They will not even permit the poor fellow to feed on husks or to take the humblest seat in their councils. The committee which represents the five thousand administration voters of . Illinois, commonly known as Danites, have again issued an address, expelling the "illitely giant" from the party, and declaring that they will not have any communication with him as a political associate. In this address, the administration is extolled and glorified in the most extravagant language. For Douglas it contains nothing but hard words and bitter denunciations. Indeed, all the efforts which the latter personage has made to secure for himself a respectable position in his old party, has had the effect to sink him lower in the estimation of the public.
