"PROTESTANTISM IN FRANCE."—After alluding to the book of Mr. Edmond About on the Question Romaine, a French correspondent of the London Athenæum, makes the following remarks:

A very zealous Bonapartist said to me, only two or three days ago, that France wanted a Henry the Eighth to regulate her insolent priesthood. "And," added my friend, "you will see a very serious movement shortly." A pamphlet on "Protestantism in France" is about to appear that will make a noise.

There is something of gravity in suspense between the Emperor and the clergy; and, I am informed on very good authority, his Majesty will not be displeased to see a strong pamphlet on "Protestantism in France" appear. I may repeat the song a certain bird whispered in my ear last Thursday. Prince Napoleon was in the ante-room of his august relative. The august relative presently issued form his Cabinet, and, seeing the Prince's impatient air, said—"You are in a hurry, my cousin." "I have much to do," the Prince replied. "And I," replied the august personage, "have nothing to do, with all the clergy howling at my back!" "Sire," replied the cousin, "I warned you of this long ago." "Well, well" was the hasty answer, "I know, I know: but let them beware, or I shall learn how to deal with them."

The concluding chapter of M. About's book points in the same direction. Rumor says he was sent to Rome by the Emperor Napoleon. His letters were published in the Moniteur, till outcry from the Papal Government caused their suppression. One could scarcely be surprised at any turn of events.

INCENDIARY SENTIMENTS.—Some three passengers over the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, were so indiscreet as to utter incendiary sentiments on the train during Tuesday night. The authorities are in possession of Harper's Ferry were notified of the fact by telegraph, and upon arriving at that point the men were dragged from the sleeping car and placed under arrest. Those who expect to go safely through the mountains now-a-days, had better keep their mouths shut, except upon anti-treasonable subjects. Those, however, who wish to pass through any of the villages and become acquainted with the manners of the country, will act otherwise.

So cautious is the Governor becoming that it will be impossible for a civil passenger to pass over the Baltimore road without the fear of being subject at least to officious inquiry. A blind girl and her sister, now stopping at the McLure House, were driven away from Martinsburg the other day, because they could give no account of themselves. We learn that tickets will not be sold over the road unless the purchasers be known and recommended. We have heard of one or two instances where the proprietors of our hotels accompanied their guests to the railroad office here, in order to vouch for their character and help them to secure passes through the excited districts.—Wheeling Intel.

WILLIS, in his letter describing the American Watch Manufactory at Waltham, Mass., in speaking of the astonishing minuteness of some very essential parts of the watch, says in regard to the screws used in putting the watch together: "A small heap of grains was shown to us, looking like iron filings, or grains of pepper from a pepper castor—apparently the mere dust of the machine which turned them out—and these, when examined with a microscope, were seen to be perfect screws, each to be driven to its place with a screw driver. It is one of the statistics of Waltham worth remembering, that a single pound of steel, costing but fifty cents, is thus manufactured into 100,000 screws which are worth $1,100."

GONE TO RICHMOND.—Our representatives, Messrs. Richardson, Edington and Knote, have all gone to Richmond. Mr. Edgington, who left yesterday, was compelled to procure a certificate from the railroad agent here, recommending him as a proper person to travel through the State.

We mean no disrespect by mentioning the fact in this connection, but the four prisoners sentenced to the Penitentiary at the last term of the Circuit Court, have also gone to the Capitol. Wheeling Intel.
