THE EXTRAVAGANCE OF THE GOVERNMENT. The wild extravagance of this administration cannot too often be brought before the public It has the hardibood to deny that extravagance and to claim that it is "reforming and "retrenching" the expenses of the government; and in der to show that the claim is a fraudulent one, it becomes necessary to revert to facts which are a part of the history of the past. In "old fogy" imes, before Profligacy was President, and Cor raption got hold of the money bags, the revenues of the government were deemed ample for the Federal expenses. In fact, such an extravagant and reckless administration as General Pierce's was considered to be, could not manage dispose of the immense income, even in bribe funds and dissipation, but was compelled to han lions of dollars. Since the accession of "J. B.," the balance sheet is an awful one. Look at the items:

On the 4th of March, 1857, when "J. B." me into power, there was a balance in the manry of $20,000,000.

In the 3d of June, 1857, it was reduced to 7500,000. On the 1st of January, 1858, it was reduced to nothing. 1
On the 10th of January, 1858, the governmen was compelled to borrow $20,000,000.
In August, 1858, $10,000,000 mers.
In January, 1859, $10,000,000 mers.
And now it wants $30,000,000, to commence the second now one.

thieving contractors and Navy Yard sinecures

And now it wants $30,000,000 more.

And now it wants $30,000,000, to commence a dot of $500,000,000.

It may be said that the recipits into the treasury, now, are equal to its disbursements; but they are so only because the country is repeating, under the low-tariff policy now provailing, the sad experience of 1857 by which, within the first six months of the administration, it was involved in a commercial orisis which brought ruis to the doors of the people. We are now, in its third year, fast rushing on to a similar fate. The government officials are rejoicing at the large revenue coming in from imports, which is saving the national treasury from utter bankruptcy, but all the while the prudent men of the land are looking and the imports, the immense foreign debt they are creating, and the uneassing outflow of species, already in the first seven months of the year, equal to the entire yearly product of the California mines. It is not too much to say that if these importations be kept up a few months longer, the same may be preclinited upon another orisis.

There was hope in the future. The control of the reading will be preclinited upon another orisis. mines. It is not too much to say that if these importations be kept up a few months fonger, the country will be precipitated upon another crisis, equal in its ruinous effects to that of 1857. Two such crashes within two years ought to be enough to satisfy to the full the ambition for mischlef which seems to possess this administration above all that ever preceded it. One half the time it cannot raise the money to meet its extravagant expenses, and then it borrows; and when, during the other half, it does collect as much money as it needs, it does so at the expense of the prosperity of the country and at the risk of plunging it into the deepest fisancial the risk of plunging it into the deepest fisancial the risk of plunging it into the deepest fisancial. the risk of plunging it into the deepest financial bankrupt itself or the people. The punishment mypears on their face:

"The President is expected to return in the beginning of next week, and the suspended animation of government will be restored to its secunstomed active life. The relaxation has been of service, though for the eake of health only he did not need it, being of that robust order which no care seems to affect in the least. In fact he gives himself no care, but takes the world like a philosopher, sitting as calmy down as Diogenes did in his tab, and sking the modern of that article to spare. Few men could have stood that article to spare. Few men could have stood the wear and tear so well during the last two years, and but for his excellent habit, which some of us enzy, of sleeping a given number of hours, whether the Union was assaid or not at nightfall, he must have fallen a victim to his officer, as others have done in my day. He works harder and more constantly than drudge in the public service, and pursues details even to their some degree of confidence, that all the President in twenty years have not read as many papers, or heard as many cases as he has done, and, what is more, appears to have gained attention their limits of the west papears to have gained attention this labor secure to the country? The Roglish papers of a late date record the death of Gen. Proctor, who played so important a part in the last war with Great Brittan, and a part in the last war with Great Brittan, and who rendered himself so odious to the American people, especially of the North-West, by his cruelty. He commanded the 62d regiment at the battle of Perr Eric, and subsequently seried in the campaign along the Niggars frontier, and for a long time made Malden the headquarters from which, in conjunction with his savage at lies, he sallied forth to perpetrate all manner of outrages upon the Americans. He died a few weeks since, at his seak in Wales, suddenly, from disease of the heart. He had been sixty years in the army. In July, 1814, he commanded the 62d regulation of the first better from September 2d, and throughout the successive operations of the first blat of students at the University College, Condon, who recently received prizes at the brivest promotion of lieutennat colonel for his conduct in respelling the sitack on the batteries and position before Fort Eric, on the 17th of September, 1814.

The Marican and Sterra Leone Weekly Advertical an Speech of Cassins H. Clay, in Covington.

A very remarkable political and popular demonstration was made in the City of Covington, last night, by Cassins M. Clay.—The fact that he was a to address a public meeting last night seems to have been better known in Louisville and Lexington than in this city or in Covington, and there was a good deal of excitement in the first named cities from a desire to know what position Mr. Clay would take with reference to the election of Monday next. One is at a loss to know why it should have been supposed that the election of Monday next. One is at a loss to know why it should have been supposed that the chivalire and now veleran Representative in the South, of the doctrine that "slavery is sectional, freedom national," would declare for either Bell or Misgoffin.

Very little publicity was given to the meeting in Covington, but at eight o'clock about oight hundred people had assembled in front of the Seventh Street Market house, and within the next hour the crowd had swollen to nearly fitten hundred.

Mr. Clay said that he had taken no public the awest rewards of labor—health, sleep, property, and "the pursuit of happiness," should be universally recognized. The fathers of the Republic too fondly hoped this recognition was secured by the War of Independence. But in the Convention that framed the Constitution, the slave rose, and demanded the indirect recognition of elavery and the legalization of the clavitrade for a term of years. The fatal spirit of compromise prevailed, and, rather than go back to English allegiance, and taxation without representation, the framers of that instrument legalized the clave trade. The slave power grew apace; Kentucky, and Tennessee, and Alabama and Louisians were gained. Even the compromise of 1820 carried clavery west of the Mississippi, and the compromise of 1850 contained the sweet rewards of labor—health, sleep, propsippi, and the compromise of 1850 contains still greater concessions.

Were the people of Kentucky prepared to stand by and be committed to the support of same up and up committed to the support of slavery propagandism, by the small minority who had hitherto represented the State? The present Gubernatorial contest had noth-ing in it to enlist the enthusiasm or the care Kentuckians. Your Bells and Magolius were bankrupt itself or the people. The punishment follows the crime, in either case; and the only sospe from it is to turn the criminals out of power.

The President Habits.—We frequently find articles, something like the following, in our exchanges, which from their tenor, seem to have a motive in them, different from that which appears on their face:

Mr. Clay said that he had taken no public part in the excited canvass now drawing to a close, but had cheerfully responded to a call from his friends for a political address in Covington. He was an humble representative of the Republican organization, and he only asked of the Whigs and Democrate, and Americans of the city, a respectable hearing.

The people of these States were engaged in on new controversy, and it was well to recognize the features of a struggle as old as the world—the struggle between the class in possession of illegitimate power, and the people who would be free of that power. The possessors are conservatives—conservatived from the ownership of libertimes and the people who would be free of that power. The possessors are conservatives—conservatived from the ownership of libertimes to the conflict of principles by declaring that Ed. Top wis bound to be Cossack or Republican.—So here in America it is incuitable that as a nation we must be the Propagandists of Slavery—and that in its worst form—or of Freedom.

To the men of Rentucky he wished to present this living issue, "Would they have a common-wealth in which labor was honorable." It was to not straight the exercise of the conflict of principles by declaring that the exercise of the conflict of principles by declaring that it is a first the conflict of principles by declaring that it is a common was to the conflict of principles by declaring that it is a many that it is a common was a common was a common with the conflict of principles by declaring that it is a little difficult to supply our tables.—New sound the best of the design that the sectory of the sound relative of the many that is the conflict of principles by declaring that it is the conflict of principles by declaring that it is a little difficult to supply our tables.—New sound relative of the many that is a little difficult to supply our tables.—Nevel to an it is a little dif and Trembling, desire for Soldinde, and a number of other affections of this class, rendering a man until for intercorrs with the world and the society of int family—will all, in most instances, be found to have proceeded from that dipossed state of the digester organs which this medicines is so eminently calculated to relieve a result of the disconsisting the state of the disconsisting the state of the disconsisting the state of the state of
