PITTSBURGH:
TUESDAY MORNING, APRIL 3, 1860.

FOR GOVERNOR,

HON. ANDREW G. CURTIN,
OF CENTRE COUNTY.

☞ TO ADVERTISERS.—The Pittsburgh DAILY GAZETTE has a large circulation among the business men in this and the surrounding cities—among those who sow and who reap—and among manufacturers and producers. It may be found in nearly all the counting rooms, store houses, banking houses, hotels, factories and commission houses in the two cities, where it is read and carried home to the families for perusal. As a medium for advertising, therefore, it offers inducements which no other paper in Western Pennsylvania can offer, to all who desire to reach this large class of our citizens. The WEEKLY GAZETTE of Pennsylvania, Ohio and Virginia, among substantial farmers and merchants, does say other secular paper in this section of the State.

THE PRESS AND THE PRESIDENT.—The leading journals of the country and their Washington correspondents, with the exception of a few in the interest of the administration, all unite in condemning the extraordinary and indefensible position assumed by the President in his late message to the House. His exaltation of the Executive prerogative above the legislative privileges guaranteed by the Constitution finds no sympathy in any quarter where honest opinions are independently expressed. From a number of extracts before us we have been tempted to present a few to the readers of the Gazette. The Washington correspondent of the Philadelphia North American, under date of March 30th, says:

"Any attempt to limit the constitutional powers of the House or to set up Executive authority against its privileges can only be attended with one result when the question is fairly presented to the people. The suggestion of the President that 'the tendency of the government was to the aggrandizement of the legislature at the expense of the executive and judicial departments,' is contradicted by the whole experience of the last fifty years. Precisely the reverse is true, and it results from the vast patronage wielded by the executive, and the steady and increasing power acquired through its influence over the other departments. The one man power is now felt more tyrannically in this country than in the most absolute despotism of Europe, and it is only necessary to point to the proceedings of the last Congress to prove how overshadowing and controlling it is in legislation. There was at the outset a clear and emphatic majority in the House against the President's Lecompton policy, which melted away and became transformed into a majority in favor of it, by the direct agency of patronage and other appliances. The fact is morally established and perhaps will be legally proved before one of the committees. The President's personal knowledge, therefore, is a positive contradiction of his assumption that Congress was encroaching upon the rights of the executive. After the charges which have been circulated through the country, and especially after the evidence before the Committee of Public Expenditures, in regard to the distribution of the profits of the Post Office blanks, for the purpose of supporting the President's organs here and in Philadelphia, it became his and every member of his cabinet to court the fullest investigation, and not to obstruct it by any objection whatever, or to interpose the least obstacle to the most searching scrutiny."

"Occasional" of Forney's Press is still more severe in his strictures on Mr. Buchanan's doctrine that the President, like the King, can do no wrong:

"The effect of the President's pitiable protest to the House of Representatives, yesterday afternoon, may be seen in the extraordinary vote upon its reference to the Committee on the Judiciary, of which Hon. John Hickman is the chairman. A majority of 86, in a body almost equally divided between the two great parties, confiding a great state paper to a committee headed by one of the ablest, and most gifted and fearless members of the general Opposition, is a remarkable commentary upon the argument and exhortation of the first officer in the Republic. When it was read, it was received with mingled indignation and scorn. Those who attempted to defend it seemed to feel as if they had undertaken a hopeless task. Mr. Bocock, ingenious and able as he usually is, dwindled into the special pleader, and lost the statesman in the partisan. A masterly and overwhelming reply may be expected from Mr. Hickman in a few days. He will analize the absurdities and expose the inconsistencies of the protest, and will thus furnish another reason to the many on record that the President has lost all claim to public consideration or confidence.

There can be no doubt that the immediate cause of this protest is the scathing report of the Hon. John B. Haskin. Mr. Covode's committee have not yet taken steps to carry out the instructions of the resolutions under which they were appointed. It was Mr. Haskin that presented the property of the duplicity and recklessness of the President in his management of party politics, and of the pernicious example he has set by the lavish expenditure of the public money. And his was the goad that has caused the President to cry out."

The usually cool and courteous correspondent of the New York Commercial, remarks, in a late letter, as follows:

"President Buchanan's official conduct may be sans tache, but it is evident that he is not sans peur. Did he not dread the disclosures which might be made of the manner in which money has been used—perhaps by his circulation—in opposing those who have opposed him, and did he not know that Wendell and other dishonoring agents are ready to give evidence against him, he doubtless would not be so anxious to avoid an investigation of certain events.

"Should the House insist, and should he use his official authority in defending his prerogative, we shall see one branch of Congress set at defiance by a witness, while the other branch keeps incarcerated a gentleman whose only crime is that he also thinks that he cannot be forced to testify. Yet what partiality, what selfishness of the United States, has Mr. Buchanan more than Mr. Hyatt?"

We might fill a column with similar extracts, but the above must suffice for the present. In the meantime the attention of the country will be earnestly directed to the popular branch of our national legislature until this singular controversy between that body and the President shall have been decided.

THE PRESIDENCY.—The Bradford (Pa.) Reporter—a radical Republican journal, hitherto regarded as opposed to Senator Cameron—last week came out with a long and able article on the Presidency, in which it takes ground in favor of his nomination by the Chicago Convention. The Reporter is published in the heart of the "Wilmot District."

"There is no lack of men in the Republican party who would adorn the Presidential chair—men who if nominated would command the respect and support of every Republican. Such is Preston King, Hamlin, Trumbull, Fessenden, Wade, Collamer, Chase, and many others, who have given ample evidence of their ability and devotion to Republican principles. The Convention can hardly make a mistake amongst the prominent men in our ranks.

But a careful survey of the whole field—a calm and unprejudiced weighing of all the considerations which have been urged in regard to the nominee—bring us nearer home in our judgment to the man emphatically and unquestionably to be voted out as the one to win the great fight of 1860, and at the same time to secure to our principles all the advantages of victory. That man is Simon Cameron, who will go before the Chicago Convention, as the choice of the Keystone State. To the endorsement of Pennsylvania, may be added even weightier reasons which have brought him prominently before the public as the man upon whom the choice of the Chicago Convention should fall. What Seward may lack in availability, and Bates in identity with the Republican organization, are not wanting to him, while the prominent points of recommendation in both, are happily combined in the name of Simon Cameron. To the radical Republicans (in which category we class ourselves) he presents a record without a flaw. When the Wilmot proviso was offered, he was a Senator in Congress, and steadfastly supported that measure. Through the memorable struggle with the power of a Democratic Administration was brought to bear, to seduce or drive men from the support of the cause of Freedom, Simon Cameron stood its unflinching advocate. While men with greater renown than himself, were faltering and falling, he stood true amongst the gallant men who were unseduced by patronage, and unawed by power. A supporter of Fremont in 1856, he has, in his Senatorial career, sustained with entire consistency, the cause of Freedom. Undeviating in his attachments to, and his support of, the principles of the Republican party, he is nevertheless not obnoxious to that conservative feeling which is an element of considerable strength in Pennsylvania and New Jersey. His position on the subject of protection to the great interests of Pennsylvania, commands for him the respect and support of those who are looking to Congress for some measure of relief for the present depression of our industrial pursuits.

We will not say that we cannot carry Pennsylvania and New Jersey for the Chicago nominee whoever he may be. We have the strongest grounds to hope for such a favorable result. But with Simon Cameron as our candidate, success in these two States is not doubtful. The Republican counties would roll up for him their majorities by the thousands, and in the lower counties where the battle is to be lost or gained he would thoroughly demoralize the discipline of the Democratic party, and make such inroads into their ranks as no other man is capable of doing. No prominent politician has such hosts of warm friends amongst our opponents, as Simon Cameron. Formerly a democrat, his devotion to friends, and his open-handed liberality has made him personal friends, who scorn the shackles of party when an opportunity occurs to repay the favors they have received at his hands. There is not a single element of the Opposition party in this State, which would not rally with enthusiasm to his support. An old-fashioned Jackson majority would attest to the country, that although the best abused man in the nation, yet his sterling qualities, generous nature, and consistent career have gained him the confidence of our people."

THIS is the day fixed for the final adjournment of the State Legislature, and as there is no probability that the session will be extended, we may conclude that at noon to-day it will cease to have an official existence.

THE REPUBLICAN POLICY.—In an address at Providence, Rhode Island, some evenings since, Hon. Henry B. Stanton, of New York, thus defined the proposed policy of the Republican party:

In regard to Slavery in the States, we insist upon non-interference therewith by the people of the North. In respect to the Territories, we demand that the policy of the fathers be restored. We do not say that under all circumstances, and in every case in which a Territory is organized, Congress shall expressly inhibit Slavery therein. But we do and shall insist that the constitutionality of its power to do this shall be recognized and respected everywhere, and by all Courts and Legislatures and functionaries, and that whenever the cause of free labor shall seem to demand that the principle of the Jeffersonian Ordinance be incorporated into the act of organization, then the power shall always be exercised. [Great cheering.] As to a Congressional Slave Code, we hold that the Federal Government has no more power to create a slave code than it has to set up a King; no more authority to establish Slavery in a Territory, than it has to erect a monarchy. There, this is our notice—No more Slave States! and no Slave Territories!" [Loud and prolonged applause.]

As to the annexation of new territories to this Union, I have to say, that while the Republican Party will not persistently resist—but, on the country, will encourage—such future expansion of the Republic, Southward and Northward, by means of fair purchase and honorable negotiation, as a wise policy shall dictate, yet it does proclaim that such expansion shall never enure to the benefit of Slavery. And if in coming time, the adventurous hand of a Kane shall set up our National standard among the perpetual ices of Labrador or Greenland, or the other arm of a Walker shall erect it among the perennial verdure of Nicaragua or Costa Rica—whether our flag float from the walls of Quebec or the Moro Castle, or San Juan del Sur—whether it stream out defiantly on the hurricane of the tropics, or droop in stiffened folds among the icy gales of the Arctic Circle—wherever it displays the gorgeous stars and stripes, it shall never wave, God helping us, over aught but free soil, to be cultivated by free men forever. [Cheers, applause, and stampings.]

As to the African Slave-trade, with its indescribable horrors, it is "piracy" now by the laws of our own country, and by the laws of all civilized nations, and if our policy prevails it shall remain piracy through all time. Let this hellborn traffic be censured! Let that party which would revive this monster Diabolism, upon which three generations have set their condemnation seal, be branded with infamy. [Great applause.]

A WASHINGTON correspondent of The Boston Traveler says that the vexed question as to the proper pronunciation of the word "inquiry" was settled yesterday in the Senate, in a manner approaching in dignity almost to the legislative excitement. Mr. Hale, in offering his resolution in regard to the capture of the Mexican vessels said it was a resolution of "inquiry," placing the accent upon the first syllable, as is the habit of some Senators. Upon this Mr. Sumner, who sits next to Mr. Hale, said, sufficiently loud for his friend to hear, "Please say 'inquiry'" emphasizing the second syllable, according to Webster. Mr. Hale, who was still upon his feet, said, "Inquiry" I mean. I ask pardon of the Senate for saying inquiry!"

OPENING OF THE PENNSYLVANIA CANALS.—We are authorized to say that the water has been let into the Pennsylvania Canal throughout its whole extent. On portions of the Juniata and Western Divisions boats are now passing, and the whole Canal will be navigable by Monday next. The Tide Water canal and the Wyoming canal are now open and in operation, and the West Branch and Susquehanna canals will be filled in the course of next week. That portion of the latter between Northumberland and the Junction, at Duncan's Island, will be ready for boats to pass on Monday or Tuesday next, so that the Canals of our State may be said to open this season on the first of April.—Harrisburg Telegraph.

[COMMUNICATED]

NOTICE!—Having sold my interest in the Wheeler & Wilson Sewing Machine business to Messrs. WILLIAM SUMNER & CO., of Cincinnati, for a fair consideration, I most respectfully and with full confidence recommend them to the public as every way worthy of their esteem and patronage. Mr. WILLIAM SUMNER will continue the business at my office, No. 63 Fifth street, until the 10th of April; afterward at their own office, No. 77 Fifth street.

As to the decided merits of Wheeler & Wilson's Sewing Machines over all others, it is scarcely necessary for me, at this time, to refer, as the community has long since decided them to be "the best for all family purposes," but would merely state that after three years' experience in the Sewing Machine business, I have not found the slightest cause to alter my opinion of this truly the greatest of labor saving machines. In bidding my friends and friends for sale in the business, I would say it affords me pleasure to commend Mr. SUMNER & CO. the same generous influence and courtesy that they have at all times been ready to grant to me, and to those in this community who have not purchased a Sewing Machine, I would ask it as a favor to themselves that they would examine Wheeler & Wilson's before being induced to buy any other, as I am sure they are but a newspaper notoriety to recommend them to the public.

Yours, with respect,
ALEX. R. REED,

Children are often seized very suddenly with this disease, which, if not quickly relieved, proves fatal. It generally attacks them in the night, after having been much exposed to damp, cold winds through the day. Damp beds, wet feet, thin shoes, wet clothes, or anything that obstructs perspiration, may occasion Croup. Mothers! your children are liable to be taken with this dread complaint at a moment when you least expect it; but it is not always a doctor can be called or a remedy found; and for this reason we would advise you now, and without a moment's delay, to buy a bottle of Dr. HAYNE'S EXPECTORANT. It will cure every case of Croup, if taken in time, and all complaints at ending Teething, Convulsions, Colds, &c. It is sold by all respectable druggists throughout the country. Save Your Carpets!

THE great enquiry has been made for a number of years by housekeepers, What shall we put under our carpets to protect them from wear and mash—This grand and valuable discovery was effected and patented April 1st, 1859, by J. R. HARRINGTON, and is called Harrington's Patent Carpet Lining.

This article having proved its utility has now come into general use, so much so that scarcely a carpet will be put down with out it, and its cheapness puts it within the reach of every family. It is warranted to add fifty per cent. to the durability of Carpets, Oil Cloths and Matting. The details of its merits are too numerous to mention. It can be obtained at any of the principal Carpet Stores throughout the United States, and is manufactured only by the NEW YORK CARPET LINING COMPANY.

Also, extensive manufacturers of MAMMOTH COTTON BATTING AND COMFORTABLES, the best and cheapest that have ever been introduced in the market.

Office 11 Dey St., Salesroom 440 Pearl Street.

Prince Imperial Champagne.

FROM EPERNAY,
DE VENOGE & CO, FRANCE.

Sold by all respectable Dealers throughout the Country.

THIS fine brand of CHAMPAGNE, which until the past year was confined exclusively to the best tables of the Continent of Europe, has now obtained the most unbounded success and popularity in this country. It is recommended by some of the first Physicians of the city of New York, over all other wines, on account of its extreme purity and delicacy, and those who once try it rarely use any other brand. Although one year has elapsed since its introduction into the country, the demand is enormous and constantly increasing. Our arrangements are such as to ensure the quality of the Wine being maintained at its present high standard. The Prince Imperial is imported solely by us, we being the sole agents of Messrs. De Vogue & Co. in this country.

Sold in this city by MILLER & RICKETSON.
