Asother Fillipustratino Project.—A plan is talked of for the "regeneration of Mexico" by raising ten thousand "emigrants," who will proceed to that distracted country and satile the the contending factions, by "taking possession", and giving the Mexican people what they have not had since 1824—— "quiet, safe and impartial government," based on Republican principles. This looks very fine on paper, but it appears too much like bucansering on a large, scale to be regarded with approbation. "General Devoliced will arrive in New York upon the return of the Tennessee from Vera Oru; on the 17th or 20th, and will, it is said, madistaly to this city and confer with the government upon the subject of his project for raking volunteers in the United States for service in Maxico.

"It is bulisted that an extensive military and business movement is now on foot in this construction of Mexico. About ten thousand man have already been carolled as "Raights Crasaders, of the Order of Moniasuma." Funds and munitions of war will be fully provided for the embergies. Loans based on the generation would be but a "flas bite," as Mr. D'Irraal would say, in comparison with the revenue to be derived from her vast mineral and agrinused.—Oranka Netheration of Maxico. morning. He died at his residence in East Micrograms of the Phitadelphia Mint on thousbject. It dietry, on Monday weening, at the ripe of age of SI. He was one of the oldest residents of this city, and there have been but few Pittsburghers within the last forty years who have not known him, or to whom the sight of him was not familiar. From the earliest recollections of our boyhood he was identified with the Bank of Pittsburgh as its Cashler, (from which post he withdrew a few years since,) and much of the reputation of that well-known and thoroughly substantial institution was acquired under his careful, prudent and shrewd management. He enjoyed, and deservedly, the front place in the rank of our home financiers, and his clear judgment in all monetary affairs was highly prized by all who know him. The community loses, in him, a good citizen and a good man—one whose excellent shillites and life-long bousely and integrity endeared him to a wide circle of friends and left no enemy behind.

This Giornale di Roma, in no official article, declares that the behavior of the Papal troops sent to put down the insurrectionists has been everywhere exemplary.

Their behavior has undoubtedly been "exemplary," in the estimation of the Papal authorities; otherwise the chief butcher of Perugia would not have been promoted from a Colonaloy to a Generalship. But such "exemplary" conduct as is involved in the ravishment and elaughter of women and children, is not appreciated outside dominions where promotion results from such brutality.—Alb. Eve. Jour.
