BURGLAUS.—We advise our citizens, and those of Alleghery in particular, to be on their gnard for burglars, as we have received information from undoubted authority that quite a number of professional thieves, who have been driven from other cities, are now here and will doubtless try their luck whonever a favorable opportunity presents itself. Two or three attempts were made by them, last week, in Alleghery, to break into houses, and were only prevented from so doing by the inmates, who were awakened by their injudicious movements. Persons, therefore, who have money or valuable goods about their premises would do well to be on the lookout and have their houses well secured.

Her news are the same as those brought the was stopping a young woman whose name is Lizzie was to pholosy of Sofferico.—At Paris, it is believed in come quarters that the Franch loss at the battle of Sofferico amounted to from rixteen thousand non, as follows: General Keil's corps, 6,0000 to 7,000; D'Hüllier's, nearly 5,000; M'Mahoris, 2,500; Cannobert's, 1,000; besides care the standard of the stan repulsed the Sardinian troops, who were opposed to it; but this advantage did not enable the Imperial army to recover the position that had been lost in the centre. The 3d and 9th corps of armee, which were supported by the 11th corps, were engaged on the left wing, and the reserve cavalry attached to this wing, made several brilliant attacks.

Universally heavy losses, and the fact that the left wing of the first army was unable to make any progress on the right flank of the enemy, who directed his main force in the cautre against Volta, led to the retreat of the Imperial and Royal army. It began late in the evening, during a very violent storm.

The correspondent of the Lordion Herald says so little did the French expect a buttle, that on the provious night a message from the King, asking for support, in case he should be attacked, was met with a relianal, on the ground that an attack by the Autrians was not probable. At daybreak, however, the corps of Marshal Phillibra came in sight of Solfotion, and was immediately set upon by a large Austrian force, which ranked down the hill and fought with the greatest fury. The Marshal resisted the attack to the best of his power, and sent his aid-decamp for supports; but it was not before three hours of frightful carnage had elapsed that the corps of Gen. Neil made its appearance. The Austrians were slowly driven back, and every now and then their was a paus, and the French continued to gain ground, heaps of their own and the enemy's corpres marking the fluctuations of a feth. The Austrians were that was a pairs, and the Franch continued to gain ground, heaps of their own and the enemy's coprese marking the fluctuations of a sight. The Austrians were thus slowly driven out of Eoferine, but all of a sudden they made a tremendous burst forward and the French were driven down the hill. Being admirably supported by their artillers, however, they made a stand, and commenced once more to advance. It was like a hall storm of bullets and balls, and whole files were moved down by a single discharge. In the mean-
