THE DAILY PHYSBURGH GAZ VOLUME LXXII---NUMBER 132. PITTSBURGH, FRIDAY MORNING, MAY 13, 1859. ESTABLISHED IN 1786. JUSTICES AND ALDERMEN.—The following copy of a new law, is of importance to Justices, Alderman, and Constables:

I passed through on the New York & Erie railroad from New York to Dunkirk a few nights ago, and being somewhat wakeful, ruminated a little upon the aspects of the Railroad interests of the great city of New York at the present moment. But a short time previously I had twice passed over the New York Central, and on all these occasions I could not help observing the appalling change that seemed to have taken place in the business stir. formerly the distinguishing characteristic of the related and lake region of New York.—The panic has had much to do with this doubtless, but there is another influence at work, slower but surer, and from the laws of nature appearing to me inevitable, unless changed by powerful and well directed exertion.

The past season however her port was not closed, and a not very expensive system of ice boats might preserve this immunity for her through the fature. But she has eleven miles of efficient whar fage—measuring the Delaware and the Schuylkills and it she be suffered to reach to ward this supremacy, it will be her own fault if she does not attain it.

Now then, I say, what is New York to do in view of this State of things? Will she lie supine at the moment when most action is required, or will she be up and doing? What is New York to do? Fortunately most fortunately not much. With less expenditure than Philadelphia requires for her big depot, New York can rival her with lines through the south west territory better than those of Philadelphia.

There is a line which shoots out from New York exactly in the right direction to complete this rivaley none. Literin. WELLS, HIDDLE & CO., York exactly in the right direction to complete this rivalry upon. This line has been estimated by me for more than twenty years as the greatby we ke sacity in the right direction to complete this rivalry upon. This line has been estimated by me for more than twenty years as the greatest and most important possible, through the region in question. It is the Kittatinny valley line which has the germ of a great railroad in it so powerful that it has grawn of itself, unit between New York and the Mississippi there resis in the same manutains on it; it is a line establishing the same of the ferritory. Let this line be completed and all will be well. Already it extends continuously to within eix miles of the middle waters of the Potomac, crossing the north Pennsylvania road, the Reading or Sunbury and Eric Road, the Pennsylvania railroad at Harrisburg, and there great canals in the same distance, the Delaware, namely, the Schaylkill, and the Susquehanna-and here let us stop for a moment—we have come to the Pennsylvania railroad. Harrisburg would be an admirable point of divergence for trade from the Pennsylvania railroad to New York, but can you make it diverger. Not in the present temper of that corporation, I think.—

There are, however, two ways of getting to Pittsburgh from Harrisburg, caster and shorter than on the route of the Pennsylvania R. R. One is to follow the south side of the Susquehanna upon the Baltimore Northern Central Railway, and by Sherman's Valley through Bedford, join the Connelsville railroad at the Allegheny Mountain beyond that place some 20 miles. There is a charter and has been a survey for this road. It passes by Perry, part of Franklin, Huntingdon, Bedford and Somerast counties to its junction with the Connelsville, probably in Westmore-land county—I do not know this route till it reaches beyond Bedford; but I do know by actual survey made trenty years ago by the Siste of the survey on hand Chandelers, Brackets and Finture of Pitth Street Connelsville, probably in Westmore-land county—I do not know this route till it reaches beyond Bedford; but I do know by actual survey on hand Chandelers, Brackets and Finture of Pitth Stre ny have assumed, as one my sire to be insured.

No. 112 Second street. QUNDRIESwith the Conneisvine, processly in vestmore-land county—I do not know this route till it reaches beyond Bedford; but I do know by actual survey made twenty years ago by the State of Pennsylvania that in that region the Allegheny Mountains can be crossed at less than 60 feet grades. The Pennsylvania road crosses at 15 feet grades, and is longer by probably 20 miles than this. It is as fo to estimate that this junction can be affected for about $4,000,000. The fact can be easily ascertained if necessary. The next connection is affected by passing along the Cumberland valley railroad from Harrisburg, to near Shippensburgh; thence across the bills wis the Roxbury gap in the north mountain to a junction with the Broad Top railway, a coal road now tributary to the Pennsylvania road at Huntingdon, but in this case bringing that splendid coal forty miles nearer to market than any other billuminous coal in Pennsylvania or Maryland. The Broad Top railroad is now being connected with Bedford via Bloody Run, for the good of that watering place. From Bedford there may be twenty miles of not difficult road to connect with the Connelsville. This junction would cost about $3,000,000. Between Shippensburg and Broad Top, it has never been surveyed; the hills look rough but they are not mountain ranges, and are much broken. I feel survey the shills look rough but they are not mountain ranges, and are much broken. I feel survey the shills look rough but they are not mountain ranges, and are much broken. I feel survey the pennsylvania Legislature, Thus for $3,000,000 or $4,000,000 more expenditive New York could make a better connection with Pittaburgh than the Pennsylvania railroad now possible than the Pennsylvania railroad now Which will at least equal any 160 bags Rio Coffoe; 0 bf. chts.
