COURT OF OYER & TERMINER.—Before Judges McClure, Mellon, Adams and Parke.

THE IRWIN STREET HOMICIDE.

Tuesday, Nov. 27th—The case of the Com. vs. James Murphy, indicted for the murder of John Fordham, was begun this morning. It will be remembered that the prisoner, under the suspicion that Fordham had been carrying on a criminal intercourse with his wife, beat him severely with a stick. The injuries inflicted were not necessarily dangerous, the principal one being on the arm, but resulted fatally, it is said, from a want of medical attention.

The prisoner had a very intelligent look, with dark eyes and compressed lips, and his aspect betrayed very little of the murderer. He is a middle aged man. To the indictment, which was read to him, as the law provides, by the clerk, he plead not guilty, and in reply to the usual question, answered that he would be tried by God and his country. The jury were then empanelled, and without the usual difficulty, as there were no challenges for cause and only two peremptory. The gentlemen comprising the jury, several of them prominent citizens, were the following:

Wm. Fleming,	Richard Surbly,
Thos. Deahlel,	George Singer,
Robt. Jeffries,	Samuel Bennett,
John McClenahan,	Thos. McFadden.
James Ramsauce,	John Cutter,
Wm. Bissell,	James Espy.

After the indictment had been read to the jury, the Prosecuting Attorney opened the case, detailing the circumstances of the homicide. The following witnesses were then examined:

C. B. Boswich—As Coroner of Allegheny county; on Sabbath morning, April 29th last; I held an inquest on the body of a man named John Fordham, in the house of John Maloney, on Fountain street; Maloney came to my house and said there was a boy at his house, dead, and he thought he had been drinking; I found the deceased's arm swollen; I empanelled a jury, after Murphy had been arrested; and had Dr. Christy to make a post-mortem examination; Dr. Christy since died from pricking his finger with the needle with which he sewed up the corpse; Fordham's arm was black and swollen. [In answer to the question whether there was any discoloration further up the arm, or whether the lungs appeared diseased, witness replied that he could form no judgment on these points.]

There was no other physician present; one of the inmates appeared also to have been injured; Fordham's age was 30 or 40, as near as I could ascertain it.

Cross-examined—Didn't like to say whether deceased's face indicated that he was a man of intemperate habits; he died, I understand, on the morning of the 29th.

Re-examined—I do not know the cause of Fordham's death other than from the testimony of the physician.

John Maloney—Live on Fountain street, a little below Seventh; I knew the man that died at my house; the first time I came to know him he was working as a laborer for Jos Hastings; this was two weeks before his death; on Sunday he came to my house from Hasting's stables, one of the men working for Hasling's with him; he had a black eye and his face was black; on Monday I noticed nothing more the matter with him; I saw him again about the middle of the week and he slept that night at my house with two countrymen of his own; Saturday morning following he came to my house again from Hasting's stable, one of my boarders directing him down to the house; my wife gave him a cup of coffee; his hand (the sore one) was shaking; he allowed he could not hold the cup and she gave him a tin; he drank the coffee but refused to eat; he then went to bed, but came down shortly afterwards to get a bucket of water to bathe his sore arm; my wife told him to go back to bed; he went back to bed; about 11 o'clock he sent down for a drink, he wanted some water to cool his elbow; about 3 o'clock the man in bed with him went to another bed to get some rest; I went up and remained until 5 o'clock to keep him quiet; about this time I got up and went down stairs, and he started to come down too; at the top of the stairs he sunk down and I went to see what was the matter with him; I found him needing help and I called to my wife and a boarder in the house, who helped me down stairs with him; he died while we were taking him down stairs; his arm was sadly swollen and very much discolored.

Cross examined.—This man sent out for a pint of whisky to a store, or rather he went after it himself. He was in liquor when he came to my house without hat, coat or shoes. This was on Monday. On the Saturday before he died he said he wanted to go away for fear he would be arrested. He was not in liquor at this time. When he came back on Saturday he looked very well; he did not eat much; his hands trembled; when he sunk down, he had a hold of the [illegible] door; my wife and a man in the house helped me down with him.

Afternoon Session.—Robert Hague, Chief of Police, sworn—Recollect of the arrest made by officer Moon and H. G. McGuinney; on the way to jail Murphy told me he had caught Fordham in adultery with his wife, and he had given him considerable of a beating; this was after the arrest.

Cross examined—I understood Murphy to mean that he had caught him in the act; don't know Fordham; prisoner was arrested on the 29th and committed either that day or the next; didn't ask Murphy any particulars; have known Murphy for 10 years; never heard anything bad about him.

Mayor Wilson—Had a conversation with the defendant; he was first brought to the Mayor's office on the 22d or 23d, on the charge of disorderly conduct; on that examination he stated that he went home and found Fordham in bed with his wife and had given both a good threshing; didn't say that he had any weapons; understood the woman was pretty badly hurt, and sent a physician to see her, who said she was not in danger; then discharged him, after fining him for disorderly conduct; did not hear of Fordham again until the following Sunday, when his corpse was brought to the office for an inquest.

Cross examined—I believe Murphy kept a boarding house; don't remember whether he sain Fordham was a boarder or not.

Alexander Jack, sworn—I arrested Murphy on the charge of disorderly conduct, in his own house, on the 10 or 11 o'clock on Sunday night; I found him lying on the floor asleep; was not present at the time of the beating; next day Murphy told me he had caught Fordham with his wife down in the cellar and gave him a beating; he also showed me his hands, which were very much swollen; I said I would not have beaten my hands up that way, but would have taken a weapon and knocked his brains out; he replied there was nothing there to make a weapon of; this conversation occurred while I was going with him to get money to pay his fine.

N. Mulholland, sworn—I live in the neighborhood where the beating occurred; saw the body before the inquest; one arm was badly swollen and appeared as if it had gotten a severe blow; it looked rather red.

Wm. Barnhill, Jr., sworn—I am the Mayor's clerk; was in the office on the Monday morning when Murphy had his hearing for disorderly conduct; he made a statement to the Mayor after the officer was through, saying that he had caught "Sally," (meaning Fordham's wife) with his wife, and had given both a good beating; he showed his fists, which were very much swollen; I afterwards learned that Fordham was generally called "Sally."

Mrs. Maloney, sworn—He came to our house on Saturday evening without a coat, and said he wanted somebody to go to his former boarding house for his clothes, that he was afraid to go for them for fear of being arrested; I saw no marks on him but a black eye; on Monday he came back; was not complaining; on Saturday he came back; he looked bad and said he felt poorly; I gave him a cup of coffee; he trembled very much; he afterwards asked for a bed; went up and laid down; came down afterwards for water; at 5 o'clock on Sunday morning he died.

Cross-examined—Friday night he slept in the stable; I couldn't tell whether he was under the influence of liquor or not; he didn't complain when he first appeared at our house; he didn't eat anything on Saturday.

Here the commonwealth closed. Mr. Swartswelder, prisoner's counsel, asked the Court to say whether it was worth while to produce any witnesses, submitting that no case had been made out by the commonwealth. The court replied that it did not like to take the matter out of the hands of the jury, and the prisoner's counsel produced the following witnesses:

John Ryan—Live in Point alley, 1st ward; knew the man called Fordham, he told me his name was Hackell; he was ordinarily known by the name of "Sally;" on the evening of the day of the assault he came to my house; he was sober; he remained all night; next morning he left; he returned in the evening; he was not sober then; during that night he was drinking and carousing and going after whisky; next day he couldn't eat; Tuesday evening he was sleeping in the cellar; he told me he heard Murphy had a warrant out for him; this was his reason for laying in the cellar; he narrated to me the nature of his difficulty with Murphy; Mrs. Murphy and he had gone into the cellar; Murphy was watching him, although she said he was dead drunk; here he had illicit connection with her, and was caught by Murphy in the act, who hit him over the back with a stick and indicted some other injuries; he then run off without coat or hat and slept in Hastings' stable the first night after.

He never complained of, his arm while he was at my house.

Henry McCullough—Have known Jas. Murphy ten years; his reputation as a man of peace and quiet was good.

Francis Feltz—Have known Murphy for ten or twelve years; he is reputed a man of peace.

E. F. Garland—I am acquainted with James Murphy and Catharine Murphy, his wife; they were married by myself in October, 1847; I am a regularly ordained priest of the Catholic church.

Mr. Swarzwelder here stated to the Court that he had a number of witnesses as to character, besides the children of Mrs. Murphy, whose testimony would corroborate that of Mr. Ryar. He, however, was averse to calling them, and deemed it unnecessary. The Court remarked that no one disputed the prisoner's good character, and that the fact of the adultery was clearly proved. Under these circumstances Mr. Swarzwelder closed the evidence for the defence and the case was submitted without argument by the counsel on both sides.

The Court, in charging the jury, adverted to the intemperate habits of Forham, and raised the question whether the excessive useof liquor had not caused his death. "If delirium tremens killed him," said the Court, "John Murphy did not."

The jury found a verdict of acquittal without leaving the box. The great flaw in the case of the commonwealth was the want of clear proof as to the cause of Fordham's death. This want might have been supplied by Dr. Christy's evidence. The substance of it was taken down by the coroner at the inquest, but could not be admitted in the trial. It is not very explicit as to the effect of the beating given by Murphy. It may, however, be gathered from the whole that Dr. C. thought the death ensued from the bruise on the arm, gangrene having supervened in consequence of exposure and want of medical attention.

Com. vs. Thomas Wasley and Samuel Dawson, indicted for riot. The defendants, with several others, came into the tavern of Hamilton Lynock on Federal street, Allegheny city, about the middle of May last, and said they wanted liquor, but had no money. The bar-keeper refused to give it to them when one of them threw a tumbler at him and attempted to get over the counter. Mr. Lynock then told the bar-keeper to retire, and he would get the parties out. The bar-keeper did as he was ordered, and the defendants, with their friends, left. Shortly after Dawson came back, followed by the others, flourishing a knife and making threats of using it on Lynock. The latter called for the police, and officers Long and Jameson came in. They arrested Dawson and Mr. Lynock took the knife out of his hand. Shortly afterwards Dawson appealed to his friends to rescue him, calling out, "pitch in, Roughs! don't let them take me!" Wasley stepped up after this appeal was made and struck officer Long to let Dawson go. The officer refused and told Wasley to mind his business. The latter, however, persisted and struck officer long a blow in the face, a man named McEitresch lifting a chair at the same time. In the emergency both officers drew their revolvers, and Jameson fired at McEitresch, shooting him in the back. The discharge took no effect from this shot and Dawson was shortly after taken off. Whaley was arrested a week afterwards. McEitresch is still at large. On trial.

DISTRICT COURT.—Judges Williams and Hampton on the bench.

Tuesday, Nov. 27.—The case of John Paisley vs. The Owners of the Steamboat Venango, was tried to day. The action is brought to recover damages resulting from a collision between a French creek boat belonging to plaintiff and the steamer Venango, by which the former was injured. Negligence in the management of the steamboat is alleged by the plaintiff, in which a number of witnesses were sworn by the defence. The collision occurred at the Five Mile Island, right adjacent to where a sunk met the locomotive, on the island shore. The pilot testified that when the boats came in sight of each other the continuances was grounded on the absence of a material witness, Decker, the prosecutor, who is now in the Penn Hospital. He is being treated there for partial insanity, brought on by the excessive use of liquor. The case will be taken up among the first in the December term.

THE WEBB SISTERS have done a fair business at the theatre, notwithstanding the bad weather. We see "Leon Da Bourney," a New York Ledger story, dramatized for the stage, and "A Day Too Late" are posted for this evening, the sisters to appear in both plays. To morrow being Thanksgiving day, there will be an afternoon performance.

HONOR TO WHOM HONOR IS DUE.—The superior quality of Mr. Melvin's gifts, and the liberality of distribution, at his Gift Book Store, No. 56 Market street, commend his sales to the book-buying portion of our community; and as an evidence that "enocemis the test of merit," his store is constantly crowded, day and evening, with purchasers who appreciate his liberal manner of conducting business.

FALSTAFF MUSTERING HIS RECRUITS.—This magnificent engraving, together with the Cosmopolitan Art Journal for December, is now in course of delivery to the Gallery of Paintings, and a chance in the drawing for several hundred valuable paintings and works of art, for only three dollars; and for every subscription additional paid by some friend to the Cosmopolitan Association entitles them to a beautiful $10 engraving, such as "Shakspeare and his Friends" or the "Village Blacksmith," an additional chance in the drawing and reserved ticket of admission to the gallery of paintings. Books are now open for subscriptions, at Hunt & Miner's.

SHINGLES.—The shingle market is very dull just now, and prices have a declining tendency. This decline is attributed by a great many to the supply being equal to the demand; to the fall, however, is because may be found in the fact that the demand is not so great as in former years, shingle roofs not being thought of when "Groggon's celebrated Asphalt Roofing Paint" can be obtained. The agent for this excellent material can be found at his office, Laughlin's building, Canal bank, near the city Water-Works.

☞ INFANTILE CORDIAL.—We would request particular attention to the advertisement of Messrs. CHARLES & DUPUY, addressed to "Mothers." The INFANTILE CORDIAL of DR. EATON is a medicine of great merit, and the signature of its manufacturers will be a sufficient guarantee of the care taken in its preparation, and its unvarying purity. The "BLOOD FOOD" is for a disease which unfortunately too prevalent in this vicinity, and its high reputation should ensure a ready sale.—Wilmington (Del.) Journal.

The Suffering in Kansas.

Messrs. Editors: Having noticed in our city papers, recently, articles in regard to Kansas matters, as a citizen, permit me, through your columns, to make a few plain remarks in regard to the same: I have recently traveled over that section of country and visited every town in the Territory, with, perhaps, one or two exceptions. The country has been visited by a very severe drouth, in consequence of which there has been an almost total failure of the crops. The corn crop has been harsh before their main dependence; this has not yielded on an average a bushel and a half to the acre. In hundreds of instances not an ear of corn was gathered in fields of sixty acres.

The question now is, how are the inhabitants to manage until the next crop, with little or no means to procure food, no seed for next crop, and their lands to pay for? They expected to be able to realize sufficient from the present crop to pay for their lands, but have been sadly disappointed. In general the settlers are a poor, but industrious people, having spent the last dollar in making rude improvements to protect them from the stormy blasts which prevail in that country.

It is cheering that our citizens have heard the call, and are now taking the matter in hand toward rendering relief to the sufferers of that unhappy country, for no greater benevolence could any community bestow than by contributing handsomely for the relief of the inhabitants of Kansas.

In regard to Montgomery's band, of which so much has been said, concerning his depredations in Kansas, I would here state the charges preferred against him are unmitigated falsehoods. This man Montgomery and his associates are simply a party of honorable men, collected together (as the case demands) to protect the inhabitants of Southern Kansas from a desperate set of vagabonds, who infest the border. I have on two occasions, while traveling, seen depredations committed in other parts of the country which much needed a Montgomery to protect the property from such outlaws. As regards the moral character of the man it is unimpeachable; this I have learned not only of his own neighborhood, but from parties differing with him in politics. He has not only been defending the property of the Free State party, but of all parties in the neighborhood, all of whom have suffered alike by the plunderings of marauding parties. It is to be hoped that no person will be deterred from contributing to the relief of Kansas by the sinister reports of dishonest men, who, not being disappointed in their alm heretofore, would send reports among us to prejudice the minds of the benevolent, and thus bring upon that people another calamity— starvation. W. J. B.

UDOLPHO WOLFE AND THE LIQUOR TRADE.—This merchant is a public benefactor. There is one spot in the land, where a man can go and purchase pure liquors of any kind pr description. We do not intend to give an elaborate description of Mr. Wolfe's extensive warehouse, or the details of his enormous business, although it will be well for any stranger in town to visit Nos. 18, 20 and 22 Beaver street. There we saw Liquors and Wines in quantities quite startling. A stock of Brandies, pure and choice, valued at ($150,000) one hundred and fifty thousand dollars. Wines of all the choicest vintage, Port, Madeira, Sherry, valued at ($130,000) one hundred and thirty thousand dollars, imported by Mr. Wolfe direct from the London docks, Mr. Wolfe is now doing an Import Liquors, what he has been doing in Gin for several years past. His Schnapps business has increased, until his sales amount to (180,000 dos) one hundred and eighty thousand dozen of bottles of the imprint of the proprietor annually. In five years he will be equally successful with his Brandies and Wines. Heaven grant it may be so, for he is doing a world of good. How many thousands of dollars are now sent out of the country annually by the poisonous bad liquors! How many thousand of valuable lives would have been saved, had Mr. Wolfe commenced importing and bottling pure Liquors and Wines years ago? But better late than too late now. His business merits the patronage of every lover of his species. If he only succeeds in convincing the saint of one-tenth of the bad liquors being sold, by replacing it with his pure importation, he will deserve the gratitude of mankind.—New York Courier.

CONTINUED.—The case of the Commonwealth vs. Lewis D Hutchison, indicted for assault and battery with intent to kill, on oath of A Decker, was continued, yesterday, on motion of Mr. Robertis, defendant's counsel, to be applicable to the continuances was grounded on the absence of a material witness, Decker, the prosecutor, who is now in the Penn Hospital. He is being treated there for partial insanity, brought on by the excessive use of liquor. The case will be taken up among the first in the December term.

MONETARY AND COMMERCIAL.

The week closes with a much more cheer ul feeling in the money market than it opened, and the relief is as great in fact as it is in feeling. The unprecedented expansion in bank loans on Thursday and Friday carried relief at once to all the avenues of trade. The Clearing House reports show that the absolute expansion of loans on Friday over receipts was $4 to 5,000, and the results of such a large and sudden increase of facilities can scarcely be estimated. The bank dealers feel as if an almost unendurable load had been lifted from their shoulders, and the healthy action of business is again observable, although not yet to full force. The bank dealers feel as if an almost unendurable load had been lifted from their shoulders, and the healthy action of business is again observable, although not yet to full force. The demand loan is produce has given way, as exchange has better currency, and the whole machinery of commerce and trade begins to show the effect of free lubrications applied with such a liberal hand on Thursday and Friday by the banks. In the financial centers, however, the effect has not yet been very marked, although the maximum rates have been modified in some instances. On paper, which sold at 18@1 cent and above, the decline has been 2 @ 3 cent. On the better grades it has not been as large. Although some very choice acceptances, indorsed sixty days, will go at 7@8 % cent, the current rates for choice signatures is 10@12 % cent.—[N. Y. Trib.

The produce market displayed unusual activity and vigor this morning, and prices ruled briskly and decidedly throughout the list. The dealings were very large in all the prominent staples, and in State stocks and railway bonds the business was also active and well distributed. Even the greater ease in money has at once relieved the marks of the trouble and depression caused by forced sales, and nothing slaughter has thus been arrested. The shorts at the same time are scrambling to escape the rising tide, which was inevitable as soon as relief came, and the purchases have been increased very much by the removal of hesitation and doubt among outsiders as to the lowest points of the market. A large proportion of the business is still, however, for the purpose of realizing, but speculative purchases are also being made.—[N. Y. Trib.

There is a decided improvement in monetary and business circles. The pressure on the street has materially abated, and first-class paper is more the mark for one thirsty for 10@15 % cent. Exchange on the South and West continues to rule high.

There is little or no demand for gold and silver, and those who had before the suspension, in anticipation of a high premium, provided themselves with large amounts, are very glad to sell it at one % cent premium. It is in railway bonds that Philadelphia is dull.

RIVER NEWS.

The river remains about stationary at this point with 6 feet in the channel by the pier mark. The weather continues wet and exceedingly disagreeable, with indications favorable for a rise. It is reported that heavy rains have fallen in the vicinity of Brownsville, and that the Monongahela was rising slowly at that place on Monday. The Allegheny boats were receiving freight yesterday, and will ply regularly between here and the oil country.

The arrivals were the London from Cincinnati, J W Hellman from Fort Johnson, and Minerva from Wheeling. The Mamm Graham for Evansville was the only departure made from the regular packets. The Minerva did not get out yesterday, having to lay over at Logan's for a part of her boilers.

FORT SCOTT, Nov. 25.—Much of the excitement here during the last week has been without reasonable cause. The business of the Land Office has not been interrupted and no fears exist that it will be. It is the prevailing opinion here that the flight of Judge Williams and the Court was not warranted by the circumstances in the case.

JACKSON, Nov. 27.—The Legislature organized yesterday, when the Message of the Governor was read. Its tone is uncompromising for secession, and the members appear to be unanimous on the same side.
