The Revolution in Tuscany. [From the London Times, April 29]
Intelligence has reached us to the effect that the Grand Duchy—not the Grand Duke—of Tuscany has declared in favor of Italian independence, or, in other words, has cast in its lot with France and Piedmont. Of all the Italian
State of the Italian between the leaves the States, the Grand Duchy has been the least mis-governed since 1815; but even there, the rulers, States, the Grand Duchy has been there, the relars, in the bour of trial, find a long score of arrears which they must now discharge. Even so short a while back as 1848, the present Grand Duke might have concillated to himself the good will and respect of his people. Jor his, in truth, had never been a grinding tyrauny. The farmers and peasantry of that rich valley of the Arno had lived happily and peasefully enough under the bottro his need. When he absconded for there is no other term in which to describe the hour of his precipitate fight—after the events of 1848, he was recalled by the affection of his people, and tranquilly replaced on his petty throne. people, and traquilly replaced on his petty throne. The return he made was to fill the Archducky with Austrian troops, and to convert it into a mere satrapy of Austria. He had sworn to a Constitution; he repealed it. He violated terry promise, express or implied, which he had made in the midst of the turmoils of that every promise, express or implied, which he had made in the midst of the turmoils of that oventful year.

Now, whether it is that the Tuscans were a more enduring and palient race than the inhabitants of the other Italian States; whether it is that the manner in which the rulers had exertised their sway, despotic as it may have been, was far milder than was the fashion of other latian princes; whether Tuscany lay so near to the great Austrian garrisons, and was so filled the great Austrian garrisons, and was comply to well established. The celebrated could be great Austrian groups, and so weak that any attempt at insurrection could not but be instantly the events of 1818, the Italian friends of Italian independence had resolved never to more again until they could act in concert, it is certain that the reactionary policy of the little Tuscan Court was tolerated with singular discretion and force the great Austrian groups. Would that we could see the independence, of the Italian people—would that we could see a regenerated Italy at the end of this struggle: But when the Italians, by French help—should this be the event—have chased the Austrians from their peninsula, who will help them to drive away the French? When we think of the hangings, and shootings, and oppressions of the French to the southward of the Alps in forme days, it is difficult to decids whether they or the Austrians have been the sterner taskmasters of Italy. The Austrians at least never led or drove Italy. The Austrians at least never led or drove the youth of Italy to the shambles by wholesale, as did the first Napoleon, nor are we aware that

THE PINALE—The termination of the Rescue Cases, so far as the present action of the Federal Court is concerned, was substantially reached yesterday, with the sentence of Bushnell, and the gentinuance of the rest of the unsert term in July. "The great that of the united are still in jail to which their recorded in the journals of the Court, and delibrately and malignantly persisted in, after all polymble pretest was demolished, and the Court was earnessly appealed to, to do a single act of justice, by at least once causing its record to tell the truth.

The entire thing—in object, purpose und accomplishment, in machinery, material and men, had a wonderful adaptation throughout. The fogility slave law was to be coforced, an obnoxious community humbled, and a great example for the benefit of the whole North made. Who so fitting to preside, and rule, or make the needed law, as an indicted kidnapper of a negro and a fugitive himself from Justice! Then with what persistent, never varying care and labor, he warped and twisted every decision, so as to wall out the responsibility of any but the predetermined result. And finally, with what mingled power and glory he came down on the un-COMMISSION. MERCHANTS want out the responsibility of any but the predetermined result. And finally, with what mingled power and glory he came down on the unfortunate rescuer, in his final judgment upon him! The Jury was necessarily a counterpart of the Judge—old, broken down, party harness
still on them; selected solely and exclusively for no purpose but to do the thing they did. Of course they returned the verdict required, and the Court sentenced the convict, and he is in jail. The Marshall and District Attorney performed their functions, and to the acceptance of their keepers.
This morning Langston will be sentenced; the Court will adjourn without any delay, and Prof.
Peck and his associates will remain in prison.
The hearts and sympathies of a Christian people will be with them, and this great outrage will add another item to the huge gile which awaits the destroying and reforming hand of the People.—Cleve. Leader. DEALERS IN

The Servence of Bushmell.—The scene in the Court this (Wednesday) morning was one that will be engraven, ever, on the memory of those who were speciators of the most glaring instance of judical injustice that Obic ever saw. The Court room was crowded and many were unable to get near enough to bear the proceedings. The prisoner Bushnell, came in bringing his brill of perhaps eighteen months of age, and accompanied by his wife and other femaler clatice and friends.

The lecture read by Judge Wilson to the prisoner server. IS THE LARGEST AND BEST AR ranged Hotel in the New England states is contributed in the New England states is contributed in the New England states in contribute of travel. It contains sill the modern imprevements, and every convenience for the comfort and accommodation of the traveling public. The sleeping rooms are large and well restillated; the mittee of rooms are well arranged, and completely furnished for families and large traveling parties, accompanied by his wife and other female relatives and friends.

The lecture read by Judge Wilson to the prisoner was in as bad taste as in bad temper. A stranger, not knowing the asse on trial would have supposed a counterfeiter was standing up to receive his sentence to the Penitentiary. When we look back to the charge given by Judge Wilson to the Grand Jury—of which Boynton was chief, and which found these indictments,—when the Court went clear off the Bench to dilate upon the theology of Oberlin, when we read the charge of this same Judge to the Pelit Jury in the case of Langston, in which the Court gave the Jury a lecture upon its duty as to the enforcement of this Fngitive Law—as if fearful there might be some Democrat on that jury who might waver—when we reflect upon the cruel sentence of Bushnell, by which a young man, just beginning life, dependent upon his daily labor to furnish food for a young wife and infant child, is doomed to sixty days incarceration in jail—in addition to the thirty already suffered—sentenced to pay fine of six hundred dollars—we confess that Judge Wilson has executed this infamous Fagitive Slave Law with a congeance. The thing is past belief did not the bearing of the care of fire hundred people proclaim its reality.

OTHELLO IN TREMESSEE—Thursday night, after the adjournment of the Democratic State-Convention, one of the delegates from the county of Franklin wandered to the Gaiety Theairn to witness the tragedy of Othello. Mr. Crisp personated the "Micor" on that occasion, and, we must say, looked the character to great perfection. The delegate from Franklin appeared highly satisfied until the scene in the duke's palace, where Othello is arraigned for marrying the beautiful Desdemona. Here he kait his brows and looked daggers at the sooty general; but when Desdemona herself entered and joined in defence of her husband, and he turned and threw his arms gently about her waist, the delagate went off in a towering passion, swearing it was a "d—d Black Republican play," not to be tolerated by the Southern people, and stalked out of the house. —Nathrille Patriot.
