WILLIE Mr. Kelly and his colaborers are beating their gongs for the purpose of frightening the people natured "conservatives" of the North, we should not lose sight of another class of Southern citizens, who, if they are not as noisy, are certainly more influential than the fire-eating slavmists. With this class of people the election of Lincoln instead of being regarded as an incentive to treason, will be heralded as the harbinger of peace and harmony. The New York Courier & Enquirer relates an incident, the truth of which it corroborates, that occurred recently in that city. One of the largest slaveholders in the South was engaged in conversation with half a dozen democrats, when the subject of politics was introduced. He was induced to enter into a consultation with the dissolutists upon the course to be adopted by the South in case Lincoln should be elected, as they conceded he would be. He combatted disunion, and insisted that the rights of the South would be far safer in the hands of such men as Seward and Lincoln than they ever had been under Democratic rule, because, while they would necessarily prevent the extension of slavery into free territory, they would scrupulously stand by the constitutional rights of the Slave States;"—that "Lincoln's election would be a great national blessing and essentially beneficial to the South, as the harbinger of the return of peace and harmony in its relations with the North, and as calculated to determine forever all sectional controversies, by getting rid of corrupt and selfish political leaders, who find their interests in fostering sectional feeling at the South by deceiving the people in regard to the intentions and purposes of the Republican party."

This is not only a wise and correct view of the matter, but is undoubtedly the sentiment of all sensible and honest men at the South, and the practical Southerner to whom we refer gave a patriotic evidence that he had no fears on that point, by indignantly exclaiming, in answer to the threat of one of the disunionists that though Lincoln would undoubtedly be elected, no Southern man would consent to take office under him. "I am not in the habit of boasting of my intelligence or of my wealth," was his reply, "but you will concede that I have more at stake in the country than all of you combined, and you know how little it would suit my habits to take office. Just mark my words—as soon as Lincoln is inaugurated, I will address him a letter apprising him of this conversation, and of my willingness, if necessary, to accept of, and faithfully discharge the duties of the office of Collector of ——, until such time as his constitutional administration of the government shall forever put an end to this insane cry of disunion because of imaginary grievances which exist in the brains of reckless, selfish and unprincipled political leaders. And permit to add that in my judgment within six months after the inauguration of Lincoln, each and all of you will be most willing, if not anxious, to hold office under him."

THE DEMOCRATIC ELECTORAL TICKET.—Referring to the meeting of the State Central Committee which took place yesterday at Cresson, Forney's Press says:

"If they carry out at their meeting on the 9th inst. their programme of the 2d of July, they will strike from the electoral ticket the names of all who have not agreed to faithfully carry out their project, which we learn is nearly one-half of the whole number.

Ten of the electors, it is said, have written to Mr. Haldeman, utterly repudiating the whole action scheme of the committee, and expressing their determination to vote, if elected, for Douglas and Johnson, and for no others; while it is said about an equal number have written to Mr. Welsh, expressing their willingness to adopt the action of the Reading Convention together."

Some number of the Press, a letter from "Operational" appears, in which he warns the Douglas against the disorganizing national administration and its agents. "Operational" writes:

"If the Democratic State Central Committee of Pennsylvania, at Cresson, in your [illegible] is expected to be the [illegible] union triumph. The [illegible]ter, your colleagues, and in no [illegible] in favor of [illegible]delphia, they will [illegible]ntral Committee [illegible] Douglas is [illegible] condition [illegible]scinded. 32d Congressional District.

As the Butler American is again pressing a recalled agreement, said to have been made in 1862, at Bakerstown, between the representatives of the two counties, we reproduce from one of our files of 1858 the explanatory card of Josiah King, one of the Allegheny county conferees:

MESSRS. EDITORS:—My attention has been called to an address of William Haslett, Esq., editor of the Butler American, "To the American and Republican Voters of Butler County," and published in his paper of the 3d inst. The address embraces some reminiscences of the meeting of Allegheny and Butler Congressional Conference, at Bakerstown in 1852, in the course of which Mr. Haslett says:

"It was suggested, however, by myself and others, that inasmuch as we conceded the first candidate to Allegheny, and as Butler county was much the most populous side of the district, it was but fair for us to claim three of the five Congressional terms under the existing apportionment.

"The justice of this was so palpable that our Allegheny friends not only acceded to it but the proposition to give three terms to Butler county was officially made by JOSIAH KING, Esq., one of their own delegates."

Mr. Haslett was not present at the Bakerstown Conference in 1852, and as I think him incapable of wilful misstatements, he has doubtless been led into error by others. The facts are; that the Allegheny Conferees, Messrs. R. H. Davis, John Way, and myself, had been led by the correspondence of Hon. S. A. Purviance with parties in Allegheny, to expect that the Butler County Conferees, Messrs. Sullivan, Carns and McJunkin, would promptly and cordially co-operate with them in denominating Mr. Howe, who was then incumbent for his first term, and entitled both by courtesy and precedent, as well as by his eminent merits, to a second nomination. We were therefore both surprised and chagined to find the Butler Conferees pertinaciously opposing through numerous ballotings the nomination of Mr. Howe. The day having been spent in fruitless efforts to agree, we of Allegheny were about to withdraw, when a propposition was made, not by me, but by Mr. McJunkin, of Butler, to concede the nomination we sought on condition of yielding three terms under the present apportionment to Butler. To this I promptly answered that we had no authority to pledge the Allegheny constituency to any such terms; that the utmost we could do would be to recommend it; but that such recommendation would be of no binding obligation on the people of Allegheny. At this juncture the following resolution, prepared and offered, not by me, but by Mr. McJunkin, of Butler, was adopted—one or two of our men voting against it:

Resolved, That in conceding the first candidate for Congress under the new apportionment to Allegheny county, we recommend that six years of the twenty-four of the term under said apportionment be conceded to Butler county." [Vide Pittsburgh Gazette, Aug. 20, 1852.

It remains for me only to state, that at the Conference in 1852 I exhibited a certified extract from the Census office of the population in the 21st district showing the Butler part of the district to contain 56,000, and the Allegheny side of the district 43,000. (Fractions omitted in both cases.) It was also shown that the portion of Allegheny county comprising the 21st district had a fractional excess of 13,000 over the ratio, thus clearly demonstrating the right of Allegheny to have favors are to be distributed, to the larger share, and suggesting to the Butler nominee of 1855 (whether Mr. Purviance or Mr. Haslett,) considerations of both duty and policy upon which they and their respective friends in Butler county are expected to co-operate earnestly and cordially with us of Allegheny in sending Robert McKnight to represent us in the national legislature by a majority that will at once mark our sense of the evils with which the nation is afflicted, and our determination to combat those evils by the mouth of a representative, whose fine forensic abilities, purity of moral character, energy and backbone, peculiarly qualify him for the service. JOSIAH KING.

Allegheny, June 7, 1858.

Mr. R. H. Davis has read and entirely concurs in the above statement. Mr. Way being out of reach, has not seen it, but has expressed himself in like manner.

In the Gazette of June 19th of the same year, the foregoing card of Mr. King was referred to as follows:

The card we lately published from Josiah King, Esq., one of the conferees in 1852, is conclusive as to the fact that there was no "agreement between the conferees of the district at that first meeting," and consequently there can be no such agreement "existing." Mr. King showed plainly, in that card, that the conferees merely passed a resolution recommending that Butler should have three terms. They had no power to enter into any "agreement" or bind the action of subsequent conferees, and that was distinctly understood at the time. As to "the preponderance of votes in the district," as a matter of the district, as a whole, at every Congressional election," let us examine the record.

The last septennial assessment of taxables, on which our representation at Harrisburg is based, showed the following result:

Allegheny, North of the river	9,493 taxables.
Butler county	6,500 do

Showing a surplus in Allegheny of 992

The census of 1850 was as follows:

Allegheny, North of the river	41,178
Butler county	30,346
Excess in Allegheny	11,832

Add excess in 21st district, which was carried to account of 324, in the appointment..... 3,111

Excess in Allegheny	14,944

At the last Congressional election the total vote in the 21st district was as follows:

Allegheny county, North of river	6,247
Butler county	5,672
Excess in Allegheny	589

We have thus shown that the Allegheny portion of the district possesses the largest number of taxables and a large excess of population over the Butler portion, and that the election of 1858, which brought out the full vote of both counties, showed it to have an excess of voters. All of these facts militate against the position taken in the resolution we have quoted, and by so much weaken the force of the argument against conceding the nominee to our county.

THE Albany Evening Journal says that Douglas is so determined that there shall be no Congressional intervention except where slavery is to be benefited that he opposed any such intervention to admit Kansas into the Union. In this he was both cowardly and selfish. He dare not do right through fear of the South; and he did n't want to do right, lest the three electoral votes of Kansas should damage his chances for the Presidency.

ST. LOUIS ELECTION.—By the telegraphic dispatches in this morning's paper, it will be seen that while Mr. Blair has been elected for the long Congressional term by a large majority, he has been defeated for the short term by only forty-votes. This is substantially a Republican triumph—and will be hailed as such by the friends of Free principles throughout the entire nation. It also proves that on the great question of the day, St. Louis is sound to the core.

A NURSE GIVING A CHILD PINS.—The Wilmington, Delaware, Gazette relates the following as having occurred in the Brandywine Hundred, in that county:

Mr. Lewis Weldon and lady have a fine little child, now some six months old, for which they procured a colored girl of 12 or 13 years of age as nurse. After the girl had charge of the child a short time it became puny, sick, and fretful, with very unusual symptoms, which caused the mother to suspect that something was wrong. In order to satisfy herself, Mrs. W. one morning gave out that she was going to visit a neighbor, and would be gone for several hours. She then secreted herself where she could observe the girl's movements. She had been watching but a few minutes, when to her unspeakable horror, she saw the girl get a lot of pins from her pincushion and began putting them in the child's mouth and trying to make it swallow them. The girl was immediately secured and a physician called in; who, by the application of proper remedies, succeeded in dislodging six or eight pins of large size from the child's stomach, while several more were extracted from its mouth and throat. It is believed that she gave the baby from time to time about two dozen of the pins, but under careful management they have nearly or quite all been extracted, and it now flourishes finely, though its life was for a long time despaired of. The girl was sent away, but utterly refused to tell how many pins she had given the child, or what was her object in doing so. It is believed however, that she became tired of nursing it, and took this plan of putting it out of the way.

FREEDOM IN DELAWARE.—We see it stated that the census returns from Delaware, covering about half the State, give a population of 72,950, against 45,046 ten years ago. There is, it is added, a decrease of slave population in every county. There is a common coincidence. Where the white population increases rapidly, the slave population diminishes. In 1790, the slaves in Delaware numbered 8,887, in an aggregate of 59,096. In 1850, the slaves numbered only 2,290, in an aggregate of 91,532. The census of 1860 will show a total population of about 150,000, with probably not more than 1,500 slaves. As the "peculiar institution" disappears or migrates to more congenial climes, the sturdy workers of the free States come in, and, by a slow but certain process, slavery is disappearing in Delaware.
