ISBURGH GAZA VOLUME LXXII---NUMBER 122 PITTSBURGH, MONDAY MORNING, MAY 2, 1859. ESTABLISHED IN 1786. TROUBLE OF TELEGRAPHERS IN IRDIA...—The telegraphers in India make great complaints, not only that the rebels cut the wires, but that the elephants and other animals rub against the posts and prostrate them, while the monkeys, under a complete misapprehension of the object of the telegraph system, delight to use the wires for athleticsports and pastimes. Mr. Russel says: "I have seen half a dozen great monkeys or baboons at work on one feeble stretch of wire, posturing, grinning, and chattering away in the THOS. Ridgely, of the Atlanta, ordered the man's head to be shaved in punishment for some transgressios. The sallor refused to permit this unprecedented course of treatment, begging that bodily forture, however sovere, might be substituted for it. Captain Ridgely insisted on shaving every particle of hair off, whereat the man swore he would jump overboard if the cruel sentence was carried into effect. The hair was cut off, and the unfortunate and exasperated creature rushed to the bulwarks, and precipitated himself into a watery grave.
