LAWRENCE, Kansas, August 24, 1859.—A public meeting was held here last evening, to hear the confession read of the Yankee Kidnapper, J. J. Huzzy.

The chairman announced to the meeting that Huzzy had made a full confession of his connection with the kidnapping of himself and fifteen others, last January, and that he had left the Territory, but before going had given his trunk containing a correspondence between some slaveholders in Missouri, and Huzzy, in reference to the re-capture of fugitive slaves among his effects he had also found a bible with the initials of Huzzy's name upon it.

In compliance with a request of the meeting Doctor Doy read the recommendation given to Huzzy by his pastor, when he was about leaving his native place in New Hampshire for Kansas. Also a letter from Huzzy to a friend, giving an account of his connection with the Free State Army here, and announcing his willingness to give up his life if necessary to prevent the establishment of the hated institution of slavery upon the soil of Kansas, proving conclusively that the Yankee Kidnapper has not always been willing to go into the business of betraying the fugitives into the hands of the spoiler. The recommendation from his pastor in Rochester, New Hampshire, gives him a good moral, intellectual and gentlemanly character.

The confession of Huzzy was then read to the meeting, exciting great attention, as the plot and plans of the kidnappers became known. Such infamy, treachery, inhumanity, and moral turpitude, on the part of these men, astonished all.

Their plan of making dupes of the poor oppressed victims of slavery, by pretending friendship, and undertits guise to betray them into the hands of the slaveholder, is indeed, the lowest depth of crime ever heard or read of in history; it is unsurpassed in iniquity, and deserving of the severest punishment. Our people did not suppose it possible for them born in New England, to descend to such a depth as these men have gone in moral pollution. All the crime of the Border Ruffians in Kansas, for the five years, is nothing in comparison to it.

At the request of the meeting, the chairman read several letters received by Huzzy from slaveholders, offering rewards for the recovery of runaway slaves.

One Hutchinson offered, first one, and then two, hundred dollars for him if he would only point out the hiding place of Charles Fisher. Another agreed to give one-half a negro woman is worth in Missouri, on condition that he would catch her and deliver her to him in jail, so he "can get her." The correspondence between the kidnappers, the efforts made by Huzzy to obtain the appointment from Mr. Buchanan as Postmaster in Lawrence.

But enough of this; another scene in the drama was called for, when the Rev. E. Norte, Jr., of this city, appeared on the stand, and exhibited a small pocket Bible, with Huzzy's initials upon it which he stated had been left by the owner with his letters. He had examined the book, and found that it possessed a new interest as a kidnapper's Bible, for he found evidence of its having been read, several passages marked, and turned over, as if frequent reference had been had to them. He had read the marked passages and found them all to refer to the awful crime of betraying the oppressed: the sword of the Almighty against the sin, and the terrible sin of the kidnapper. He thought from a knowledge of the life of Huzzy, away up among the rocky granite hills of New Hampshire, he had been educated in a pious family, that in his youth he had been taught to love and respect his fellow men, to read and study the Bible, to go to it as a safe and sure guide amid all the perils and temptations of life. He came to Kansas, took an active part in our troubles in the defence of freedom, was unfortunate, lost his claim, got lazy—the crying fault of our western men—would not work, tried teaching and failed.

Money was offered him if he would become a kidnapper, to betray him that wandereth. He was tempted, he went to his Bible and read it, to gain strength to resist temptation.

He commenced at the beginning, found verses denouncing the kidnapper, pondered over them, resolved them in his mind, stood firm against temptation for a time, turned often and read the following two passages which bear unmistakable evidence of having been referred to often. They are in the XXIII and XXIV chapters of Deuteronomy, the 15th and 7th verses: "Thou shalt not deliver unto his master the servant which is escaped from his master unto thee."

"If a man be found stealing any of the children of Israel, and maketh merchandize of him, or selleth him, then the thief shall die, and thou shalt put evil away from among you."

The reading of the above made him conscious of the great crime he was tempted to commit. And turning to Ephesians, VI chapter, 11th verse, he read:

"Put on the whole armor of God, that ye may be able to stand against the wiles of the devil."

He felt strong, went out to deny the tempters, but their ridicule or money conquered him, and he fell; prevaricated an infamous crime, so deep in iniquity as to excite the bitter contempt of even the slave holders towards him.

GOVERNMENT SWINDLERS.—As affecting the finances of the General Government, the following from Horace Greeley, in his letter from Camp Floyd, is interesting. It appears that Brigham Young made $50,000 clear profit on lumber furnished the American army to construct its comfortable quarters at Camp Floyd. The army does nothing but enrich the contractors favored by the War Department, and the saintly speculators of Mormondom. Mr. Greeley says:

"Whether truly or falsely this army, probably without an individual exception, undoubtedly believes the Mormons, as a body, to be traitors to the Union and its Government, inflexibly intent on establishing here a power which shall be at first independent of, and ultimately dominant over that of the United States."

Mr. Greeley says that a suspicion is entertained that the army is kept in Utah for the pecuniary gain of the tribe of contractors. He gives a few of the many cases of Government profligacy:

The Flour Contract.—Twenty-two cents per pound is paid for the transportation of all provisions, munitions, &c., from Leavenworth to this point. The great contractors were allowed this for transporting this year's supply of flour. By a little dexterous management at Washington, they were next allowed to furnish the flour here, being paid their twenty-two cents per pound for transportation, in addition to the prime cost on the Missouri. As Utah has a better soil for growing wheat than almost anything else, they had no difficulty in subletting this contract at seven cents per pound net, making a clear profit of $170,000 on the contract, without risking a dollar or lifting a finger.

The Sale of Mules and Wagons.—Pursuant to a recent order from Washington, the Assistant Quartermaster General here is now selling by auction some two thousand mules—about two thirds of all the Government owns in this Territory. These mules cost $175 each, and are worth to-day $125 to $150. I attended the sale for an hour or so this forenoon; the range of prices was from $60 to $115; the average of the 700 already sold about $75. Had these mules been taken to California and there properly advertised and sold, they would have brought nearly cost; even at Leavenworth they must have sold for at least $100,000 more than here, where there is practically no demand and no competition for such an immense herd; and, after every Mormon who can raise a hundred dollars or over shall have supplied himself with a span of mules for half their value, one or two speculators will make as much as they please, while the dead loss to the people will be at least $200,000. Nobody here has recommended the sale of these mules; they were being herded under the care of detachments of the army, at no cost but for herdsmen, and they could have been kept through next winter, in secluded mountain valleys, at a cost of about $10 per head; whereas, the army can never move without purchasing an equal number; and they can neither be bought here nor brought here for $200,000 more than these animals are now fetching. Somebody's interest is subserved by this sale, but it is certainly not that of the army nor of the people. The order is to sell seven hundred wagons as well, but these would not bring $30 each, while they cost at least $130, and
