PITTSBURGH:

FRIDAY MORNING, MARCH 16, 1860.

FOR GOVERNOR,

HON. ANDREW G. CURTIN,

OF CENTRE COUNTY.

☞To ADVERTISERS.—The Pittsburgh DAILY GAZETTE has a large circulation among the business men in this and the surrounding cities—among those who BUY and who SELL—and among manufacturers and producers. It may be found in nearly all the counting rooms, store houses, banking houses, hotels, factories and commission houses to the two cities, where it is read and carried home to the families for perusal. As a medium for advertising, therefore, it offers inducements which no other paper in Western Pennsylvania can offer, to all who desire to reach this large class of our citizens. The WEEKLY GAZETTE at this time has a much larger circulation in Western Pennsylvania, Ohio and Virginia among substantial farmers and merchants than any other secular paper in this section of the States.

THE TEXAS BORDER WAR.—The St. Louis Democrat, in an article on the subject, intimates that the military demonstration on the Rio Grande has been brought about by the joint scheming of President BUCHANAN and Gov. HOUSTON. It will be remembered that the former defined his position in regard to the plundering of weak States, four years ago, through the medium of the celebrated Ostend Manifesto, and it is also known that Gov. Houston has exhibited a desire to absorb Mexico ever since the Texas war of independence. If these surmises are correct, and we have no good reason to doubt their accuracy, it would seem that our worthy Chief Magistrate has resolved to render his foreign policy as infamous in the eyes of all honest and just men as his domestic policy now is. There is a sort of reckless consistency in this determination very much like that which marks the conduct of a criminal rendered desperate by the knowledge that his offences have already damaged his reputation. The President thinks he may as well be blamed for stealing a sheep as a lamb, and is now putting himself in a position to defy public opinion. It is to be hoped that the scheme will be defeated through the efforts of conservative and patriotic members of the National Legislature. The Democrat says:

"Now the Governor, as the world knows, is a Texas Ranger and Viking, who longs to repeat the exploits of his younger days; and, accordingly, we find him threatening to make war, as an independent power, on Mexico, unless the United States take up the quarrel and sweep Cortinas and his followers off the face of the earth.

The Government has his dispatches, which have been doubtless written in response to private letters from Mr. Buchanan, before the Senate, insinuating at the same time that the intermatives are in the power of the government under the leadership of the hero of San Jacinto, or a regular war under the flag of the country and the control of the President. Evidently the Texan warrior and the sage of Wheatland, who is also the author of the Ostend manifesto, are playing into each other's hands. Their present query is Mexico, and since Congress takes decisive measures to prevent it, we shall witness before long a collision on the Southern frontier. The reasons advanced in support of the policy contemplated by the Administration are positively ridiculous. It is said that our frontier cannot be protected unless possession is obtained of the adjacent Mexican States. But what would this be but a mere transfer southward of the dividing line between the two countries? The new frontier would be in a worse condition than the present frontier. It would, in fact, be exposed to a great many more perils, for it would have a hostile population on both sides, and be necessarily environed by howling anarchy, or brooding rebellion and conspiracy. A war with Mexico is the last expedient of this bankrupt Administration, and the ground on which aggression shall be based, is quite a secondary consideration. It is demonstrable, however, that the invasion of that country by the United States, would be followed by a similar act on the part of England and France, and thus a crime similar to the partition of Poland, would be perpetrated by nations which claim to be the champions of nationalities and the defenders of the rights of man.

WHO ARE FOR PROTECTION?—When we made the prediction that a vote on the Tariff question in the House would show that the Republicans as a party had no sympathy with the ridiculous free trade doctrines of a solitary newspaper, which have recently given so much comfort to the democrats, we did not expect so speedy a verification as it has received. On Monday last, something like a test vote was taken on a motion of Mr. Morrill, to suspend the rules, in order to introduce a bill, prepared in committee. This required a two-thirds vote. Now, let us examine that vote:

"There were one hundred and six yeas to sixty-nine nays. A change of seventeen votes being necessary to success, which seventeen certainly cannot be had in the list of negative votes recorded at that time. Indeed, it is quite doubtful whether, in any contingency, a vote so far favoring a change in the tariff as to bring in a bill for that purpose out of the regular order, can at any time be got; in that body.

The negative votes are, of course, all democrats, and they include nearly all the Northern list. Cochrane, Barr, Maclay, and Sickles, of New York; Cox, Pendleton and Vallandigham, of Ohio; Davis, Holman and Niblack, of Indiana; Fenike, M'Clernand and Logan, of Illinois; Howard, of Michigan, and Larrabee, of Wisconsin, were in the negative—fifteen of that political category, while Florence and Montgomery alone dare not do as the party bids them."

A contemporary, in commenting on this vote, very pertinently asks, "How can the most devoted adherent of the democratic party claim that it favors the interests of home industry, when the first vote on that question, in a new Congress, presents such a record as this?" What is the tariff plank in the Reading Platform worth, in the face of this fact?

AN ELOQUENT APPEAL.—Haslett and Stevens will be executed to-day. Mr. Sennot, their counsel, endeavored to procure a pardon, but met with no success in his efforts. The following is the closing part of his address to the Committee on Pardons in the Virginia Legislature:

"Your broken laws have been dreadfully avenged. The active invaders are nearly all destroyed. The rocks, the river and the hungry gallows have devoured the blood of most of them, and the poor remnant is waiting in a dungeon the result of your deliberations. Let it result in mercy, we implore you. Mercy is a word that should drop easily from your Virginian lips. Your commonwealth owes its existence to an act of mercy. Your founder, like my client, was the invader of a people who had never harmed him; like him he was taken in the act of invasion; like him he was tried with all the solemnities of savage law as Stevens was under the forms of a civilized code; like him he was sentenced to death according to the profoundest maxims of those poor barbarians, who knew no better or safer way than always to kill all their enemies. But he was saved by Mercy, incarnate in that sweet Indian maid, whose image glows through the twilight of history with all the loveliness of young romance! May the parallel not fail us here in its noblest part! May those whose hearts proudly beat around me with the more than regal—the richer than imperial blood of Pocahontas—remember their illustrious ancestress this day! May they emulate her merciful spirit! May they prove their pure descent by their magnanimous actions! May they not refuse to extend, without risk, to a young countryman wholly in their power, the mercy which she risked her life to show to a stranger, an alien and an enemy."

THE HOUSE PRINTING.—Reports have been industriously circulated, no doubt by political opponents, that ex-Gov. Ford, in consequence of a want of capital, would be unable execute the house printing. This story is put to rest by a correspondent of the New-York Times, who remarks: "This statement, although preposterous in itself and utterly without foundation, has caused so much discussion in certain circles, that I deem it proper to say that so long as Mr. Ford confines himself honorably and with singleness of purpose to carrying out the legitimate ends for which he was elected, there is a well-known gentleman in this city, fully able and willing to stand by him, no matter what the expenditure may be, while engaged in the noble endeavor to [illegible] the corrupt practices lately [illegible] has passed a the Governor, Railroad monopolies and Amboys to be decided institutionality will no doubt, d between New

WHAT HIS OPPONENTS SAY OF HIM.—We take the following complimentary notice of Col. Curtin from the Clinton Democrat, an administration paper, published by the present Deputy Secretary of the Commonwealth:

"Col. Curtin, the nominee for Governor, is well and favorably known to our people. He belongs to this Judicial, Congressional and Senatorial district, and during all his professional life has been one of the most prominent lawyers in this section of the State. As a politician he is bold, vigorous, and uncompromising. For twenty-five years he has been one of the sturdiest pillars of the Opposition in this quarter, under whatever name they sailed. In this quarter we have met him before as a leader, and we tell the Democracy everywhere to buckle on their armor, for they will have to meet a foeman worthy of their steel."

[Correspondence of the Daily Pittsburgh Gazette.]

HARRISBURG, March 14, 1860.

Eds. Gazette: In the Senate, this morning, the Neville Island Bridge Charter was reported favorably; an act relating to the Inspection of Domestic and Distilled Spirits, was reported with a negative recommendation; the act to which I have before referred, concerning turnpike, plank road and bridge companies, was reported back, pretty much in the shape it had assumed when referred; and the bill relative to the Pittsburgh, Fort Wayne & Chicago Railroad, was reported with amendment. It provides that the Auditor General, in adjusting the tax on the stock dividends of said road, shall estimate the stock at its cash value, provided the total sum to be paid the State shall not be less than $6000.

The bill relative to the Manufacturers' and Mechanics' Bank of Philadelphia passed finally, to-day, yeas 16, nays 7, and goes to the Governor. The Mifflin Bank bill also passed to third reading, yeas 16, nays 12.

The resolution relative to final adjournment came up, when Mr. McClure moved to strike out March 27 and insert April 3, in which shape it passed, yeas 25, nays 3. It will undoubtedly pass the House, and after this week night sessions will be held, to bring the work up to something like completion by the 1st of April.

The bill to regulate charges upon Railroad Companies came up in regular order, but was permitted to go over by general consent. At the time of writing, a committee of Pittsburgh-ers are in session with the officers of the Penn's Railroad, trying to come to some accommodation. What the result will be I cannot now say.

Two veto messages were received to-day. One vetoing a charter for a steam pile manufacturing company at Lancaster, was immediately taken up, and the question being, Shall the bill pass, notwithstanding the objections of the Governor? the yeas were 20, the nays 9. So the bill passed and goes to the House, where it will also, doubtless, pass by about the same proportionate vote.

The other veto was of the bill to compel the Cleveland & Pittsburgh Railroad Co., to fence its road in Beaver county. The Governor thinks the principle of the bill is a bad one, even if it were made general, and bases his veto both upon that ground and the ground that the bill is a special one. He says that under existing judicial decisions a man in Beaver county may be cast in damages for letting his cattle run at large on the Pittsburgh, Fort Wayne & Chicago Road, if they caused any accident thereon; while, under this bill, if his cattle were killed on the Cleveland & Pittsburgh Road, the company would by cast in damages. Mr. Hamilton's veto to postpone the further consideration of the message, which was agreed to.

The Penal Code was then taken up on second reading, and Mr. Hall's motion to restore minimum punishments was lost, yeas 4, nays 16. The bill was then progressed with as far as the 24th section, when it was amended by adding the passing of counterfeit notes to the offences which it makes it a misdemeanor to conceal the knowledge of. The 11th section was so amended as to make it a misdemeanor to disuade or hinder a witness from testifying, as well in civil as in criminal cases. The 20th section was amended so as to include jails or private edifices in the list of buildings which it is made a misdemeanor to pull down, demolish or destroy. All these amendments were offered by Mr. Hall.

The 24th section, respecting libel, as reported by the commissioners to revise the code, contained a proviso including the libel law of 1856, which authorizes the truth to be given in evidence in criminal prosecutions for libel. The Judiciary Committee struck out this proviso, so as to restore the old law of libel. Mr. Turney moved to reinsert the proviso, which he supported warmly, and was replied to by Messrs Penney and Finney. Pending the motion, Senate adjourned.

In the House, the bill to charter the Western Pennsylvania Railway Co., which is a bill to incorporate the mortgage bond holders of the Northwestern road, was taken up and discussed fully. It passed to a third reading, and was made the special order for Monday next.

The remainder of the morning session in the House was occupied with a discussion of a Susquehanna Boom bill The afternoon session devoted to the Free Banking law, which passed to a third reading, but the majority was unable to suspend the rules, the vote standing, yeas 55, nays 54. I am more and more convinced that this bill ought not to pass; but it seems that it will pass the House.

The evening session was devoted as usual to the Militia bill, which drags its slow length along. R.

THE CONTRACT SYSTEM OF PUBLIC PRINTING.—In his remarks in the House the other day, in favor of establishing a government printing office, Mr. Gurley stating the difficulties of the contract system, said:

"The resolution which directs our attention to the subject, suggests a plan of letting out the work to the lowest bidder. That plan has been fully and fairly tested by government, and has failed to meet the just expectations of Congress. It is true, there is an apparent fairness in this lowest-bidder contract system, but the records of the government show that it has been worse cheated and swindled under that system than any other. Beside, parties who lose money on their contracts will, and do, demand of Congress full compensation. Two gentlemen of this city contracted, several years ago, to do the public printing, but alleged, when it was done, that they had lost money, and came to Congress with a claim, and received by way of compensation, the sum of $70,000. These claims are based upon the principle that the government must pay its agents honest wages, but I fear that, when the said claims are allowed, they receive double wages. O. Wendell received the printing by contracts on the same plan; and it was so badly done, that it has been a question of serious consideration with the Superintendent of the Public Printing, whether all those works printed by him under that contract should not be reprinted. Other parties once took a contract at twenty per cent off from the old prices established in 1819; and they came to Congress for compensation, and received $52,000.

Boyd Hamilton took the contracts for the printing of one Congress, under the system of letting it out to the lowest bidder, and broke down before the middle of the first session. Congress took the contract from him, and then was adopted the present law upon the subject of the general printing Experience, therefore, as I have shown, has demonstrated that if persons take contracts for the public printing at a lower rate than they can afford, somebody or some parties are bound to be cheated—either the government or those who execute the work. Ordinarily, it will be very poorly done; it will be slow of execution; and if losses are sustained by contractors, they are sure to come before Congress, and present in a demand for compensation; and a good deal more than a fair compensation is generally asked, and often allowed."

A TERRIBLE MEETING.—For some time past a house of ill-fame has annoyed the citizens of a village on the line of the Cleveland and Columbus railroad, and it was determined that the house should be broken up. On Thursday night the Marshal of the village made a descent upon the house, took the inmates into custody, and yesterday morning they were taken before a magistrate for examination. There were three girls among the prisoners, and after the case of the magistrate fell upon one of them he grew deathly pale and hastily adjourned the court. Among those wretched and abandoned girls, he recognized the once fair features of his own daughter. Several years before, while attending a female seminary in an Eastern State, she had eloped with a worthless fellow, and her father had never heard of or seen her until that terrible morning. Deserted by her husband, she adopted a life of prostitution, and wandered to the West. Her father, unknown to her moved also to the West, and settled in the village above alluded to.—Cleveland Plaindealer, March 10.

FEMALE DICTATION IN CONGRESS.—During the progress of the balloting for speaker, in the House of Representatives, many ludicrous scenes transpired. One in particular, excited a great deal of mirth. As Barksdale was urging all the opposition elements to unite on McClernand, a lady in one of the front seats in the gallery was observed to become very much excited. She coughed, made signs, and by other means attempted to attract the attention of a member below. Not succeeding, she leaned far over the balcony, and in an audible whisper exclaimed, "David, David, change your vote, you booby!"—The honorable member looked up, recognized his better half, colored, hesitated stammered and then instantly changed his—seat. A small, delicate fist was shaken at him from the gallery, amid the suppressed mirth of the spectators.—Boston Courier.

A NOBLE SENTIMENT.—In Alexander Hamilton's first political speech occur these eloquent words: "The sacred rights of mankind are not to be rummaged for among old parchments or musty records; they are written as with a sunbeam in the whole volume of human nature, by the hand of Divinity itself, and can never be erased or obscured by mortal power."

AN ARTFUL DODGE.—At the Reading Convention, "the Democracy" undertook to bury Buchanan to call every FORTNIGHT between New York, Southampton and Havre.
