burrying to and fro of military companies; the aid of the Genural Government is lavoked; three or four the dassed men are sped to the place of conflict; old Brown and his nineteen lunaties are shot down, and the several thousand people of Harper's Ferry, huddled together like sheep, as their Governor uncomplimontarily observes, breathe freer and easier again!

But the end is not yet. Brown is mortally wounded, and afteen of the fools who went with him are dead but the appalling dismay spread over Virginia by these twenty powerless men is not dispelled. The danger still continues, though they cannot tellifrom whence it is to come. There must be danger, somewhere; else why should the brave, chiraltic, courageous Virginians be all of a tremble! Would they, the lion-hearled fellows of the nation, the very embodiment of vigorous courace, would they tremble, think you, if there were not real danger? Not a bit of it. Could twenty rien scare two hundred thousand fighting men out of their wits t The thing is miles back, as the captain said, with no com-plaint of weariness.
