THURSDAY MORNING, AUGUST 2.

The Issue and the Work.

A vital moral principle underlies every great political struggle;—a power that, in spite of the ignorance of voters, the wickedness of debauched politicians, and the frauds of balloting, is still at work to make all results subservient to the high purposes of God's moral government of the world. Outwardly the conflict may seem to turn solely on the fitness of candidates for office; but moral forces are working forward an inevitable logical result, which has much of the precision of mathematics. It is inexorable in its judgments, and cannot be partial. On its long march, it never cannot be found a single "dispensing" to a state (Government). The fate of wrong and despotism is not only the Nemesis of Providence, but the philosophy of history.

However difficult it may be to define or locate the guilty called a public conscience, yet that there is such a thing cannot be doubted; and no more can it be questioned that a deliberate and wicked stifling or perversion of the moral sense in legislation, has been and must ever be visited with retributive judgments.—Whether this system of compensations be attributed to Providence, or to the intrinsic nature of moral law or action, the fact is certain, and the statesman, party, or nation that overlooks or denies it, must, sooner or later, pay the penalty or folly if not of impiety. Parties and men are sooner or later compelled to feel that there is in public affairs an aggregate moral force grander than themselves. Frequently in party contests the impersonal power fails to express itself. It remains silent though not inoperative. There is no appeal to the condition of moral life—the foundations of right are not perceptibly threatened—the conscience is not quickened by a sense of danger—the pulse of moral feeling is not arrested by any shameful insensibility to national faith or rectitude. The conflict intensifies, and is determined noiselessly, while the combatants have been propelled by an influence not recognised. In ordinary times, when no organic change of policy is demanded, and no principles of power are to be rebuked, but where a mere transfer of official authority sought, the turmoil, if any there be, can be left to itself. It is not dangerous, and will work itself out by exhaustion, or be arrested by the temperative action of the Government when the new Administration is inaugurated. In great crises, however, when a basis of principle is inevitable—when the national conscience must be tested—when patriotism and selfishness are to grapple in the fight—there must be a recognition of the true moral issue, and the right be steadily maintained, or demoralization and ruin will ensue.

We are now in the most eventful crisis that the history of our country has afforded. We do not regard even the probabilities of a national dissolution. There is reason for patriotic and Christian solicitude upon strictly moral grounds. On the result of the opening Presidential campaign depends the settlement of a question of vastly greater moment than the adjustment of a foreign policy or of domestic tariffs and improvements. The crisis is a historical development of causes long existing, and the result will be historical also. We begin to reap the fruits of a timid or ignorant temporising with issues that have been deferred only to gather fearfulness with each successive postponement. At this very small measure of sagacity at any time within twenty-five years past, could have foreseen the present chaos of parties and conflict of sectionalism. History, which is an embodiment of Providence, has been true to itself. It could not reverse its judgments or stultify its lessons. The wonder is that the settlement has not been hastened. God's vengeance might well be inferred from the long delay. When iniquity and oppression have clamored for their way, while the public conscience has been asleep; when ethics and politics have divorced, and organized wickedness has been nurtured, what but wasting wrath could be anticipated? And yet we have the opportunity for repentance and recovery by the victory of the right. But we must bring forth fruits meet for repentance. The danger is that this very opportunity may be lost through moral apathy or supine confidence in the mere force of circumstances.

We cannot afford to take for granted the success of the Republican party. We cannot afford to look complacently upon the divisions in the Democratic party as insuring the election of Mr. Lincoln. That party, though demoralized, is not dead. The untiring energy of the slave power now made desperate by threatened defeat, the unscrupulous tactics of trained politicians eager for place and pelf, will devise some expedient for prolonging that dynasty of corruption and misrule which has so long cursed the country. No mere luck will bring Lincoln to the Presidential chair. No accidental circumstances can insure a Republican victory. That victory is to be gained only by a steady, every-day working for it. The real issue must be wrought to the momentous conflict of principles involved in the canvass. There is a duty for every man to do—a local missionary work—in enlightening his neighbors, in arousing their enthusiasm for the right, and in bringing up the public conscience to that healthy and determined energy of tone which will make victory certain because it is just.

Quack Nostrums.

THE NEW YORK DAY BOOK says:

"Hall's Hair Dye, Hair Washes, Hair Dyes, Hair Tonics, Hair Oils, and the numerous preparations which are now before the public under such extravagant, hyperbolical and fantastic titles as are paraded in show windows, and newspaper positions, as half preparations, are all humbugs of the first water, their real merit, when they possess any, is that they do no harm. HOYT'S LIMAN OIL, LARD OIL, SWART OIL, scented and colored, make up, when in beautiful wrappers and white flint glass bottles, the soothing character of tonics and when the country, are baptized with some fairy-like name, and weighted for vendors young and old of both sexes. Such is not the character of Professor Wood's Hair Restorative. This gentleman comes before the world without any "high sounding" Allopathic-ation, or any other interesting and exciting catchpenny nonsense; he simply advertises a Medicated Restorative, what it says, it really is, and used as a Restorative it acts. Buy Professor Wood's Hair Restorative, and as you value your scalp, eye, your very brains, apply nothing else to it but it may be that you will get some worse than useless thing purchased lard oil on your cranium. Remember, Wood's Restorative for the Hair is the best article extant."

It Will, by Nature's own Process,

Restore Gray Hair to the Original Color,

Will make Hair Grow on Bald Habits,
Will restore the Natural Secretion,
Will for ever cut out Dandruff,
Will remove all impurities—never Scald Head,
Will make the Hair Soft and Glossy,
Will unite the old system young again,
Will prevent the Hair from falling off,
Will always Fasten it and stop its Falling,
And for all the best Toilet Articles for the Hair now in use.
