The editor of the New York Herald is showing some signs of deserting the Democrats in their warfare on the Republican party for its alleged complicity with the late Harper's Ferry affair. Probably that French mission is not forthcoming, and hence the political ardor of the aminable Bennett is about undergoing a change. Or does the cunning fellow discover signs of that political reaction that must take place in a very short time? In a late article on the Virginia rich, the Herald remarks:

"And how were all these disseters, and the contract of the contr
