THE TARIFF.

The vote in the Senate, postponing the Tariff bill until next winter, is clearly indicative of the purpose of the party in power not to provide for the sufferings of our neglected national industry. The Democratic majority in that body has fully and fatally decided that the tariff shall not be altered. They are obeying the directions of Mr. Cobb, Mr. Buchanan's Secretary of the Treasury, who prefers raising money by a loan rather than from any such revenue measure as shall gratify the people of Pennsylvania, who elected Mr. Buchanan, and thus helped Mr. Cobb to the throne where he and the Democratic Senators so proudly lord it over the Pennsylvanians. The feeble voice of Bigler alone, of all the Democratic Senators, has been raised in behalf of protection; but no one heeds what he says, even in his own party.

It is deeply to be regretted that such should be the case. The true friends of the country in Congress have shown their desire to take this question out of politics and settle it now, before the heat of a Presidential election sets in. But the democratic majority will not permit it, and but one course is left. We appeal to Cæsar. The aristocrats of the Senate may, for the moment, treat us thus scornfully, but they cannot shut us out from carrying an appeal from them to the people. It is not our fault that this question is thus thrown into the arena of party politics. We would much prefer having the Tariff now, to waiting a year for it; but if we cannot get it now, we must take the only course left us and ask the people to exercise the power they possess, and by their course at the elections in October and November next, to decide whether the next Congress shall pass the Morrill bill or one similar to it. So long as the popular vote of Pennsylvania is given to Democratic candidates for the Presidency, the Governorship, or Congress, there can be no hope for protection. The Democratic Senators expect that party drill and dread of offending the free-trade Southern States will still secure the vote of Pennsylvania for the Baltimore nominee, whoever he may be. This game, however, is played out, and the people of Pennsylvania have at last learned that they can have no hope under Democratic rule, and that their only true, safe and manly course is to go for men distinctly pledged in favor of protection to American industry.

THOSE VOTES OF CENSURE.—The votes of censure, in the House, upon the President and Secretary of the Navy for the corruptions prevalent in the Navy Department and carried on with their knowledge and approval, convey a most stinging rebuke to those individuals. The vote was two to one—an overwhelming condemnation in a House that was able to elect a Republican Speaker after a nine week's struggle, by the bare majority of one. No President was ever before so rebuked; and if James Buchanan and his Cabinet had the least particle of self-respect they would resign instantly upon the rendering of such a verdict against them. In any other government than ours they would not be permitted to hold office an hour after such a vote of censure. The Washington correspondent of the Philadelphia North American says:

"The vote of censure yesterday, upon the President and Secretary of the Navy, by the House of Representatives, is the sternest rebuke ever administered during our whole history. It was not a vote of no confidence, such as is familiar in the British Parliaments, but positive, unqualified and overwhelming condemnation, consisting of the strongest terms, and affecting the official honor and integrity of both the parties implicated. The resolutions declare that the Secretary of the Navy made contracts for live oak timber, in violation of law and in an improper manner, injurious to the public service. That the distribution of patronage in the Navy Yards among members of Congress was corrupting in its influence; and that the President and Secretary of the Navy, by awarding contracts to operate on pending elections, set a dangerous example deserving the reproof of the House.

"These resolutions were passed by a vote of nearly two to one, and by southern as well as northern representatives. Many democrats solicited pairs, in order to escape the record of an approving vote, and a few went directly against the Administration. Men of all parties are regarded in the negative—Democrats, Republicans and Americans, making up an aggregate of character and worth such as the House has rarely exhibited before. No member of the British ministry would remain an hour in office if the House of Commons should express emphatic disagreement with his political policy. But if his integrity should be impeached by a solemn expression, such as was given last night, he would be apt to hide his head in shame, or demand an inquiry by which his innocence might be established if he felt himself wronged.—Neither of these alternatives will be adopted here. The attractions of office are superior to any sentimental ideas of public duty."

GREELEY'S LETTER.—We have read Greeley's letter to Seward, carefully, and cannot say that we admire it. Perhaps, at the time, it was justifiable; but after the lapse of years, when many of the incidents it refers to are forgotten, it seems a very foolish letter and one which cannot fail to lower the writer in public estimation.

Nevertheless, Mr. Greeley did right in demanding it for publication. References had been made to it of an unjustifiable character, and nothing but its publication could dispel the false impressions caused by those references. There is nothing in the letter to sustain the charges brought against Mr. Greeley by the N. Y. Times and the N. Y. Courier & Enquirer, and the studied silence of those prints since publicity has been given it, shows that the letter contains no basis for the insinuations of which it was made the text. In that respect it is a triumphant vindication of Mr. Greeley; and we trust that the warfare made upon him by those to whom it was shown without much regard for the sacredness of private correspondence, and who seem to have thoroughly misapprehended its contents, will now cease.

MONTGOMERY.—The great Montgomery stated, when a candidate for Congress in 1858, that the President had offered him the best office in his gift to change his position on the Lecompton question, and the like, but when sent for, lately, by the Covode Committee, to make good the allegation, he refused to attend. He was evidently drawing a long bow in 1858, and is afraid of being exposed.

The Democrats of Illinois have nominated JAMES C. ALLEN for Governor. This is the Allen who was Clerk of the last House of Representatives at Washington, and who distinguished himself infamously by the manner in which he presided during the late prolonged contest for Speaker. He showed himself to be, in that contest, an unscrupulous partisan, and was probably cursed more heartily than any other official ever was in Washington. His partiality and inefficiency were in striking contrast with the strict impartiality shown by Mr. Forney in a previous and similar contest. There was but little struggle in the convention for the nomination which has been awarded him; and it seems to be considered a settled thing in Illinois that YATES, the Republican candidate, will beat him out of sight.

THOSE FRAUDULENT PAPERS.—Mr. KATES, the witness from Reading, is detained at Washington by the Covode Committee until the fraudulent naturalization papers, which he confesses having, are received.

It now appears some 6,000 were issued in the last Presidential election, and information has been obtained at whose office they were printed in Philadelphia. Most of the papers were issued to persons professing to have come to the United States before 18 years of age, which did not require them to file a declaration of intention, and may serve as a means of detection.

ANOTHER RECRUIT.—The temporary Chairman of the Republican Convention lately held in Ohio, was Judge PALMER, of Hancock county. Upon taking the Chair, he said this was the first Republican Convention he had ever attended; he had voted for James Buchanan, but hoped God had forgiven him for that sin. The Judge is not alone in entertaining such a hope.

VIRGINIA REPUBLICAN ADDRESS.—We have received from Wheeling a copy of the "Address and Resolutions adopted at the Republican State Convention held in Wheeling, May 2, 1860." It is a neat pamphlet of eight pages, and its free circulation in Virginia would do the Republican cause much good. For sale at the Intelligencer office, Wheeling, Va.

LAWRENCE COUNTY.—The following is the ticket nominated by the Republicans of Lawrence county:

Congress—Dr. John W. Wallace
Senate—Wm. M. Francis
Assembly—John W. Hazlehurst
Prothonotary—John Elder.
Commissioner—James Forrest.
Auditor—John H. Gormly.

INDIANA COUNTY.—The Republicans of this county have nominated Henry White for Congress, James W. Alexander for Assembly, and A. P. Thompson for Sheriff.

THE SICILIAN REVOLUTION,
[From the London Times, June 1]

CONFIRMATION OF GARIBALDI'S SUCCESS.—For some days we have been obliged to look upon the result of the Sicilian insurrection as doubtful. The confident dispatches, claiming victory after victory, which were issued by the Neapolitan government, together with the absence of any definite news from Garibaldi himself, gave some ground for alarm. Happily these fears are dissipated by the intelligence which we are able to publish to-day. Garibaldi entered Palermo on the 27th. The capitol of Sicily is in his hands. In spite of every deficiency the lovies commanded by the heroic Italian drove the troops from their positions. Henceforth Garibaldi has all the moral and material strength derived from the possession of the chief place in the island. Timely supplies of men and materials will be the fruits of victory. Its moral effects will be the discouragement of the army, and perhaps a large desertion to the ranks of the patriots. The whole interior of the country, together with its most important city, have now been wrested from the Royal authority. From one end to the other the island has been cleared of the Royal troops. It is now evident that the encounter at Calata Fimi was a victory for Garibaldi. Instead of the troops attacking him, it is probable that he drove them from their positions, and then hurried them on before him to Palermo. The troops have been driven out from their lines before the town, and probably only commanded the spot on which they are encamped. Far different is the position of the unconquered people. From the beginning it seems that the Sicilians have had confidence in their leader, for they have joined him in crowds, and coming to swell the adventurous ranks of Garibaldi in the open country. We must therefore now consider that he has achieved a glorious success. He has the country at his feet, and can obtain supplies of all kinds from the interior; he can communicate with his adherents in any part of the island, while the Royal garrisons are divided from each other, and intelligence can only pass between them by sea. Now that Palermo is taken, the fate of those other garrisons is sealed. They may fall one by one, none being strong enough to resist such a force as Garibaldi has at command without assistance from its neighbors.

The conduct of the Neapolitan naval officers is worthy of the men who allowed two merchant steamers to land some fifteen hundred enemies under fire at their guns in broad day. Their fidelity to the unfortunate city of Palermo, like their stupidity and sluggishness at Marsala. The Neapolitan squadron bombarded Palermo for several hours, and this before the insurgents had penetrated into the town. Doubtless the authorities well knew the feeling with which they are regarded, and are perhaps not far wrong in fancying that every Sicilian is a rebel. What damage has been done to the capital we have yet to learn, but it is to be hoped that the squadron succeeded no better in destroying innocent men's houses at Palermo than in stopping the transports of the conspirators a fortnight before.

Whatever be the course of events, it is now pretty plain that the Royal authority is overthrown in Sicily. The insurrection is as good as victorious when the whole people have risen against the government; when the Royal troops dare not stir out of their lines, and may be starved, except what is brought them by sea. It lapp's are we to welcome the island once more into the ranks of free communities. Terrible have been the sufferings of this unfortunate people; great has been their patience; noble their attachment to their recreant dynasty, until every human feeling must be violated, and the spectacle of daily increasing cruelty drove them to resistance. No tyrant of ancient days ever perpetrated greater crimes than have been permitted and encouraged by the Government of the last two Kings; no agent of cruelty deserved a more exemplary punishment than the Minister of Police, who have refined on all the tortures of Inquisition. At last the retribution has come, and Francis II. will explate by the loss of a valuable province his fathers crimes and his own. And well will it be for him if Sicily is his only loss. The volcanic soil of Southern Italy is, perhaps, on the eve of a general eruption. It will be remembered that three weeks ago it was doubtful whether Garibaldi intended to go to Sicily or Calabria. He, no doubt, made a good choice in effecting a descent on the island, which, with its resources and its comparatively numerous population, was bitterly hostile to the King. But great things might have been done also on the mainland.

Calabria is almost as disaffected as Sicily, and has been the scene of cruelties almost equal to those of Palermo. It is quite possible that the first news may be the signal for a sympathetic rising in that part of the country. If so, then the Sicilian drama will be played out at the sooner. The King has a large army, but he has more than enough to occupy it. Not only must Sicily be reinforced, but the state of Naples is such as to give grounds for anxiety, if not for alarm. The number of men who can be spared for any given spot is limited, and a general outbreak in the Southern Provinces of the Kingdom would prevent any reinforcement of the troops in Sicily, or, in other words, would throw the island into the hands of Garibaldi.

Some surprise may be expressed that the city of Naples, the seat of this bad Government, and the head-quarters of Ajossa, Director, of Police, and prime mover of the infamous police system, should not have been the scene of a successful insurrection. Certainly, the Governments of the Duke of Tuscany and the Duke of Modena were faultless in comparison with the rule of Ferdinand, and yet the latter was able to meet his fearful end as a King, while his brethern were driven out to whimper and plot in the Austrian capital. How is it that Naples has never been roused from its lethargy to liberate itself and all Southern Italy? The reason seems to be that the lazzaroni of the city, formidable for their number, their fierceness and organization, are the adherents of the King, while the malcontents belong to the more educated but less enterprising middle classes. Nothing is likely to make a revolution in Naples but a defection of the army, for the Liberals are too weak to oppose at once troops, police, and a sanguinary mob.

ITALY.

PARIS, Thursday, May 31.—A telegram received this morning from Naples confirms the news of the entrance of Garibaldi into Palermo.

Garibaldi, at the head of his volunteers, penetrated, flag in hand, into the center of the city during the bombardment, and established his head quarters there.

The loss in killed and wounded is very considerable.

A letter from Genoa states that Garibaldi had ordered the formation of eight regiments of infantry in Sicily, to take rank after the Piedmontese infantry.

Garibaldi's Victory at Calatafimi.—Genoa, May 27.—Dispatches have been received from Palermo by the Sardinian Government, which fully confirm not only the victory obtained by Garibaldi at Calatafimi over the 4,000 Neapolitans led by LANZA, but the more important one, which placed the highlis surrounding Palermo in the hands of the Sicilian patriots. The first of these victories is further contained in a letter addressed by Garibaldi himself to Rosolino Pilo, Count of Capace, from Calatafimi, under date of the 16th:

"Yesterday we fought and won. The enemy is flying towards Palermo. The population are in high spirits, and join my camp by thousands. To morrow I shall march on Alcamo. Tell the Sicilians that the hour is come to put an end to their slavery, and that we shall do it soon. Every arm is good for the brave; musket, sythe, hatchet, a nail at the top of a stick. Unite with me. Thwart the enemy's plans as much as possible—light bonfires upon the hights which surround the Neapolitan troops. During the night kill as many of the enemie's outpost sentries as you can. Intercept the communications; in a word, harrass the enemy as much as you are able. I hope to see you soon. Yours,

GARIBALDI."

I have just received the Proclamation of General Lanza, the alter ego of the King, on his landing in Sicily. It runs thus:

"Sicilians, on placing my foot on my native soil my heart is overwhelmed with grief rather than joy at seeing the City of Palermo reduced to ruin by the lamentable circumstances which now press upon it and weigh it down. Yet it is a consolation to me that I have been sent here by the august Sovereign as his Commissionary Extraordinary, with the power of the alter ego for the complete pacification of the Island which object having been obtained, the Prince of the Royal Family, already selected as Viceroy of his Majesty (by the grace of God) will appear among you. He would come with the mission of giving complete effect to all that can produce the greatest advantage. In the tempestuous struggles to which foreign aggressors urge you, civil courage, supported by the Royal troops, can alone support you. In the august name of the King, I accord an ample and generous pardon to all who have now been misled, and who will make their submission to the legitimate authorities."

This proclamation was torn in pieces by the Palermitans, and the Comitato published an answer, in which it spoke of the perjury of the Government, of the treachery which it had practiced towards the Sicilians, and of the impossibility of believing it.

The Insurgents' Projects.—The Patrie observes:

"We are assured that as soon as Palermo falls into the hands of the insurrectionist party a dictatorial decree will declare the island annexed to the new Italian Kingdom, which will be effected by universal suffrage. At the same time a Provisional Government of fifteen members will be formed by the most noted of the Sicilian leaders, under the Presidency of Garibaldi. This combination will have the effect of giving singular power and energy to the insurrection. The fall of Palermo is a question of days. The Government has foreseen this, and removed the archives of the different administrations from Palermo to Messina, to which the headquarters of Gen. Lanza will be transferred."

Garibaldi to the Priests.—The Nationalites, a French journal of Turin, publishes a fresh manifesto by Garibaldi. The document is thus worded:

"To the good priests. However it may turn out, whatever the destinies of Italy may become, this clergy, which now makes common cause with the oppressors of every country—this clergy, which buys foreign soldiers that they may fight against its Italian brethren—has devoted itself to the execration of future generations. It is a great consolation, however, and that is the promise that the true religion of Christ will not be lost, to see the priests in Sicily marching at the head of the people to combat against tyranny. Ugo Bassi! Verita! Guamaroli! Blanqui! You are not altogether dead. Dear martyrs! sacred champions of the national cause, in the day when your example shall be imitated by the foreign will have ceased to tread our s[oil], he will have ceased to be the master of [our] sons, our daughters, our wives, our patrimony, and our own persons.

GARIBALDI."

CAT FISH, do do
All well cured and recently inspected.
Our long business connection with the various fishing localities on the Lakes, (Erie, Huron, Michigan and Superior) has so increased our transactions with the fishermen, as to give us in this important branch of our trade (we now being by far the largest receivers of fresh water fish in the country,) and in order to have it receive the best possible attention, we have employed an experienced and competent man to devote his whole time to its management, and are in a position to offer more than ordinary advantages to buyers of Lake Fish, keeping constantly a complete assortment, and now have every variety of the choicest grades of Pound and Seine caught Fish, which we offer at rates that will compete with any other market, as we do not (knowingly) allow ourselves to be undersold.

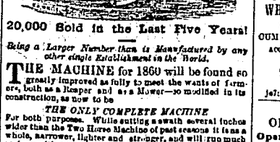
M'CORMICK'S REAPER AND MOWER.



20,000 Sold in the Last Five Years!
Being a Larger Number than is Manufactured by any other single Establishment in the World.
THE MACHINE for 1860 will be found so greatly improved as fully to meet the wants of farmers, both as a Reaper and as a Mower—so modified in its construction, as now to be THE ONLY COMPLETE MACHINE
For both purposes. While standing a wrath several inches wider than the Two Horse Machine of past seasons it runs as much easier—with no material side draft. The Reaper, therefore, for the coming season, a machine one foot wider than those of most makers, with a light draught for two horses in Reaping or Mowing—LIGHTER THAN IS REQUIRED BY MUCH NARROWER MACHINES. By the perfection of balancing of this machine, in connection with a patented semi-jointed tongue, (with the wheel frame,) the cutting apparatus, when mowing, is now easily thrown over obstructions while in motion, simply by the weight of the driver in his place, thus dispensing with all levers and complicated arrangements to effect the same object.
The machine of 1860 will be found superior as a MOWER, presenting some peculiar features not attainable by other machines. The Two Horse Machine, (long in use) is about five and one half feet wide, is of light and easy draught, accomplishing a greater amount of work with a less expenditure of power than any machine made.
A warrantee is given to every purchaser, and in addition, the following offer is made: Any farmer, who may desire it, is at liberty to work this machine through the harvest with any other, and PAY for the one PURCHASED.
For further particulars, as also for patent claims under which this machine is built, we refer to our annual pamphlets, which will be furnished on application to us, at Chicago, or either of our many agents.
Sample machines can be seen at all prominent points.
Price of machines delivered in Chicago, St. Louis, Indianapolis, Cincinnati, Louisville, Pittsburgh, Cleveland and Baltimore—charges following from these points:
For One Horse, complete.....$125
For Two Horses, complete.....140

Save Your Carpets!
THE great enquiry has been made for a number of years by housekeepers, What shall we put under our carpets to protect them from wear and moths? This grand and valuable discovery was effected and patented April 1st, 1856, by J. R. HARRINGTON, and is called Harrington's Patent Carpet Lining.
This article having proved its utility has now come into general use, as much so that scarcely a carpet will be put down with it, and the changes a year is within the reach of every family. It is warranted to add fifty per cent. to the durability of Carpets, Oil Cloths and Matting. The attention of dealers is solicited to examine it, and it can be obtained at any of the principal Carpet Stores throughout the United States, and of the manufacturer only by the NEW YORK CARPET LINING COMPANY.
Also, extensive manufacturers of HAMMOTH COTTON BATTING AND COMFORTABLES, the best and cheapest that have ever been introduced in the market.
