ression.—We published the other day, what purported to be the confession of the negro Copeland to can Mat. Johnsön, U. S. Marshal for Northern Onto. This confession ehould be received with great caution. As Governor Wises said, this Gansda negro was a great coward, and no doubt told what he thought palstable to the party pumplog him. But there is shother circumstance which, more than the beggarly character of the negro, should make us receive this confession with doubt, and that is the character of the world. There is not to the world. There is no control with the control of the confession with doubt, and that is the character of the world. There is no control of the confession with doubt, and that is the character of the world. There is no control of the confession with doubt, and that is the character of the world. But nore is another circumstance which, more than the beggarly charted in the negro, should make us receive this confession with death, and that is the obstracter of the man who appreed it out of him and gave it to the world. There is enough proof of an anthentic sud undoubted character to show the complicity of Abolition-Republican leaders with the Harper's Ferry movement, without resorting to what may be wormed out of a negro scared almost to death at the prospect of the sale with the proposed of the sale with the sale wi the harper a terr movement out of a negro scarce almost to death at the prospect of the gallows, and especially when written down, not by the negro himself, but by such a person as Johnson.

A Suggestive Placard .- Yesterday, Sepacould be established by such evidence as the law tor Gwin and Chus. L. Scott left on the steam-course not. The Journal feels the weak-An immense crowd had gathered upon the of course not. The Journal feels the weak ness of its cause, and is not favorable to any course that would demonstrate that weakness to others. To indict and try these men would simply be to show to all the world that they have not a scintilla of proof to produce against cither. Not only is "such evidence as the law courts demand" lamentably wanting, but such evidence as honest man demand. The transfer is not in the court of the two departing Congressions of the multitude; but nothing occurred to disturb the peace. It was perhaps one of the most quiet and orderly stemm days ever witnessed in this city. There was no shouting nor loud boisterous mirth; there was no pelting of oranges and an allowed. The transfer is the peritage, No. 30, corner of Wood and 4th attrets. Fitted wharf, under impression that some demonstration of lastred for the two departing Congressions. An immense are of Mic David Parity, Packet Transfer Tr demand" lamentably wanting, but such evidence as honest men demand. There is no evidence, in fact—not a particle. The whole affair has been trumped up for political effect upon the November elections, and the Journal of Commerce is too shrewd to suffer a trial to demonstrate that fact. Better, it thinks, to leave matters in their present condition; and then, by sheer persistence in a baseless columny, soms fools may be found who will believe in it.

There was no shouting nor loud boisterous thus pledge to each of the parties, who thus pledge to each other mittal laddees and the long ples between those on the wharf and those on the steamer. The very newsboys and peanut of the steamer. The only thing which caught the eye assusual, and awakened a train of thought on the occasion, was an immense placered in their present condition; and then, by sheer persistence in a baseless columny, soms fools may be found who will believe in it.

There was no shouting nor loud boisterous thus pledge to each other mittal laddees and the law persistence in a baseless calcumy, soms fools may be found who will believe in it.

It's not, however, the interest of the friends of Republicanism to leave things in this plight. They have a right to demand, and for one we do demand, that the State of Virginia shall either indict these men or abandon its stale charges against them. If they do not indict them, after one of them, at least, has profered a surreader of himself for trial, the world will be free to conclude that they do not believe the charges they prefer, but whine over them in the sickly hope that some political capital may be made in that way.

She runs no faster than other steam vessele, rolls and pitches in a storm, and seems to be subject to all the fathifites which attend updu smaller craft.

Regarded in the light with which we look upon human skill, it size, be a matter of regret that so great an achievement askits promised to be should be a failure; but otherwise there is in it no resean for sorrowing—at least, not in our estimation.
