GRAND REGALIA SALL, At Old Fellows' New Hall, Fifth Street, feeting preliminary arrangements, is to be held at the African Church, on Boffale street, on Monday evening next.

We learn that the meeting is tho immediate to the recent fogitive field in Philadelphia. The Charleston jury had "the precedent to plead" in the condict of Mr Commissioner Longstreth. That judicial personage saw nothing improper or unjust in the release of a negro who was clearly proved to be the property of a claimant from the South. In like manner, the Charleston jury may have thought themselves warranted in refusing to convict a band of elave-traders, even against the weight of, evidence.

We believe the great body of well-meaning people in the South are averse to the revival of the slave traders but of these warranted in refusing to comvict a band of elave-traders, even against the weight of, evidence.

more honest than the commissioner. We might cite hundreds of cases in which slaves have been returned; and if many other hundreds escape to Canada, it is because they are not caught, and not because the law is not enforced when they are caught. We can bear testimony, and so can the press in every northern city, that a more abject, service, cringing and willing-to-do anything-mean set of officers never existed under any government than that employed by the matienal administration in the north to enforce stice at violence large doors upon the north side, smashed win-dows and doors of the Pittsburgh R. R. offices, to compass his conviction, and leave no act undone to give the needed assurance to the south that they are faithful dogs to the owners whose collars they wear. It is in the highest degree in the faithful focomplain that this pack of hounds has not been more succeedal in housting human prey.

But, while the Fugitive Law has been andorded in the North, with all its infernal rigor, in nearly every instance in which an arrest has been made under it, how has it been with the law against the Slave Trade? Has it ever been enforced? Has ever any man been compelled to bear the word of the reach of the waves. The afternoon freight train was unloaded in the old the piers and wavehouse probably amounts to $3,000 or $4,000.—Cleve. Leader.

maker it, how has it been with the law against this Slawe Tande ! Has it were hen enforced! Has sever any man been compelled to bear the punishment it infligits? Not one! We cannot recall a single instance in which a slaw-plrate has been hung under it, athough death by hanging sligh ponally for its violation. There have been, occasionally, instances of men convicted of misdemeanors and sentenced under the law has been, and sentenced under the law has been, and sentenced under the law has been for death of the law has been for death of the law has been for the law has been for death of the law has been for the landing of the law has been for death of the law has been for death of the law has been for death of the law has been for which not a word was heard at the time, and which has leaded only a more accident, now. force, so far as human agency can give it vitality, and the other, with the connivance of the government, is a dead telter.

The Pennsylvanian is very much distressed at the candor of the South in saying that the law special states, we are well assured.—$\frac{\partial_{\text{L}}}{\partial_{\text{L}}}$ \text{Many for Fault Trans.}$\text{-We would remind our readers again of the soud wash for fruit creaming the candor of the Pogitive Law. Why will the South be so inconsiderate as to demand of northern flunkies the utmost compliance with an infamous law in favor of slavery, while it estart alope defined as a law against elastery.

The War Question in Europe still absorbs the attention of all the Powers. We gather from a host of letters from well-informed correspondents, which we find published in our exchanges, that the assent of the French Emperor to the proposed Congress was merely a ruse to gain time. He is putting his army on a war footing, and for this purpose it is neception. Austria has now in it whose support costs $250^{\text{/}}$ unable long to meet.
