A VIGILANCE COMMITTEE IN LOUISIANA.—The New Orleans Picayune says that the journals in that district of Louisiana in which the Vigilance Committee have been organized are almost entirely filled with a discussion of their movements. We glean some further facts in regard to the disturbances which have elicited so much attention. The Arkansas Register of the 24th inst. says:

"It was brought to the Governor's notice that three of the victims of the Vigilants had died from the severity of the lashing whipping inflicted upon them, that one had been shot and stabbed, that a number of other dead bodies had been found in the prairies, and that women and children were dying in the prairies, whose fathers, husbands and brothers have been driven from their homes by the Vigilants. A sad catalogue of crimes are these indeed to be perpetrated in a civilized community. And to cap the climax of audacity, it is said that Judge Simons has been noticed not to attempt to hold court in the parish of Vermillion. It is with much difficulty that we are able to credit this last, for it seems to us incredible that men of the least intelligence can be so infatuated as to hope to trample the cornis of the State under foot, unless they are prepared to cap the climax of their lawless deeds by the crime of treason, the highest crime known to the laws of any State, and to attempt a revolution of the government."

The Planters' Banner, of the same date, says:

"The Vigilance Committee have publicly whipped nearly seventy citizens of their parishes, in the heat of such a passion as is exhibited only by a wild and infuriated mob, without judge or jury, and have ordered them to leave the State in five days or suffer the penalty of death by the hands of the same company. And we are credibly informed that a heavy vote of the committee, but not a majority, was given in favor of hanging, instead of whipping, the proscribed company.

But this is not all. Dr. Wagner, a citizen of the parish of Vermillion is now in this place under the most painful and humiliating circumstances. He is known by several of our citizens who vouch for him as an upright, honest man. He is a Justice of the Peace and Coroner of his parish, and has never been connected with either the Vigilance Committee or the organized opposers of these committees.

By request of a citizen of his parish, he copied in a plain hand the resolutions which we last week published in the Banner, and undertook to execute the law as directed by the District Attorney and his superior officers. For this he was forcibly taken by fourteen men from his boarding house, at night, a quarter of a mile into the prairie, tied to a beam unmercifully with the lashes and even knots of their whips across the spine and ribs, breaking one of his ribs, and endangering his life by heavy blows across the spine, and then ordering him to leave the State in five days or suffer the death penalty at their hands.

At the general whipping of the exposers of the Vigilance Committees in the Parish of Lafayette, it was reported that one of the party, to avoid being whipped, blew his own brains out. Since that event, it has been discovered that the death wound was not self-inflicted, but that he was shot by an enemy. Three others have died from the effects of the whipping they received, and one was at the point of death at Opelousas a few days ago.

Among those who have died was a young man by the name of Singleton, a clerk in a store at Bremen Bridge. He was known to be an estimable young man, and had nothing to do with opposing the Vigilants, he being a looker on at their proceedings."

The Baton Rouge Advocate of the 24th ult says:

"Gov. Wickliffe returned yesterday from the scene of lawlessness and anarchy which prevails in the south-western parishes, and informs us that order had been restored, although much excitement still existed. Gov. W. went as far as Vermillionville and had interviews with the prominent leaders of the Vigilance Committee, who gave their promises that no further violence would be attempted by the organization. How far these promises will be kept it is difficult to say. We have little faith in them until the Committee disbands, which the leaders did not promise to do.

We learn that one of the victims of the Queue de Tortue outrage died in Pointe Coupee on Thursday, and that Mr. Wagner, of whom we spoke yesterday, had one of his ribs broken and his body terribly lacerated by the brutal ruffians into whose power he fell.

Ex Gov. Mouton and those men of respectability and standing who lent their sanction and influence to the horrible cruelties perpetrated by the wretches under command ought to retire conscience-stricken from the gaze of that society whose laws they have so atrociously outraged. They have consorted with murderers (unknowingly, no doubt) and aided and abetted in a crime to which murder is comparatively a Christian act. When we speak of murderers we do not speak unwarrantable, for we are assured on good authority that the scoundrel who was implicated in the murder of policeman Dunn some two years ago in New Orleans—and for which his associate, Costello, suffered death—is one of the active of the Vigilants in torturing the "raws" and "desperadoes" with the lash. This wretch, the rope for whose neck is probably in the hands of justice, becomes the associate of educated gentlemen in breaking the law and oppressing unoffending citizens."

A SCENE AT THE ST. LOUIS FAIR.—The St. Louis correspondent of the Chicago Press furnishes the following:

The most exciting accident of the Fair was the grand run away, turn over, and smash up among the fast men who were showing off their horses and sulkies in the ring Thursday afternoon. About twenty-five horses and sulkies were flying round the ring, in the presence of ten or twelve thousand persons, when one driver ran into the gig of another one, which frightened his horse. The horse bounded of at full speed, striking several other horses and sulkies, and starting them off likewise. Within a minute the panic and runaway feeling were communicated to almost every horse in the ring. Gigs were smashed to splinters; drivers were hurled headlong from their seats to the ground and run over; some of them held on to the reins, and were dragged along; one or two got caught with their feet in the wheels and were hurled about in a frightful manner. Some of the horses attempted to jump over the railing among the frightened spectators. Others plunged madly for the entrance and exit places, and dashed their vehicles to pieces against the sides of the passage way.

Just picture to your mind a score of high-metalled horses, attached to carriages, all running away promiscuously on the space of an acre—crashing against each other, rolling over and springing up, plunging, kicking and squealing, around and across the area, in pell-mell terror and confusion, with portions of broken gigs following their heels, with their drivers rolling or dragging in the dirt among the debris of sulkies and hoofs of the frightened horses; add to this the rush of a hundred hardy men into the ring, trying to stop the horses, many of whom getting instantly kicked down and run over, and the shouts of ten thousand men and screams of five thousand women, and you can form some idea of how the scene looked to the spectator. In five minutes it was all over, and horses, men and gigs had cleared the ring. Strange to tell, no one was killed, though several received severe contusions, and few escaped without bloody faces or soiled and torn garments. The whole accident strongly reminded one of the descriptions given of the old Roman gladiatorial contests with wild animals; witnessed in the great Coliseum of Rome. The last exhibition of horsemanship was not down in the bills, and the crowd adjourned for their homes and stopping places, after witnessing this ring performance.

A Person, speaking of a drink he once had occasion to indulge in, says he could not tell whether it was brandy or a torch-light procession that was going down his throat.

A SWISS CAPITALIST AND MISER.—A foreign correspondent of the New York Journal of Commerce, relates the following history of a Swiss manufacturer:

Switzerland is a very industrious country. Among her principal articles of manufacture are silk and cotton. Low wages and an inexhaustible abundance of water power give to her large manufacturing establishments advantages over many other countries which make competition easy. Many of the proprietors of these establishments have amassed fabulous riches, unknown to the world, and, in some instances, to themselves. Last week one of these Swiss cotton lords of the last named category died. His name was Kunz; but he was generally known by the name of "Spinner King." His large cotton mill is situated in the village of Uster, a short distance from Zurich. He was a self-made man, a man without any education, and without any prominent talents. His principal qualities were a horrible svarice, an iron industry, and the art of extorting from his laborers as much work for as little pay as possible. He was 68 years of age when he died, an old bachelor. He never enjoyed any of the pleasures of life.

A low, small, dirty room, with an old bedstead, and no other furniture, was his residence. Attached to it was a kitchen, where his old servant girl resided and cooked his scanty meals, which he used to devour standing, in order to save time. He never gave any alms or any support to poor people. "Nonsense! Good for nothing" Let them save, and work," was his stereotyped reply in such cases. He did not pay taxes on more than $160,000 until two years ago, when he was compelled to raise his assessment to $1,200,000. He never kept any regular books, never a stock book, never took an inventory; but when that inventory, long before it was finished, already showed a net property of 20,000,000 of Zurich guilders, or about 10,000,000 francs of all debts, he stopped the continuation of it with his usual words—"Nonsense! Good for nothing!" True to his principles, that modern Crœsus has bequeathed nothing to his laborers, nothing to benevolent or useful institutions, and his laughing heirs will divide amongst them the whole enormous property, the amount of which will be made out very soon by the courts.

ICE-WATER.—It is only when we are deprived of it that we appreciate the blessings of ice-water, which is now one of the cheapest of our luxuries. Mr. Hillards in one of his letters to the Boston Courier, writes what many an American traveler has experienced:

"The water in London is detestable: when you drink it you are reminded of a weak solution of Epsom salts, and when you wash in it, of the sand in which the Arabs, when in the desert, are allowed to perform their ablutions. Why the English are a nation of beer-drinkers is perfectly intelligible to any one who comes to England. The sly soot has painted here for the ice-waters of home, and how cry ear has languished for the musical rattle of the melting crystal against the sides of the pitcher a sound sweeter in a hot day than harp or dulcimer."

Dr. Mackenzie, in his obituary of the late Mr. Brunel, the engineer, says that several years ago, when playing with one of his children, Mr. Brunel accidentally swallowed a golden half-sovereign, which stuck in his throat, and though skilful surgical aid was employed, it was found impossible to remove it. The coin remained firmly fixed in his throat for a considerable period, and Mr. Brunel, of a very nervous temperament, appeared literally pining away. At last, when things appeared at their worst, his Irish man-servant gave him a pinch of snuff, and the violent sneezing which this caused suddenly removed the coin.

ENDURING HARDNESS.—Thus, in the last Baltimore discourses Dr. Bond—"The preachers of the olden time did wrong in affecting to be careless about comforts, or in actually being so. They commonly died young: which many of them had no right to do. They threw their lives away. Itinerant preaching is a healthful business, if discreetly followed, and our preachers should live long and be effective in old age but in order to this they must have dry beds, warm clothing and plenty of sleep. Work them till midnight put them in a cold room or wet tent wake them at day break and worry them with endless complaints that is the way to kill the prophets."

A DOUBLE STATESMAN.—A writer in the Atlantic Monthly says "Richard Greenough once told me that, in studying for the statue of Franklin, he found that the left side of the great man's face was philosophic and reflective, and the right side funny and smiling. If you will go and look at the bronze statue, you will find he has repeated this observation there for posterity. The eastern profile is the statesman
