...RELATES HIS WASHINGTON EXPERI-

THE REVOLVER QUESTION.—When we were in Washington two or three weeks ago, we heard from all quarters that the great mass of the members of both sections were heavily freighted with all sorts of portable facilities for letting blood. We believe we were rather a pet of both sections, and we hope we betray no sacred confidence in saying, that whenever Northern or Southern members got a little maudlin and threw their arms affectionately around us (of course to steady themselves) we almost invariably felt the butts of pistols and the hafts of bowieknives press against our shrinking frame.

One morning we put our overcoat in the rack at Brown's Hotel and went in to breakfast. When we returned, our coat was gone, but another somewhat resembling it lay near. We took up the latter, but put it back with horror on finding a big, frightful-looking revolver in one of the pockets. With some misgivings, such as a man might be supposed to feel in opening what he suspected to be an infernal machine, we took up the next, and to our chagrin it was a big pistol in one pocket, and something in the other that we didn't stop to examine. Finding the rack to be a well-furnished arsenal, we withdrew, and the day being cold, we remained an hour and a half in the hotel, carefully scrutinizing the integuments of every gentleman that seemed to have a particularly genteel overcoat. At length, we returned to the arsenal, and the coat first examined by us, still remained there. Concluding that even a fire-eater couldn't have been breakfasting so long unless upon burning coals and aquafortis tea we were about calling for a servant to take the fire-arms out of the pocket, (we have a mortal antipathy to touching such things ourself) intending to wear the coat, for it was a very handsome one until we should encounter orr own handsomer one. At that moment, a very mild-mannered Western member of Congress stepped up with an embarrassed look, and seeing at once that we looked like a gentleman who had lost something, remarked that he really believed he had got somebody else's overcoat. The matter was all made right at once, but we couldn't help thinking how awkward and insecure the member must have felt, when, in the very act, perhaps, of walking about among other Congressional belligerents, he had thrust his hand into what he supposed to be his pocket, and found nothing there more dangerous to life than a dozen pretty notes from a dozen pretty porteeses.

THE Duke of Wellington, giving orders one day during his campaign, for a battillion to attempt a rather dangerous enterprise—the storming of one of the enemies batteries of St. Sebastian—complimented the officer by saying that his was the first regiment in the world. "Yes," replied the officer, leading on his men, "and before your lordship's orders are finally executed, it will probably be the first in the other world."
