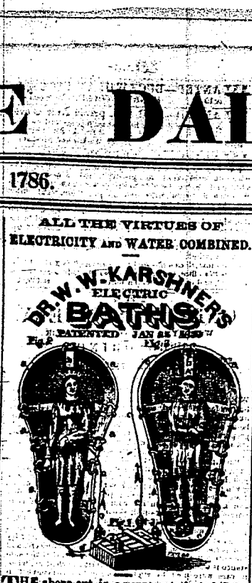
ALL THE VIRTUES OF ELECTRICITY AND WATER COMBINED.



THE above cut is a representation of DR. KARSHNER'S POSITIVE AND NEGATIVE ELECTRO-THERAPEUTIC BATHS, for which he has obtained letters patent from the Patent Office of the United States. These Baths have been in successful operation for the last two years, in many of our principal towns and cities, during which time hundreds of patients have tested their astonishing powers with signal success. Dr. K. challenges the entire medical world to produce any one system or combined set of systems, that will cure as many diseases, and in as short a time, as his Electric Baths alone, when rightly administered. The scientific minds of all professions are cordially invited to call, examine and test for themselves.

The duration of each Bath, the temperature of the water, and the strength of the electric current, are varied according to the disease, the condition of the patient at the time, and the effects desired. The water is about blood heat, and the electricity so graduated as to produce nothing but pleasurable sensations.

There is no class of Diseases, either Acute or Chronic, to which the Baths are not adapted---which do not yield at once to their all pervading and health-restoring influences. The dead and decrepid have been led, voluntarily, to testify that they felt many years younger, and slept better after the first day's dose for years. Others have been cured of painful diseases in a few Baths.

Nor do their healthful effects seem to be confined solely to the physical man; they have an equally happy influence upon the mental faculties, making them a most efficient means in the treatment of Insanity and all abnormal mental conditions.

Among the diseases successfully treated by Dr. K.'s Baths are:---Incipient Consumption, Scrofula, Paralysis, Epilepsy, Chronic Rheumatism, Deafness, St. Vitus' Dance, Contracture of the Spine, Rheumatism, Mercurial Diseases, Weakness in the Back and Joints, Nervousness, Nervous Headache, Asthma, Bronchitis, Catarrh, Weak Eyes, Partial Deafness, Dyspepsia, Gravel and other Urinary and Genital Diseases, Falling of the Womb, Leucorrhœa, and other Female Derangements, Fever, Fever and Ague, etc. etc.

These Baths are in successful operation at

No. 21 Fifth Street, Pittsburgh, Pa.,

THE NEW-YORK DAY BOOK says:

"The vast majority of Hair Washes, 'Hair Dyes,' Hair Tonics, Hair Oils, and numberless preparations of which are now before the public under such extravagant, hyperbolical and fantastic titles as we are paraded in show bills, dodge cards, and newspaper columns, as hair preparations, are all humbugs of the first water; their real merit, when they possess any, is, that they do no harm. BOGY'S LARD, WHALE OIL, LARD OIL, SWEET OIL, sometimes called 'castile soap,' when for toilet purposes and sold with fine glass bottles, the choicest cherished perfumes, and when thus costly, not baptized with some originishable term, and bought at by many young and old of both sexes. Such is not the character of Prof. Wood's Hair Restorative. No preparation ever before the world without any 'high falutin' Xilopidoforium, or any other astounding and sterling catchpenny terms; he simply advertises it as a restorative---what it expresses purports to be---and it restorative it acts. Buy Professor Wood's Hair Restorative, and as you value your scalp, eye, your very brains, apply nothing else for it may be that you will get some worse substance than perfumed lard oil or pure crancum oil. Restorer, Wood's Restorative for the Hair is the best article extant."

It Will, by Nature's own Process,

Restore Gray Hair to the Original Color,

Will make Hair Grow on Bald Heads,

Will restore the Fallen Secretions,

Will remove at once all itching,

Will eradicate Dandruff,

Will cure all eruptions---even Scald Head,

Will make the Hair Soft and Glossy,

Will make the skin of a healthy, (natural) tint,

Will preserve the Color of Hair to old age,

In fact always fasten it and stop its Falling,

And is one of the best Toilet Articles for the Hair now in use.

ELECTROPATHY.

PROFESSOR A. S. GREGORY and J. GOUCHER, M. D. have associated themselves together in the practice of their profession, and the uniting Electropathy and Hydropathy with MEDICAL DEPARTMENT.

They have their establishment supplied with a new set of ELECTRIC BATHS, which are superior to any now in use. The water used is of such a temperature, and the electric currents are so regulated, that the patient, in receiving the benefits of these remedial agents, experience no unpleasant sensation. The effect of their treatment is among the most efficacious and least objectionable; it equalizes the circulation, soothes nervous irritation, and restores a healthy balance to disordered functions. The medicine prescribed will be compounded and put up at their office, under the immediate care of Dr. GOUCHER, who has had twenty years experience in treating diseases.

The following are some of the diseases that yield to their treatment:

Palsy or Paralysis, Incipient Consumption, Rheumatism, both Acute and Chronic; Neuralgia, Headache, Torpid Liver, Bronchitis, Catarrh, Asthma, Weakness and Curvature of the Spine, Scrofula, Dyspepsia, Deafness by Paralysis, Ringing in the Ears, Amaurosis, Cataracts, Weak Eyes, Erysipelas, Spasmodic Retention of the Urine, St. Vitus' Dance, Chronic Soft Rheum, Prolapsus Ani or Piles, Female Weakness and Irregularities, General Debility, Derangements of the Nervous System, Stiff Joints, all Diseases of the Bowels, Fever and Ague; and Fistula, Constantly Cured, without the Knife.

In addition to their office business, many persons attend to a GENERAL PRACTICE. All calls in the city and vicinity receive prompt attention. Letters containing stamp for postage will be attended to immediately, and if treatment is required, Free Dollars must be enclosed, for which they will send medicine to any part of the United States.

PUBLISHED DAILY AND WEEKLY BY M. ERRETT & CO.,

FIFTH STREET, ABOVE SMITHFIELD.

PITTSBURGH:

SATURDAY MORNING, OCT. 27.

A CHANCE OF SENTIMENT.---The Boston Traveller, noticing the anniversary of attempts in the United States to suppress Abolition, gives the following reminiscences, which are a singular commentary on public opinion, considering how completely the public sentiment has changed since that period:

Northern Mobs Against Abolitionists.---Yesterday, Oct. 21st, 1860, completed twenty five years since the famous riot in Boston, known afterwards as the mob of "Gentlemen in Broadcloth," when an abolition meeting was broken up, and Wm. Lloyd Garrison came near losing his life. The riot occurred in the afternoon of the day, on that part of Washington street between State street and Dock square being filled with people, who began expressing their animosity with shouts of derision at a small meeting of abolitionists gathered in a building near the entrance of Dock square. A sign of the Boston Liberator was torn down and broken. Finally the mob got upon the steps of Mr. Garrison, who, as he was making his way through the buildings to Wilson's lane, he was seized and a rope placed about his neck, with the idea of hanging him from a window.

At this point, however, he was rescued and taken to the City Hall, then at the head of State street. No other place of safety could be found, but the Jail, and to that place he was taken in a carriage, by the Mayor, and kept for the night. On the way, however, the mob, who were in sharp pursuit, nearly overturned the carriage by casting ropes around it. The next morning the Boston Advocate, edited by Hon. B. F. Hallett, came out in a powerful leader, denouncing the lawlessness of the authorities, and declaring that it was the duty of the Mayor, if he could not disperse the mob by any other means to plant cannon and sweep the street.

It is a curious fact, that the Rev. Samuel J. May, a warm abolitionist, was mobbed at Montpelier, and Garrett Smith and Beriah Green, at Utica, New York, on the same day, Oct. 21st, 1835.

THE ITALIAN QUESTION.---The Sardinian Parliament has assembled, in order to vote a bill by which the government is authorized to accept, without further formalities, the annexation of any provinces in Southern Italy which, by universal suffrage, shall declare their desire to form a portion of Victor Emmanuel's empire.

Count Cavour and the Sardinian Cabinet blame Garibaldi's policy of postponing the annexation, which alone can close the revolution and establish a government inspiring confidence. They disclaim any idea of an immediate attack upon Rome and even upon Venetia, both these questions being as yet unripe and complicated by European diplomacy, while their proper solution must be a matter of time. As soon as this law is voted by the chambers the cession will again be adjourned, the royal troops will occupy Sicily and Naples; the population of Umbria, of the Marches, of Naples and Sicily, will be called upon to declare whether they wish to be annexed to the Upper Italian Kingdom or not, and Farini, will in the meantime, organize the administration and hold the elections, so that by December we may see the Deputies of twenty-two millions of Italians assembled at Turin, legislating for all the peninsula, and preparing for the last and decisive war for Venitia, which can scarcely be postponed further than the coming spring.

Austria is fully aware of the impending danger, the preparations for levying one hundred thousand recruits have already been made, though the finances remain in a hopeless position, and the Council of the Empire has closed its first session without bringing order into the administrative confusion.

MORE "INCENDIARISM."---We clip the following "incendiary" paragraph---apparently the work of some "Black Republican"---from the columns of the Charleston Courier:

We find politicians playing a fearfully game of political chess upon the chessboard of our common Uncle. A kind of "hoss" "consultation game," where the players are arranged as follows: Messrs. Lincoln and Hamlin have the white men, Opposite to them are Bell and Everett playing with pieces of incredible, and indescribable hue. Breckinridge and Lane, on the one hand, have the men, black as an "Ethiop's skin," while squatted in front of them are Douglas and Johnson, using pieces of a mixed color.

We are surprised to see no plain statement of the real position of parties---even though smuggled into a hatter's advertisement---in the columns of a leading Secession journal of South Carolina. Compared with this, the Louisville Journal's offence, in advertising the Republican Presidential ticket, was altogether venial.---Cin. Gazette.

DOUGLAS AND BRODERICK.---The San Francisco Times is speaking of the canvass of 1858 in California, says:

During that canvass Broderick well understood Douglas. He expected neither aid nor comfort from him. Though he did not denounce him for his treachery to him in public, yet in private he denounced him in terms unmeaning only he could use. He called him a treacherous, vacillating and weak. He told him how near the weak-kneed bobtail was to going over to the support of the English bill, abandoning his friends and all they had been contending for. Many men in this State have heard him tell how he made the quivering demagogue quail before him in that famous anti-Lecompton caucus, when he told him that if he betrayed them he would denounce him in his seat, and put a burning brand of disgrace upon him. "Ay," said he, to one his nerves had failed, "if you do it, I could have made him crawl under his chair." This prompt action of Broderick intimidated Douglas and saved him from disgrace. He voted against the English swindle, and by that means saved himself at home.

BUTLER AND EVERETT IN OHIO.---The Bell and Everett vote in Ohio, at the election of the 9th inst., was a little over 8,000. In 1856, Fillmore had over 28,000. Loss in four years, 20,000! These figures show, what we stated months ago, that the party has no longer any real vitality in the State. Even as a balance of power, it has ceased to be of any account, the Republicans having an absolute majority of 15,000 over all other parties combined. The vote on the 6th of November will show a clear Republican majority still greater, and a plurality, as we believe, of more than 40,000.---Cin. Gaz.

THE CUTTON PROSPECT.---Mobile, Oct. 23.---The estimates for the crop have been materially modified since the last severe frost, and four million bales is now set down as a fair figure for the coming crop. Many of the orders recently executed on foreign account have been on this basis, and unless a few freaks of very fine weather should ensue, it is likely the estimate will not be found far out of the way. At the same time, there are those who look upon the present settlement and inflation of prices as premature, if not warranted, the belief of these parties being that the late cotton had not been so badly injured as has been supposed.

George the Fourth.

Mr. Thackery, in his "Four Georges," now in course of publication in the Cornhill Magazine, draws the following satirical pen-portrait of George IV:

"To make a portrait of him at first seemed a matter of small difficulty. There is his coat, his star, his wig, his countenance simpering under it---with a slate and a piece of chalk, I could, at this very desk, perform a recognizable likeness of him. And yet, after reading of him in scores of volumes, hunting him through old magazines and newspapers, having him here at a ball, there at a public dinner, there at races and so forth, you find you have nothing---nothing but a coat and a wig and a mask smiling below it---nothing but a great simulacrum! His sire and grandsire were men. One knows what they were like---what they would do in given circumstances---that on occasion they fought and demeaned themselves like tough good soldiers. They had friends whom they liked according to their natures; enemies whom they hated fiercely; passions and actions and individualities of their own.

The sailor king who came after George was a man; the Duke of York was a man; big, burley, loud, jolly, cursing, courageous. But this George, what was he? I look through all his life, and recognize but a boy and grim. I try and take him to places, and find silk stockings, paddling slays, a coat with frogs and a tuft collar, a star and hilt, a pocket-handkerchief prodigiously scented, one of Truefitt's best nutty brown wigs reeking with oil, a set of teeth, and a huge black stock, underwaistcoats, more underwaistcoats; and then nothing. I know of no sentiment that he ever distinctly uttered. Documents are published under his name, but people write almost, private letters but people spell them. He put a great George P. or George R at the bottom of the page and fancied he had written the paper; some bookseller's clerk, some poor author, some man did the work; saw to the spelling; cleaned up the slovenly sentences, and gave the lax maudlin slipslop a sort of consistency.

He must have had an individuality; the dancing master whom he emulated, nay, surpassed---the wig maker who curled his tresses for him---the tailor who cut his coats, had that. But, about George, one can get at nothing actual. That outside, I am certain, is pad and tailor's work; there may be something behind, but what? We cannot get at the character; no doubt never shall. Will men of the future have nothing better to do than to unswathe and interpret that royal old mummy? I can't once used to think it would be good sport to pursue him, fasten on him, and pull him down. But now I am ashamed to mount and lay good dogs on, to summon a full field, and then to hunt the poor game."

And here is an anecdote, in which "the finest gentleman in Europe," as it was the fashion to call the last of the Georges, does not figure very creditably:

And now I have one monstrosity of the bacchanalian sort, in which Clarence and York, and the very highest personages of the realm, the great Prince Regent, all play parts. The feast took place at the pavilion, at Brighton, and was described to me by a gentlemen who was present at the scene. In Gilray's caricatures and amongst Fox's jolly associates there figures a great nobleman, the Duke of Norfolk, called Jockey of Norfolk in his time, and celebrated for his table exploits. He had quarreled with the Prince, like the rest of the Whigs; but a sort of reconciliation had taken place, and now, being a very old man, the Prince invited him to dine and sleep at the Pavilion, when the old Duke drove over from his Castle of Arundle, with his famous equipage of grey horses, still remembered in Sussex.

The Prince of Wales had connected with his royal brothers a notable scheme for making the old man drunk. Every person at table was enjoined to drink wine with the Duke---a challenge which the old toper did not refuse. He soon began to see that there was a conspiracy against him; drank glass for glass; he overthrew many of the brave. At last the First Gentleman of Europe proposed bumpers of brandy. One of the Royal brothers filled a great glass for the duke. He stood up and tossed off the drink. "Now," says he, "I will have my carriage and go home." The Prince urged upon him his previous promise to sleep under the roof where he had been so generously entertained. "No," he said, "he had had enough of such hospitality." A trap had been set for him; he would leave the place at once, and never enter its doors more.

The carriage was called and came; but, in the half hour's interval, the Roger had proved too potent for the old man; his host's good-night purpose was answered, and the duke's old gray head lay stupefied on the table. Nevertheless, when his post-chaises was announced, he staggered to it as well as he could, and stumbling in, bade the postilions drive to Arundle. They drove him for half an hour round and round the Pavilion lawn; the poor old man fancied he was going home. When he awoke that morning he was in bed at the prince's palace rooms at Brighton. You may see the place now for expense; they have fiddlers there every day; and sometimes buffoons and mountebanks hire the Riding House, and do their tricks and tumbling there. The trees are still there; and the gravel walks around which the poor old sinner was trotted. I can fancy the flushed face of the royal princes as they support themselves at the portico pillars, and look on at old Norfolk's disgrace; but I can't fancy how the man who perpetrated it continued to be called a gentleman."

ABUNDANCE OF FIGS.---The fig harvest at Smyrna, Turkey, this year, is said to be much better in quantity and quality, than for several previous years. The usual number of American vessels are waiting there for cargoes.
