DAING ROBERTY—The Memphis Avalanche of the 10th contains the following second of the 10th contains the following s representative from Ohio, who remarked as follows:

"Mr. Biogham, of Ohio, wished only to my to the gentleman, the Honese and the country, that the gentleman from Virginia denounces that book, without limitation, as an incendiary publication. He denounces the last will and testament of Washington, which is contained in that book. The resolution denounces the unanimous declarations of the Convention of Virginia et al. 1784, instructing the Converses at Philadelphia in that year. The resolution denounces all the truthfull words of the distinguished Virginian, McDowell, namely: "You yoke your slave to labor as an ox, you may compel him to live to work, and work to live, and yet the idea that he was created free will abide with him, because has the right to the hope of immortality." The resolution denounces the living sentiment of Jefferson, copied from his Notes en Virginia, namely: "I fremble for my country when I reflect that God is just, and has no attribute to taxe cides against alaxes for their rights and liberty." The gentleman from Virginia chould also remember that the depundistion in the countant of the words of the Continental Congress, when about entering upon the sever-years' war, wherein it was said in the the seven-years' war, wherein it was said in the Articles of Association, by the members thereof, that they held every man or commonity of members thereof, that they held every man or commonity of members as enemies of American liberty who were not opposed to the traffic in slaves. The resolution also denounces that part of the Declaration of Independence which holds there truths to be self-oriedat, that all men were created equal, and endowed with certain inalienable rights, among which are life, liberty and the pursuit of flappiness, etc., and that when any form of government becomes destructive of any of these ends, it is the right of the people to alter or abolish it. The word abolish is embodied in this memorable declaration, for which your father (to Mr. Smith) and my father fought, through there were an abolish is embodied in this memorable declaration, for which your father (to Mr. Smith) and my father fought, through

House proceedings:

"Mr. Stevens, of Penneylvania—I rise to a personal matter. It is well known that I departed from the general rule of obeying party decrees, and voted for an honorable gentleman from Morth Carolina, [Mr. Glimer.] This may require some explanation, as I see from the paper I send to the clerk's deak to be read. The Clerk—The paper is printed in German, and the olerk cannot read it. [Great laughter.]

Mr. Stevens, of Penneylvania—I rise to a money in this rash enterprise, which was started on false information.

Mr. Smith replied that he treated the House understood that the member from Ohio endorses the Helper book.

Mr. Bingham—I ask the gentleman whether he repuddates those sentiments.

Mr. Smith—I ask the gentleman whether he repuddates those sentiments.

Mr. Smith—I is not the question.

Mr. Smith—I is not the question.

Mr. Smith—I is he House and country to understand that the member from Ohio endorses the Helper book. For this he deserves the destation and acorn of every man who forms part of the American Union! [Applause] The gentleman refers to the sentiments of distinguished Revolutionary men. Many of them I added Revolutionary men. Mark and the leave of the party of seven men having become the state.
