ELECTROPATHY.

PROFESSOR A. S. GREGORY and J. GOUCHER, M. D., have associated themselves together in the practice of their profession, thus uniting Electropathy and H-dropathy with a MEDICAL DEPARTMENT. They have their establishment supplied with a new set of ELECTRIC BATHS, which are superior to any now in use. The water used is of such a temperature, and the electric currents so regulated as to produce, in turning on the bundle of these remedial agents, a sparkness no unpleasant sensation. This system of treatment is among the safest, most effectual and least objectionable in existence. It equalizes circulation, soothes nervous irritation, and restores a healthy balance to diseased functions. The medicine prescribed will be compounded and put up at their office, under the immediate care of Dr. GOUCHER, who has had twenty years experience in healing disease.

The following are some of the diseases that yield to their treatment:

Palsy or Paralysis, Incipient Consumption, Rheumatism, both Acute and Chronic; Neuralgia, Headache, Torpid Liver, Bronchitis, Catarrh, Asthma, Weakness and Curvature of the Spine, Hemiplegia, Dyspepsia, Deafness by Paralysis, Ringing in the Ears, Amaurosis, Cataracts, Weak Eyes, Erysipelas, Spermatic Retention of the Urine, St. Vitus' Dance, Cholic, Salt Rheum, Prolapsus Ani or Piles, Female Weakness and Irregularities, General Debility, Derangements of the Nervous System, Stiff Joints, all Diseases of the Bowels, Fever and Ague; and Fits.

Sale, invariably Cured without the knife.

In addition to their office business, they purpose attending to a GENERAL PRACTICE: All calls to the city and vicinity receive prompt attention. Letters containing stamp for postage will be attended to immediately, and if assistance is required, FIVE DOLLARS must be send sent, for which they will send medicine to any part of the United States.

Quack Nostrums.

THE NEW YORK DAY BOOK says:

"The majority of Hair Washes, Hair Dyes, Hair Tonics, Hair Oils, and the numberless preparations which are now before the public under such extravagant hyperbolical and fantastic titles as we see paraded in show bills, door cards, and newspaper headings, as hair preparations, are all humbugs of the first water, their real merit, when they possess any, is that they do no harm. BOG'S LARD, WHALE OIL, LARD OIL, SWEET OIL, scented and colored, make up, when in beautiful wrappers and white flint glass bottles, the costliest character of tonics, and when these costly, are bottled with some trifling variation, and caught at by verdant young and old of both sexes. Such is not the character of Professor Wood's Hair Restorative. This gentleman comes before the world without any "high falutin," Xylophonizm, or any other astonishing and startling catchpenny terms to simply advertise a Hair Restorative—that it expresses precisely—and as a Restorative it acts. Buy Professor Wood's Hair Restorative, and as you value your scalp, your very brains, apply nothing else, for it may be that you will get some worse affliction than perfumed lard oil on your crust'um. Remember, Wood's Restorative for the Hair is the best article extant."

It Will, by Nature's own Process, Restore Gray Hair to the Original Color, Will make Hair Grow on Bald Heads, Will restore the Natural Secretions, Will prevent Hair from Falling, Will remove all Dandruff, Will cure all eruptions—even Scald Head, Will make the Hair Soft and Glossy, Will make the old appear young again, Will preserve the Color of Hair to old age, Will always Please and stop the Hair when falling. And is one of the best Toilet Articles for the Hair now in use.

WEDNESDAY MORNING, NOV. 28.

CALHOUN'S DREAM.

The following remarkable relation will commend itself to the attention of our readers without comment. It is now cut from the Baltimore Clipper of about five years ago, which then republished it; as appears from its heading. We cannot vouch for the truth of it, though we see no reason why the incidents might not have occurred as related. As the Italians say Si non è vero, è ben trovato. At any rate, we have never seen it contradicted:

A SINGULAR STORY.

The following was published several years ago, and we believe proceeded originally from the pen of a Washington letter writer. We revive it on account of its eccentric significance, and commend it to the attention of the Charleston Mercury:

The other morning at the breakfast table, our friend, the Hon. John C. Calhoun, seemed very much troubled and out of spirits. You know he is altogether a venerable man, with a hard, stern, Scotch Irish face, softened in its expression around the mouth by a sort of sad smile, which wins the hearts of all who converse with him. His hair is snow white. He is tall, thin and angular. He reminds you very much of Old Hickory. That he is honest, no one doubts; he has sacrificed to his fatalism his brightest hopes of political advancement—has offered up on the shrine of that necessity which he worships, all that can excite ambition—even the Presidency of the United States.

But to my story. The other morning at the breakfast table, where I, an unobserved spectator, happened to be present, Calhoun was observed to gaze frequently at his right hand, and brush it with his left in a hurried and nervous manner. He did this so often that it excited attention. At length one of the persons composing the breakfast party—his name, I think, is Toombs, and he is a member of Congress from Georgia—took upon himself to ask the occasion of Mr. Calhoun's disquietude.

"Does your hand pain you?" he asked.

To this Mr. Calhoun replied, in rather a flurried manner—"Pshaw!" in nothing! Only a dream which I had last night, and which makes me see perpetually a large, black spot—like an ink blotch—upon the back of my right hand. An optical illusion I suppose.

Of course these words excited the curiosity of the company, but no one ventured to beg the details of this singular dream, until Toombs asked quietly—

"What was your dream like? I'm not very superstitious about dreams; but sometimes they have a good deal of truth in them."

"But this was such a peculiarly absurd dream," said Mr. Calhoun, again brushing the back of his right hand; however, if it does not too much intrude upon the time of our friends, I will relate it to you."

Of course the company were profuse in their expressions of anxiety to know all about the dream. In his singularly sweet voice, Mr. Calhoun related it:

"At a late hour last night, as I was sitting in my room engaged in writing, I was astonished by the entrance of a visitor, who entered and without asking a word, opposite me at my table, this surprised me, as I had given particular orders to the servant that I should on no account be disturbed. The manner in which the intruder entered, so perfectly self-possessed, taking his seat opposite me, without a word, as though in my room and all within it belonged to him, excited in me as much surprise as indignation. As I raised my head to look into his features, over the top of my shaded lamp, I discovered that he was wrapped in a thin cloak, which effectually concealed his face and features from my view. And as I raised my head he spoke:

"What are you writing, Senator from South Carolina?"

"I did not think of his impertinence at first, but answered him evasively:

"I am writing a plan for the dissolution of the American Union (you know gentlemen that I am expected to produce a plan of dissolution in the event of certain contingencies)

"To this the intruder replied, in the coolest manner possible:

"Senator from South Carolina, will not allow me to look at your hand—your right hand?"

"He rose, the cloak fell, and I beheld his face. Gentlemen the sight of that face struck me like a thunder clap! It was the face of a dead man, whom extraordinary events had called back to life. The features were those of General George Washington; yes, gentlemen, the intruder was none other, then George Washington. He was dressed in the Revolutionary costume, such as you see preserved in the Patent Office."

Here Mr. Calhoun paused, apparently much agitated. His agitation, I need not tell you, was shared by the company. Toombs at length broke the embarrassing pause. "Well, well, what was the issue of this scene?" Mr. Calhoun resumed:

"This intruder, as I have said, rose and asked to look at my right hand. As though I had not the power to refuse, I extended it. The truth is, I felt a strange thrill pervade me at his touch; he grasped it and held it near the light, thus affording me full time to examine every feature of his face. It was the face of Washington. Gentlemen, I shuddered as I beheld the horribly dead alive look of that visage. After holding my hand for a moment, he looked at me steadily and said in a quiet way:

"'And with this right hand, Senator from Carolina, you would sign your name to a paper declaring the Union dissolved!'

"I answered in the affirmative. 'Yes,' said I, if a certain contingency arises, I will sign my name to the Declaration of Dissolution.' But at that moment a black blotch appeared on the back of my hand, an inky blotch, which I seem to see even now. 'What is that?' said I, alarmed, I knew not why, at the blotch on my hand.

"'That,' said he, dropping my hand, 'is the mark by which Benedict Arnold is known in the next world.'

"He said no more, gentlemen, but drew from beneath his cloak an object which he laid upon the table—laid it upon the very paper upon which I was writing. That object, gentlemen, was a skeleton.

"'There,' said he, 'there are the bones of Isaac Hayne, who was hung in Charleston by the British. He gave his life in order to establish the Union! When you put your name to a Declaration of Dissolution, why you may as well have the bones of Isaac Hayne before you; he was a South Carolinian and no more you; but there was no blotch upon his right hand.'

"With these words the intruder left the room. I started back from the contact with the dead man's bones, and—awoke. Overworn by labor, I had fallen asleep and been dreaming. Was it not a singular dream?"

All the company answered in the affirmative, and Toombs muttered, "singular, very singular," at the same time looking curiously at the back of his right hand, while Mr. Calhoun placed his head between his hands, and seemed buried in thought.

A New Feature of Secession.

The Charleston Mercury, which is the organ of the most advanced section of the dissolutionists of South Carolina, avouts the scheme of a Southern Convention, and is particularly indignant at the idea of going into conference with Virginia and other frontier States on the subject of secession. Here is what it has to say upon that subject:

"Virginia may now sell, but the South shall not answer. She is completely demoralized in the estimation of the South; and no Southern State intent on vindicating her rights and preserving her institutions, would go into a conference with her. She has placed the Union above the rights and institutions of the South, and will only seek a conference with the Southern States in order to bring them down to the level of her fatal Union policy. Virginia and the other Frontier States may as well at once understand their position with the Cotton States. They are not expected to aid the cotton States in protecting themselves and redeeming their liberties. They will practically aid the Northern States in attempting to obtain in the South an acquiescence in the rule of Abolitionists at Washington. The Southern States however, will disregard their counsel. They want no conference but in the Convention which will assemble to frame the Constitution and complete the organization of a Southern Confederacy. They intend to secede from the Union and construct a union amongst themselves, and will be glad to find Virginia and the other Border States in counsel with them after this great revolution."

There is something well worthy of attention in this extraordinary language. It proves that there is some purpose at the bottom of this secession movement, with which the "Frontier States" are not expected to sympathise: something on which they are not considered reliable. What is it?

Hitherto it has been urged that disunion was necessary for the protection of Slavery from Northern interference. But Virginia and the other Frontier States are the only States exposed to that interference. South Carolina is completely protected from it by its distance, and by the fact that these very States lie between her and the predicted danger. The refusal to return fugitive slaves is urged as the reason. But these very Frontier States and the only ones that suffer
