PITTSBURGH:

WEDNESDAY MORNING, NOV. 21, 1860.

ILLINOIS—THE CASUET.

The returns from Illinois show that a great fight has been fought there. Both of the leading candidates for the Presidency live there, and every inch of ground has been contested, with a desperate resolution to win, on both sides.

For the first time in the history of the State it has given a majority for an opposition candidate for President and elected an opposition majority to both branches of the Legislature. It is very true that the Opposition elected their State officers four years ago; but the State nevertheless gave its vote for Buchanan. It is equally true that the Legislature, six years ago, elected Judge Trumbull to the United States Senate; but that was by a combination of Whigs and Anti-Lecompton Democrats in that body. On no former occasion have the Opposition to the Democracy carried everything as now.

The Legislature is chosen by districts formed many years ago with the especial object of preventing the election of an Opposition majority. CALHOUN, of Kansas notoriety, then a resident of Illinois, was the father of this apportionment scheme; and it was framed with such devilish ingenuity as to extort the boast from him that the united force of the lower regions could not beat it.

Under that apportionment, framed with a special view to disfranchising the strong opposition counties, the democrats have held sway for years; and it required an extraordinary amount of energy to carry it against them now. Abandoning really, though not nominally, all hope of carrying the State for Douglas, the Democrats concentrated all their forces upon the doubtful legislative districts; and it required all the ingenuity, dexterity and industry of the Republicans to defeat them.

In order to comprehend the full extent of their victory, see what depended upon it. The legislature elect has to divide the State anew into representative and Senatorial districts; to apportion the State under the new census into Congressional districts; to elect a U. S. Senator in place of Judge Trumbull, and to enact a Registry Law for the prevention of election frauds.

If the Republicans had carried one House and lost the other, they might have elected their U. S. Senator on joint ballot; but they would have been powerless upon the other points, except to prevent the democrats from succeeding. It was requisite, therefore, to their complete success, that they should carry both Houses of the legislature, as they have done.

To do this was no easy task. The House was the most easily carried; but in the Senate they had to carry three districts which went against them in 1856 and 1858. They made fight in all the close districts, five in number. To lose three of them was fatal. They have carried three and lost two; but the third doubtful district, that in which Mr. Lincoln resides, was carried by the meagre majority of seven votes.

Upon those seven votes hung all the hard-earned results of the desperate battle that has been fought.

With the two Houses in their favor the State will be apportioned by the Republicans into legislative districts based upon population, and not for party effect, and such an apportionment will secure the legislature hereafter to the Republicans, as that portion of the State which has the heaviest population is decidedly Republican. They will also be able to secure a fair Congressional apportionment, and the enactment of a Registry Law which will prevent the election frauds so long practised in that State by the democracy.

Under the new census Illinois will be entitled to 14 Representatives in Congress. Under the present apportionment, the Democrats have elected 5 and the Republicans 4 members, the 5 members representing about one-third of the population of the State and the 4 the remaining two-thirds. Under the new apportionment this inequality will be done away. The Republican end of the State will elect 10 or 11 of the 14 members to which the State will be entitled.

Of course, so great a victory, fraught with so many great results, was not achieved by any one man. It required the well directed labors of a host of earnest and active men, all of whom deserve special praise. To name them all would be impossible, here; but there is nothing invidious in singling out one man among them all as the Napoleon who conceived and put in execution the plans of a campaign which has proved so successful. That man is Hon. DAVID DAVIS, of Bloomington. It is to his skill in planning, to his ability in directing, to his clear-headedness in perceiving the whole scope of what was before him, to his coolness in the hour of danger, to his unyielding firmness and indomitable energy that the Republicans of Illinois owe their splendid victory, won against extraordinary odds. To those out of the State who do not know Judge DAVIS, this may seem extravagant laudation; but there is not one of his co-laborers in the State who will not endorse it.

Judge DAVIS was a delegate at large from Illinois to the National Convention at Chicago, and was among the most active and efficient friends Mr. Lincoln had in that assembly. Most of those who attended that body will remember him. He went to Chicago with the conviction that Mr. Lincoln was the most available man that could be selected under all the circumstances; and although, at first, he had no backing outside of the Illinois delegation, he worked on without ceasing, never stopping to rest until the object of his desire was accomplished.

His position as the leading man in Illinois politics point smartingly to him, we think, as the man from the Northwest for Mr. Lincoln's cabinet. We have not the remotest idea of Mr. Lincoln's plans or inclinations respecting the Cabinet; and in making the suggestion of Judge Davis' name, we are actuated solely by our own sense of propriety in the premises. Intellectually he stands in the front rank of our public men; possesses administrative ability of a rare order; is remarkable for coolness, clearness of judgment, unbending integrity and iron will; and these are qualities which eminently fit him for a Cabinet place, especially under the peculiar circumstances which will attend the opening period of Mr. Lincoln's administration. In any position in which he can be put, he will prove the right man in the right place.

The fact that he comes from the same State as the President is no argument against his selection. It has been a very common practice for Presidents to select a member of the Cabinet from their own States. Several of the earlier Presidents did it and all of the late ones. Harrison had Thomas Ewing in his Cabinet, Tyler had Upshur, Polk had Cave Johnson, Fillmore had Hall, his own law partner, and Buchanan has Jerry Black. The precedents are all in favor of such a course, and there is, besides, a manifest propriety in the President having an adviser near him with whom life long association has made him familiar.

We throw out this suggestion solely upon our own responsibility and without consultation with any one. We ask consideration for it only upon the ground of its fitness.

ILLINOIS.—The Chicago papers publish the official vote of the State, which was the largest ever polled. Illinois now stands fourth on the list of voting States, being next to Ohio, and not far behind her. The following is the vote and for each Presidential candidate:

Lincoln [illegible]	172,502
Douglas	160,220
Bell	4,913
Breckinridge [illegible]	2,572
Total	340,217
Lincoln over Douglas	11,282
Lincoln over all	4,978

Four years ago the vote cast was:

For Fremont	96,189
For Buchanan	105,348
For Fillmore	37,643
Total	239,081
Buchanan over Fremont	9,159
Buchanan over Fremont and Fillmore	27,864
Fremont over Fillmore	58,546

Hon. WM H SEWARD.—It will be recollected that this distinguished Statesman was expected to visit Pittsburgh some short time before the Presidential election. A special committee was sent by the Republican Club to Cleveland, and a partial promise was obtained by them from Mr. Seward, who was then in that city, that he would be in Pittsburgh between the 20th of October and the 6th of November. Subsequently, John W. Riddell, Esq, Chairman of the Committee of Correspondence, was instructed to correspond with Mr. Seward and ascertain at what precise time he would be here. No reply was received by Mr Riddell until yesterday. Mr. Seward states that, much to his regret, his engagements were such as to require his presence in New York, the "enemy having transferred the siege from Pennsylvania to his own State." We, in common with the Republicans of this county, regret exceedingly that Mr. Seward could not find it convenient to be with us during the campaign just closed. No American Statesman of our day could attract the same auditory or arouse half the enthusiasm that would attend the advent in Allegheny county of the sage of Auburn.

THE great Southern Commercial Convention which was the cause of no little amusement during the past five years, is now numbered among the exploded humbugs of the day. A dispatch from Atlanta, Georgia, dated November 13, says that the day previous had been designated for its meeting in that city, but not a single delegate was in attendance.

MISSOURI.—This State is conceded to Douglas by about 400 majority, which, with the three electors from New Jersey, will give him twelve out of the 303 electoral votes that will be cast for President. He will probably have one State and a fraction less than a half of a State, out of the thirty-three members of the confederacy.

[For the Daily Pittsburgh Gazette.]

The West and a United States Senator.

Messrs. Editors: I notice by the Harrisburg Telegraph, of the 2d inst., that Hon. EDGAR COWAN is very highly spoken of as a candidate for United States Senator, to represent Pennsylvania in the councils of the nation for six years from the 4th of March, 1861. The Telegraph speaks very highly of Mr. Cowan, all of which I freely endorse; because there is no man in this State, or in the ranks of the Republican party, of whom more honorable and complimentary terms can be written and spoken. His ability is of that high order which wins and holds the admiration of men, while his integrity at once commands their respect and confidence. Few men like EDGAR COWAN have passed through the world and mingled so freely in its stirring scenes of business reciprocities, uncontaminated by corruption or unbiassed by prejudice. In doing this he exhibits a will and an independence which always mark the honest man and useful citizen. And it is such qualities which are essential to constitute a successful representative—sentinel for his country's glory and the welfare of his immediate constituents. Certainly it is such a man who is needed at this juncture to represent Pennsylvania in the Senate of the United States to elevate her interests by his eloquence and industry, and advance her prosperity by his zeal and devotion. And if we fail in securing the services of just such a man, we may fail for years in deriving any real or substantial benefit from the legislation of Congress.

Sir. Cowan has always been an unwavering advocate of protection to American industry, and an earnest and reliable advocate of the free Homestead Bill.

Aside from the high abilities and distinguished learning of Edgar Cowan, to recommend him as a candidate for United States Senator, he comes from a section that has peculiar claims to be recognized by the representatives of the people in the Legislature of the State as well as by the Republican party. The North and the East have both been fully and honorably rewarded by the people and our party. They have now all the departments but the executive in the State; and they will soon fill the executive chair with a man who will reflect credit on the entire Commonwealth. For such reasons, and from the fact of long devotion to Republicanism, the west side of Pittsburgh have a United States Senator. We do not make this request in the captious or defiant spirit of a claim, but in the frankness inspired by the belief that it will be yielded as a simple act of justice to the locality and the man.

The duty of electing a United States Senator, will, of course, involve much competition among all the candidates, and for this reason, we, of the west must, take our best man as the only way to secure our best interests. L.

Victor Emmanuel and Garibaldi.

A letter from Naples, dated the 29th of October, gives the following account of the interview between Victor Emmanuel and Garibaldi:

"I was on my way to the headquarters of Victor Emmanuel, at Teano, and took a cut through the mountains. While waiting for a conveyance I met Major Cattabone, commissary at Garibaldi's headquarters. He was coming from Teano, and to him I am indebted for the following account of the interview between Victor Emmanuel and Garibaldi. Garibaldi had taken up his quarters at a small inn, about four miles and a half between Teano and Sparanzano, on the 25th. He ordered his column to advance and take up positions, and sent Count Trecchi to see the King. On the following morning Count Trecchi and Missori came to inform him that Cialdini was within an hour's march, and the king not far behind. Garibaldi left immediately with his staff, and three-quarters of an hour afterwahd he came in sight of the head of the Piedmontese column. He put spurs to his horse. The Piedmontese advanced as follows: The 3d and 24th regiments of the Cosna brigade; the 20th and 27th of Pistorio's brigade; and then a battery of rifle cannon. The columns presented arms to Garibaldi, and open to allow him to pass through. Cialdini rushed forward, and Garibaldi jumping from his horse, embraced him affectionately. After exchanging a few words Garibaldi commanded to meet the King. Victor Emmanuel was not far behind, leading on his own division. Seeing the red shirts the king took his telescope, and recognising Garibaldi, put spurs to his horse and gallopped towards him. Garibaldi did the same. When they were within ten paces of each other, the officers of the king and of Garibaldi shouted "long live Victor Emmanuel!" Garibaldi advanced, took off his hat, and in a voice somewhat hoarse from emmotion, said "King of Italy!" Victor Emmanuel put his hand to his kept, then held it out to Garibaldi, and equally moved replied, "Thank you!" They stood thus, hand in hand, nearly a minute, without uttering another word

Garibaldi and the king, still holding each other's hand, followed the troops for about a quarter of an hour. The suites had mingled together, and followed at a short distance behind them. Passing a group of officers, Garibaldi saluted them. Among them were Farini, minister of war, in the foraging cap of a staff officer, and General Fanti. The king and Garibaldi were conversing. After the King followed the Seventeenth, Eighteenth, Nineteenth and Twentieth regiments of the line, then sixty guns, and four regiments of cavalry. His majesty was at the head of 80,000 men.

Before reaching Teano, King Victor Emmanuel halted, and ordered a portion of his army to file off in presence of Garibaldi, that every one might observe the good feeling which prevailed between him and the chieftain. He then reviewed Bixio's brigade, which was posted a little beyond Calvi. He was received with the enthusiastic and unanimous shout of "Long live the King of Italy!" Garibaldi has 7,000 men divided between different positions. The king remained at Teano; Garibaldi returned to Calvi to give orders.

The Secession Movement.

[Special Dispatch to the New York World.]

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18.—A doubt obtains in conservative circles in this city if Alabama and Georgia will consent to follow in the wake of South Carolina. Her idea is to prevent a general convention of Southern state, while Virginia, Maryland, and North Carolina demand such a convention.

If such a convention be held the conservative southern states hope to prevent the secession of South Carolina; and if it is not held the latter state may be left to secede into the hot or cold, alone.

Army Order.—Major Anderson has been ordered to Fort Moultrie to relieve Col. Gardiner; the latter is ordered to the department of Texas and San Antonio.

Secession.—To-day's news from South Carolina is of a serious character, and seems to favor the certain secession of that State.

Advices from Columbia, South Carolina, state that the people of that state do not contemplate or favor any resistance to Lincoln's inauguration. They are eager to secede before his inauguration.

Louisiana Sound for the Union.—There is little doubt but that Louisiana is sound to the core on the Union question. The people are not ready to move until their rights shall have been invaded.

CHARLESTON, Nov. 17.—The delegates elected so far strongly favor secession.

The wholesale merchants and jobbers of Hayne and Meeting streets had a great demonstration to-day. The occasion was the dedication of the liberty pole which they planted in the middle of Hayne street, at its junction with Meeting street.

The Lafayette artillery with four field pieces, fired a salute.

The stage was erected in the middle of Meeting street, opposite the Charleston hotel. The entire block from Market to Hazel was jammed with people.

The store windows on either side were crowded with ladies waving their handkerchiefs.—There were two bands of music.

The people have taken the matter of secession entirely out of the hands of the politicians. They are determined for prompt action.

Perfect unanimity of sentiment prevails among all classes.

JAIL OF ALLEGHENY COUNTY.

ANTI-TAX COUNTY CONVENTION.

The undersigned, County Commissioners, are now in prison as far as having to obey the Supreme Court in their attempts to compel your officers to do an act which we consider unjust to those who placed us in power. We, therefore, appeal to the People to invest us at the ballot box, as we are willing and ready to abide by whatever decision the majority may deem right and proper.

The Supreme Court, now in session, has issued a peremptory mandamus, authorizing your chosen officers to levy a tax to pay interest on $250,000 of stock, said to be subscribed to the Chartiers Valley Railroad Company. We invite the special attention of the Tax-Payers to this, as well as other matters that pertain to your immediate interests, especially the fact that we all power emanates directly from the People themselves, we hold ourselves in readiness to submit to such, and none others.

Therefore, we call on ALL TAXABLE CITIZENS to assemble in their respective Districts, on SATURDAY, the 24th day of November, and elect FOUR DELEGATES to meet in Court House, on MONDAY, the 26th inst., at the Court House, at 10 o'clock. Meetings to be held at the usual hours and places of meeting.

ETNA STOVE WORKS.

A. BRADLEY
Manufacturer every variety of
COOK, PARLOR AND HEATING
STOVES,
GRATE FRONTS, FENDERS,
&c. &c. &c.

Sole Proprietor of the celebrated
PATENT GAS BURNING AND SMOKE CONSUMING ARRANGEMENTS,
(as applied to our COOK STOVES,) the advantages of which are
1st, A great saving of Fuel.
2d, A much quicker and hotter oven, from the same fire.
3d, The preservation of the centre piece.
4th, Cleanliness, as there is not one-half the soot and dirt that is found in other stoves.
5th, These stoves, and all stoves we ever sold, have a current of cold air passing between oven and fire-back, which preserves it and adds to the durability of our Stoves, over all others.

Persons wishing the BEST STOVE in the market will find our PATENT "Tropic," "Eureka," or "Arbiter," with DOUBLE TOP, to be the Stove, as hundreds in this city and vicinity can testify.

Would also call particular attention to our stock of Parlor Stoves and Grate Fronts, which, together with our other wares, we will SELL CHEAP.

SANDS' SARSAPARILLA.—This purely vegetable remedy combines in itself the properties of an Antiseptic, a mild Cathartic, and a Tonic. It quickly removes from the blood, and other fluids of the body, the impurities of which it accumulates, which engender and feed disease, thus striking at the root of the malady. Although proved so effacacious, it may be taken at all times with perfect safety, as it contains no powerful drastic drug to debilitate the system, or mineral poison to ruin the constitution.

Prepared and sold by A. B & D. SANDS, Druggists, 100 Fulton street, New York.
Sold also by R. A. FAHNESTOCK & CO., Pittsburgh, Pa.
Sold also by Druggists generally. no20tuthwlwlf
