Dr. R. A. Wilson's Tonic, Cathartic and Anti-Dyspeptic PILLS.

WILSON'S PILLS have had a mere local existence for over twenty years, unsupported by advertising of any kind, and held at double the price of what they are now sold at, yet with all these disadvantages, wherever used they have in no instance failed to render the utmost satisfaction in performing all the requirements of a valuable family medicine, and as such are recommended by some of the most worthy and responsible citizens of the land. Hear for instance what Col. William Hopkins, of Washington, Pa., says:

From Col. Wm. Hopkins, late Canal Commissioner of the State
WASHINGTON, January 8, 1858.

DR. R. A. WILSON, Pittsburgh, Pa.—I have been using your Anti-Dyspeptic Pills, when occasion required, for many years, and can truthfully say that I have never found any medicine equal to them in relieving me from affections of the stomach and heart; they have never failed to relieve me from headache, and have always left my system in better condition than they found it. I most confidently commend your Pills as a safe and highly valuable medicine.
Yours, respectfully, WM. HOPKINS

Hear Dr. Keyser.
MESSRS B. L. FAHNESTOCK & Co.—I have had considerable experience in the use of the extraordinary Anti Pill compounded by Dr. R. Adams Wilson, of which you are now the proprietors, and have often felt their benign influence in my own case for Nervous Headaches, arising from a disordered condition of the stomach. I have likewise prescribed them for others, in cases of Amenorrœa and other forms of headache depending on a deranged and irritable condition of the stomach and digestive organs, for which they seem peculiarly adapted, being entirely free from any griping tendency. I regard them as a very valuable Pill, and use that purpose, without at all debilitating.

ST. NICHOLAS HOTEL,
BROADWAY,
NEW YORK.
WHEN completed six years ago the St. Nicholas was universally pronounced the most magnificent, convenient, and thoroughly organized establishment of the kind on the continent. What it was then it continues to do;—without a rival in size, to sumptuousness, and in the general economie of comfort and enjoyment.—The Hotel has accommodations for 1,000 guests, including 100 complete suites of apartments for families. Six hundred persons can be comfortably seated at the tables of its three public dining rooms, and nothing that modern art has devised for the convenience and social gratification of the traveling public has been omitted in its plan, or is neglected in its practical details. The early reputation of the house at home and abroad, is distinct from its magnitude, its superb appointments, and its home-like comforts and luxuries, has been enhanced every year by the unwearied exertions of the proprietors

PUBLISHED DAILY AND WEEKLY BY
R. ERRETT & CO.,
FIFTH STREET, ABOVE SMITHFIELD.
PITTSBURGH:
SATURDAY MORNING, JUNE 16.

DESCRIPTION OF THE SENATE DURING SUMNER'S SPEECH.—An occasional correspondent of the Boston Atlas & Bee, thus describes the Scene in the Senate Chamber during the delivery of Charles Sumner's great anti Slavery speech:

Yesterday Senator Sumner made his long expected speech. It was understood that he would commence at 12 o'clock. Long before that time the Galleries were filled to overflowing; nearly one half were ladies. The business of the morning went on quietly till nearly 12, when Southern Senators could be seen quietly leaving the Hall, by the side doors. When the clock told the hour of 12, scarcely a dozen were left. But a goyer or more brilliant audience never graced the galleries than on this occasion—Every available seat upon the Republican side was literally packed with eager listeners. When the tall Massachusetts Senator arose, a dead silence fell upon the crowded hall and galleries. The slightest modulation of his voice was distinctly audible to the most distant hearer.

His opening was very impressive and eloquent. You can imagine his style, his manner, and the profound impression it made upon his vast auditory, when he said, "I have no personal griefs to utter, only a barbarous egotism could intrude those into this chamber. I have no personal wrongs to average, only a barbarous nature could attempt to weild that vegeance, which belongs to the Lord. The years that have intervened, and the tombs that have opened since I spoke, have their voices too, which I cannot fail to hear."

He then proceeded with the most elaborate and terrible argument against the institution of slavery ever delivered upon that floor, or anywhere else. It was terrible, because it was true. At times the speaker dropped the thread of his argument, and rose in the most sublime and impassioned flights of eloquence. It was the first time it had ever been my fortune to listen to the eloquent Senator. It is needless to attempt to give you any idea of what he said, as his speech ere this has reached you. The scene in the Senate may be worthy of a description. But I will say, that although much of the speech dealt in statistics and in the details of slavery, it was filled full of passages of the most lofty eloquence. He said "slavery was a bloody touch-me-not, and every where in sight now blooms the bloody flower. It is on the wayside as you approach the National Capitol; it is on the marble steps that we mount; it flaunts on the floor." "I stand now in the house of my friends." Menaces to deter me have not been wanting. But I should ill deserve this high post of duty here, with which I have been honored by a generous and enlightened people, if I could hesitate. Slavery can only be painted in the sternest colors; and I cannot forget that nature's sternest "painter has been called the brst".

And I assure you, the picture has not spoiled by any lack of sternness. It would be useless to describe the manners of Mr. Sumner to most of your readers. His whole manner discloses the ripe scholar, the finished legician, and the most accomplished rhetorician and elocutionist. His sentences fall in measured cadences, musical and rythmetical; his gestures are graceful and appropriate; his elocution distinct; his quotations classic, apt and appropriate; in short, he is the most finished scholar and the most graceful orator in the Senate.

He said "Slavery was the same in all conditions, whether high or low, as Satan was Satan still whether towering in the sky, or squatting in the toad." It was doubtless the most fiery ordeal through which these arrogant and boasting Senators ever passed. There was a studied effort at indifference among them. Senators Hunter of Virginia listened respectfully, to its close. Not a muscle moved on his placid countenance to denote what was going on in his mind. Wigfall, the Texas Bombastes, was in great excitement. He would keep his seat for a few moments quietly, as if struggling to be a gentleman; then he would glide round noiselessly to some other Senator's seat, and confer in low whispers, as if debating whether it was best to remain quiet or not.

Mr Breckinridge, who was not in the President's chair, remained through the entire delivery. He made a strong effort to appear indifferent, sitting with an open book in his hand, listlessly turning its pages, but his eyes turning to the speaker, and finally, with a frown upon his brow, he laid aside his book and regarded the speaker intently till he closed. After an hour or two the absent Senators began to come back, and one after another dropped into their seats. Jeff Davis was busily engaged reading the Globe, but a glance at the heading disclosed the fact that it was upside down.

Keitt, the accomplice of Brooks in his attempted assassination of Mr. Sumner, came in from the other House, and with much nonchalance took his seat near Senator Hammond, and turned his monkey's face up to the galleries, as if to note the dramatic effect of his presence upon them. But finding that no one seemed to notice him, he gradually began to give heed to the speech. Then his vulgar phiz became disturbed with angry grimaces and frowns.

By this time many Democratic members of the other House had come over to hear Sumner, so that with them and the returning Senators, the body of the Senate chamber was as densely crowded as the galleries. Mr. Sumner spoke four hours, and held his immense audience, which could not have been less than five thousand, to its close. It was a most remarkable effort, and take it all in all, it was a scene and an occasion never to be forgotten.

THE FAILURE IN MEXICO.—Jecker & Co., bankers, held a relation towards the Miramon government in Mexico, similar to that of the Rothschilds towards the government of Austria. They supplied the Reactionists and the Church party with money, taking in exchange bonds, some of which promised fifteen per cent interest; for at that heavy rate the Mexican government has lately been obliged to promise to pay for the use of money borrowed. The house of Jecker & Co., has failed, with liabilities amounting to nearly five millions. The failure has brought distress upon an immense number of Mexicans, who deposited their little savings with this house. The failure was caused by "a run" which was commenced by the Liberals, who have naturally looked with jealousy upon the house that furnished the sinews of war to their enemies. The whole amount of deposits, when the run commenced, is said to have been about eight millions. Two or three millions were drawn out before the doors were closed.

The failure of this house will involve losses also outside of Mexico, for their bills have been in great demand for remittance abroad during the revolutionary troubles, and the aggregate amount of these now in or on the way to Europe, must be very great. Politically the disaster may have a great effect. It deprives the Reactionists of their chief reliance, and it is hard to see how they can now continue to keep up their expensive army and government. There is no banking house that is either able or willing to furnish supplies on the worthless security of new bonds, however usurious the rate of interest. If the Juarez party can contrive to get on its feet, so that its rival action has lost its chief support, it may make a little progress. The defeat of the treaty in the United States Senate is however, a terrible blow to the Juarez party, for which not even the failure of Miramon's bankers can console them. It is quite likely that before Congress adjourns an effort will be made by Mr. Buchanan, in view of the late failure in Mexico, to have the treaty reconsidered and ratified. But the effort is not likely to succeed. Mr. Buchanan's influence with the Senate diminishes daily, as the end of his Presidency draws near.—Phil. Bull.

THE Emperor of the French is said to be more and more dissatisfied with the Piedmontese, who, his Majesty seems to believe, are (to use a vulgar phrase) "coming the old soldier over him." When Savoy was to be handed over to France it is clear that it was not the Savoyards who have been converted into French citizens that were meant, but something quite as valuable—namely, the land that bore them. Now, it is very well to fight for an idea, but, after all, a bargain is a bargain. The Piedmontese do not appear to have as good a notion of this elementary maxim as people at the Tuileries, and the former have employed the interval before the ratification of the treaty in selling, as fast as they can, and to the highest bidder, not merely the personal property of Victor Emanuel, but the Crown lands which should revert to France. This is rather sharp practice. France, doubtless, glories in her new subjects, but if they bring nothing with them there will be matter for complaint.

THE prospects for a crop in this county were never more flattering than at the present time. If we except wheat, of which there will not be more than one-third of the usual amount. We were informed a few days since, by one of the best farmers in Middle Tennessee, that he had not seen such prospects for twenty years.—Lebanon (Tenn.) Democrat.
