the government under which he was born, such as it may choose to demand, which he cannot shake off or be released from by naturalization here: He may renounce his allegiance to that government, but he cannot get rid of it by such formal renunciation; he may voluntarily swear allegiance is our government, and so take up himself the duty of rendering it military service; bût he still owes military service to the govern-ment he has renounced, which may be claimed of him set opprivality offers. This, we say, is the democratic doctrine; and the measures of President Tyler, which taken as a simular of the performance of the professed to be horrified at an anomal government onlay of twenty-three mil-lions, when there was no war, nor no cause for extraordinary expenditures. He warned the country that such profigacy, on the part of its rolers, would result in its rain and disgrace. He deprecated a national Debt as a monstrous evil, and denounced the issue of treasury notes, as right in 1842, he must be wrong now. Let un see how ho to take, judged by his own standard. In 1853, under his management, the expendi-tures were nearly foor times the samons of those which he found fault with in 1842, under Tyler. The national debt has been increased by the issue of Treasury notes, to an amount which the Tyler dynaxy notes, to an amount which the Tyler dynaxy notes, to an amount which the Tyler dynaxy nere dreamed of.
