IMPORTANT QUESTION.—IS A SLAVE A PERSON? Another important Slave question has been brought before the United States Supreme Court. It is whether a Slave is a person, and amenable to the laws of Congress? The case was argued a few days ago before Chief Justice Taney and Judge Hallyburton, sitting in the Circuit Court of the United States at Richmond, Va., by John Howard Esq., for the slave or her owner, and John Gregory Esq., for the United States. The legal point is, whether a slave can be punished under the act of Congress, which says that "any person who shall take or steal from the Post Office," &c.

A report of the case to the Times states that on the part of the Slave, it was contended by Mr. Howard that as the act did not specially point to slaves, it applied prima facie only to "persons" known to the law as having legal rights and responsibilities, and who could be tried and legally punished as provided by the act, and under the usual forms of law as administered in the United States Courts; that a slave is not such a legal "person" within the meaning of the act, being recognized by law only as property. To sustain this view of the case, he cited the Constitution of the United States, construed by the Supreme Court of the United States in the Dred Scott case, as recognizing slaves only as property, and the Slave act of Congress clearly showed that slaves were never intended to be embraced therein, since the punishment is fine or imprisonment, and sometimes both; that it was impossible, in a legal sense, either to fine a slave or deprive him of his liberty, because he has neither property nor liberty to be taken away, his legal character consisting in a denial to him of the rights of property and liberty, so that a judgment against him, depriving him of either, to any extent, would be a legal nullity and absurdity.

Other incongruities and absurdities in the case were pressed upon the attention of the Court, and the reasoning in the Dred Scott decision was lodged to show that negro slaves are not entitled [illegible] to our citizens to any of the personal rights [illegible] citizens. Counsel argues that the slave in question might be tried, and if guilty punished under the State laws for larceny of the letter and its contents, and to this the owner would not object. She ought to be whipped he said and sent about her business, and not sent to the Washington prison from two to ten years, to the total loss of her service to her master during that time.

The argument for the defense is supposed to harmonize with the Dred Scott decision, and that the Chief Justice will be consistent with himself and decide that the woman Amy is not a woman, or a person of any description, but a thing, having no rights, and will cannot be punished for sinning against the laws of the United States "This is a great country."

TORNADO IN ILLINOIS.—We have recently recorded a whirlwind in Iowa, by which sixteen lives were lost. The St Louis Republican has the following letter describing a disaster of like character in Illinois

JACKSONVILLE, Ill., May 28.—The severe storm of Thursday evening made its appearance in the southeast at 4, P. M. It seemed at first about the size of a man's head. Its first appearance was that of a fountain boiling over. It increased in size, throwing a small cloud like folds from the clouds to the earth, increasing in width and violence as it approached the earth.

As far as heard from it began in Calhoun county, carrying everything, men, houses, barns fences, trees and cattle with it, from Manchester to a distance of twelve miles directly northeast. We can count thirty-six dwelling houses, with all the barns and out houses destroyed. The number of killed, as far as heard from, are Mrs. Route, a son of Geo. Van Zanes, Samuel Brown a Portugese, in the employ of Mr. Route, Jonathan Carlisle, Jacob Semple and wife and a Mr. Thomas. There are about fifty seriously, if not mortally wounded. Most of them, it is feared, must die.

To give an idea of the force of the storm, I have in my possession a stone weighing three pounds that was lifted up and carried sixty feet, passing through a window, four feet from the floor. The floor and partition of a school room, twenty by thirty feet, was carried away with heavy timber, and all cannot be found within two miles of the place. A wind mill was carried over four hundred yards, with pipes, pumps &c., the small end foremost. There is not ten feet square within the route of the storm that has not got rails, boards, &c., stuck in the ground so that no one can easily pull them out. Whole partitions of houses are gone and cannot be found. A man riding in a field was blown from his horse, the saddle torn off and carried about two miles from the place.

No one can form an idea of the terrible effects of this storm, which lasted but five minutes with but little rain. The cloud was very bright, while on either side it was so dark as not to be able to distinguish objects.

TO ACQUIRE A BEAUTIFUL FORM.—Take abundant exercise in the open air, free, attractive, joyous exercise, such as young girls, when not restrained by false and artificial proprieties, are wont to take. If you are in the country, or can get there, ramble over the hills and through the woodlands; hunt bird-nests, and chase butterflies. Be a romp, even though you may be no longer a little girl. If you are a wife and a mother, so much the better. Romp with your children. Attend also to your bodily positions in standing, sitting lying, and walking, and employ such general or special gymnastics as your case may require. Live, while in-doors, in well-ventilated rooms; take sufficient wholesome and nourishing food, at regular hours; keep the mind active and cheerful, in short, obey all the laws of health. Take a lesson from the English girl, as described in the following extract:

"The English girl spends more than one half of her working hours in physical amusements; that is, in amusements which tend to develope, and invigorate, and ripen the bodily powers. She rides, walks, drives, rows upon the water, runs, dances, plays, swings, jumps the rope, throws the ball, hurls the quoit, draws the bow, keeps up the shuttlecock, and all this without having it forever impressed upon her mind that she is thereby wasting her time. She does this every day, until it becomes a habit, which she will follow up through life. Her frame, as a necessary consequence, is larger, her muscular system better developed, her nervous system in subordination to the physical, her strength more enduring, and the whole tone of her mind healthier. She may not know so much at the age of seventeen as the American girl; as a general thing she does not, but the growth of her intellect has been stimulated by no hot-house culture, and though maturity comes later, it will last proportionably longer."—Hints towards Physical Perfection.

THE ALLEGED TRIAL OF COMMANDER RIDGELY BY A COURT MARTIAL.—In one of the letters of our Montevideo correspondent, published a few weeks since, it was stated that Commander Ridgely, of the U. S. steamer Atlanta, had been ordered to a court martial on board the Falmouth, by Commodore Forrest, for having shaved the head of one of his sailors, and otherwise ill-treated the poor wretch so that in his desperation he jumped overboard and was drowned. A letter, signed by all the officers of the Atlanta, declares the statement to be untrue, and that they had never known of any unusual punishment having been inflicted on any of the crew of the Atlanta during the cruise. Our correspondent at Montevideo was, of course, misinformed. We learn from one of the commanders of the Paraguay Squadron that one of the crew of the Atlanta did jump overboard, but that it was done while he was in a fit of drunkenness, and that Commander Ridgely, was neither court-martialed nor censured for it.—*N.
