Let it be the high and holy purpose of the Republican party to bring back the government to the just principles and sound policy of its foundment. To that party its now emphalically committed that highest of all duties. To the Republican party the good and true men of this broad land lock with confident expectation for the political regeneration of the country, and we trust they shall not look in vain.

The Republican Convention will have before the Republican competent cliticus from whom to see lets a candidate for Governor. They cannot go smits in the choice of any one of them. They are all true and tried men, the role of whose public life may challenge the ceverest scrutiny.
