling or the good tasts to intimate to the father of the unfortunate woman that his personal attendance at the trial is highly indelicate if not grossly indecent. We almost imagine that we can trace to this upnatural hardness of heart, as well as indifference to the ordinary proprieties of life, on the part of the parent, the insensibility of the daughter to those feelings which distinguish and at the same time support the virtuous woman. We can understand why the elder Sickles should be at his son's side at Washington-he is there for the same reason that Mr. Bagioli should be at his home supporting his erring and prostrate daughter. If the father of Mrs. Sickles were compelled by a mandate of the law to be pres-ent at the exposure of his daughter's shame-if he were forced by the same authority to be a spectator of the cruel dissections of her reputation as a woman and as a wife-how the great public heart would bleed for him ! How society ould, with one voice, deprecate the cruel necessity which would require a christian father to become for a time a heartless savage ! However divided they might be with regard to the participants in the crime all would extend their sympathy to the unhappy father. And yet Mr. Bagioli, without compulsion, and of his own free will, has repaired to Washington, to be spresent at this trial, mingling with the crowd of spectators, listening against his . Calboun. THE Ward spirit does not seem to have died out in the Kentacky schools. The regular teach-ion, just now, to exchauge congratulations on the revival of basiness, the return of prosperily, and the bright prospect before us, and to indulge in sundry self-laudations as to the utter impos-sibility of keeping an adverse pressure, long, upon so great a country as this is, sir. And so forth. Nevertheless, at the risk of being thought a croaker, we venture to call attention to the figures presented in the extract below, and to suggest that this "great country, sir," is this

THE NEW JUDGE.—The Harrisburg Telegraph says that the appointment of Judge Maynard to the new Judgeship in this county is an excellent one. We do not question it.
