ELECTROPATHY

PROFESSOR A. S. GREGORY and J. GOUCHER, M. D., have associated themselves together in the practice of their profession, the combining Electropathy and Hydropathy with a
MEDICAL DEPARTMENT.
They have their establishment supplied with a new set of ELECTRO BATHS, which are superior to any now in use. The water used is of such a temperature, and the electric currents so regulated, that the patients, in receiving the benefits of these remedial agents, experience no unpleasantness. This system of treatment is among the safest, most effectual and least objectionable; it equalizes the circulation, soothes nervous irritation, and restores a healthy balance to disordered functions. The medicines prescribed will be compounded and put up at their office, under the immediate care of Dr. GOUCHER, who has had twenty years experience in treating disease.
The following are some of the diseases that yield to their treatment:
Palsy or Paralysis, Incipient Consumption, Rheumatism, both Acute and Chronic; Neuralgia, Headache, Torpid Liver, Hemorrhoids, Fevers, Asthma, Weakness and Ossivations of the Spine, Scrofula, Dyspepsia, Deafness by Nervous Disorder, Ringing in the Ears, Amaurosis or Dimness of Sight, Weak Eyes, Hypertrophy, Spasmodic Retention of the Urine, St. Vitus' Dance, Chalic, Salt Rheum, Prolapsus Ani or Piles, Female Weakness and Irregularities, General Debility, Derangements of the Nervous System, Stiff Joints, all Diseases of the Bowels, Fever and Ague; and Fits of a similar character, invariably Cured without the Knife.
In addition to their office business, they purpose attending to a GENERAL PRACTICE. All calls in the city and vicinity receive prompt attention. Letters containing stamp for postage will be attended to immediately, and if treatment is required, FIVE DOLLARS must be sent, for which there will be sent no letter, but any part of the United States.

Quack Nostrums.

THE NEW YORK DAY BOOK says:
"The majority of Hair Restorers, Hair Dyes, Hair Tonics, Hair Oils, and the numberless preparations which political and fantastic titles as we may call them, under such new cards, and newspaper headings, as hair preparations, are all humbugs of the first water, their rear merit, when they possess any, be that they do no harm." ROSE'S LAIRD OIL, LAIRD OIL, SWEET OIL, scent-d and colored, make up, when in beautiful wrappers and white flint glass bottles, the comliest character of tonics; and when thus costly, are baptized with some vrieyllable term, and caught at by verdant young and old of both sexes. Such is not the character of Professor Wood's Hair Restorative. This gentleman comes before the world without any "high falutin" Xiophiloforium, or any other astounding and startling catchpenny terms he simply advertises a Hair Restorative—what it expresses precisely—and as it is, it advertises it acts. Buy Professor Wood's Hair Restorative, and as you value your health, eyes, your very brains, apply nothing else; for it may be that you will not some years with since than perfumed hair oil on your cranium. Remember her, Wood's Restorative for the Hair is the best article extant."

It Will, by Nature's own Process,
Restore Gray Hair to the Original Color,
Will make Hair Grow on Bald Heads,
Will restore the Natural Secretions,
Will restore it once all itching,
Will remove all Dandruff,
Will cure all eruptions—eyes Scald Head,
Will make the Hair soft and Glossy,
Will make the old appear young,
Will preserve the Color of Hair to old age,
Will always Prevent Hair from Falling,
And is one of the best Toilet Articles for the Hair now in use.

PITTSBURGH:
MONDAY MORNING, DEC. 3.

The Miracle of St. Januarius.

The great, religious festival of the Patron Saint of Naples took place on Wednesday, the 19th instant, and great as is generally the excitement in relation to this festival, perhaps at no period has excitement been greater than on the last occasion. The King had recently fled from the capital; Garibaldi had entered; and these events gave rise to all sorts of speculations as to the course of policy the Saint would adopt. Would he allow his blood to liquefy, or would he prolong the miracle? This was the question at issue, and soon after six the church was crowded to suffocation, and the streets and avenues to the Cathedral were thronged with the credulous inhabitants of the priest-ridden city of Naples and its environs. It was rumored at the cafe de Europa, and at places of public resort on the previous evening, that Garibaldi had given orders that the miracle should "come off" at 9 o'clock, and those who heard the rumor were just as curious as the others who went to the Cathedral, to see whether this fiat would be observed.

The ceremony was as follows: Mass was performed with great pomp, and a silver gilt figure of the saint was placed upon the altar, which was the signal for vivas. The holy bottle in which the blood of the saint is supposed to be was subsequently placed on the altar also. The priests prayed and the people joined in supplication, a candle was placed behind the case in which the bottle was contained, as if to show that all was fair. Just as the clock struck nine the Priest took up the glass case, and turning round to the assembled multitude, held it up to the spectators, thus announcing that the miracle was complete. This announcement was received with acclamations by the credulous, and a significant look by all those who had understood that an order had been given to that effect. Subsequently the glass case was carried down the Church, apparently much to the gratification of the dense crowd, who hailed it with rapture. Then it was presented to those who were near. Some put their foreheads against it, all tried to get near to or touch one or the other. The case may be described as follows:

It is of an oval shape, with a handle at the end of the oval; the face and back of the oval are of glass, and the sides also. It seemed to contain two glass vessels, one like a vial, and another like a small India-rubber bottle filled with dark matter. The priest who held it, and who carried it down the church and presented it to the people for their adoration, turned it round and round to show it; such was the miracle of St. Januarius, which was performed at an unusually early hour. On some occasions the miracle is delayed, and then some women, who are placed near the alter, and who claim to be the descendants of the saint, abuse their saintly ancestor in no measured terms. But there was no ground for such complaint on this occasion. The miracle was performed at 9 o'clock, and it is said the orders of Garibaldi were fulfilled. The following is an extract from the Armonia Italiana, a Neapolitan paper, on the subject of this performance:

"Yesterday not a few alarmists and mischief makers were going about the town, trumpeting forth their foolish fears that the miracle of the blood of St. Gennaro would be delayed in its completion, or would not take effect. Indeed, at one time, the salvos of artillery from the forts announced that the miracle was complete at nine o'clock. And how could it be otherwise? St. Gennaro is an Italian saint, and if his blood will always liquefy so courteously (cortesmente) in the presence of Austrian and Spanish viceroys, in the presence of the Bourbons, and of the French Generals, Championnet, how could it do otherwise than hold freely (bolire alleguamente) on this occasion, when one sees in Naples the great Italian captain, the savoir of the beautiful and great metropolis, so cared for by the holy martyr who protects it from Heaven."

The allusion to General Championnet is somewhat bordering on mischief. When the French occupied Naples in the time of Gen Bonaparte, the festival of St. Gennaro took place and the blood would not liquefy. Hour after hour passed away, and still the Cardinal Archbishop would not announce the performance of the miracle. The people became much excited, and were induced to believe that the Saint was indignant at the presence of the French army in Naples, and that, so long as they remained in the city, his blood would not liquefy. So great was the excitement on the part of this ignorant and bigoted population that matters began to assume a serious aspect, upon seeing which the French General sent a messenger to the Cardinal Archbishop, to say, that, if the miracle were not complete in half an hour, he would occupy the church and seize his eminence. It is needless to say that the miracle was performed within the prescribed period, and the Archbishop and his clergy escaped harmless.—London Observer.

A PECUNIARY SUGGESTION.—It is a matter of notoriety that the Southern States which contain the largest number of advocates for secession and disunion are the States which have suffered least in the past from any of the aggressions charged upon the Federal Government or their confederate States of the North. It is also a matter of notoriety that the Southern States which (lying on the border) have suffered most from the sectional disturbance that have at any time prevailed are precisely those of the slaveholding States which are least disposed to adopt the policy of separation.

What is the indubitable inference from this? Simply that the policy of disunion finds its most strenuous supporters among those who look to it all for the cure of past grievances. If the latter were the inspiring causes of the movement it would proceed from the States which have the most, we may almost say the only, substantial reason for complaint.

Reduced, then, to the inevitable logical necessity of finding the primum mobile of this agitation, so far as it takes its motives from calculations of interest, is some prospective aims which cannot be secured in the Union, but may be secured in a "Southern Confederacy," we obtain a useful hint on the subject from the following prudent outgivings, which are commended to the special attention of our readers in the border slaveholding States. We quote from the communication of a writer in the Charleston Courier, who signs himself "A Southern Planter," and who, after stating the labor demands of the South, expresses the hope that the South Carolina Convention will not discuss the question of reviving the foreign slave trade; and he gives as a reason for this cautious reserve that such a discussion may repel and disgust the frontier States. He says:

"The question of more labor and the opening of the slave trade should be postponed until all the slave States that are willing to unite with us in forming a Southern Confederacy, have perfected their internal arrangements; nor should any measure that is calculated to keep any of our Southern States from us to be argued or acted upon by the Convention. The opening of the African slave trade I am satisfied will have an important bearing on the action of many of the present frontier States, either in uniting them with or separating them from us, and even if a common destiny forces them into connexion with us hereafter, it would be preferable for them to become willing rather than unwilling co-partners in our concern. This question also will have much influence with the great nations of Europe in acknowledging our independence, and will create a like interest in the commercial treaties they may form with us."

In other words, Virginia, Maryland, North Carolina, and the rest are to be inveigled into the new Union before the real objects of it are declared. They are necessary to strengthen the Confederacy; but, after they shall have been used for this purpose, the opinion, not only of the border States, but of the civilized world against the revival of this deplorable traffic may be successfully braved. Who shall venture to predict the disasters—moral, social, and financial—that may ensue to the beneficent form of servitude which now exists in the South if the arrangements of the present Constitution be disturbed.—National Intel.

TOM MONTGOMERY Advertiser, the central organ of the Disunionists at Alabama, speaks of the great conservative States of Virginia, Kentucky, Missouri, and Maryland, as follows:—"We think that all the Cotton States will necessarily follow South Carolina and Alabama, within less than three months after their secession. We do not think that semi Abolitionists of Missouri or the States in which Botts and Winter Davis and Prentice are leaders of great parties, will follow us until kicked out of the Union."

THE VIEWS OF SENATOR MASON.—Senator James M. Mason, of Virginia, whose fidelity to Virginia and the South no one can dispute, in a recent speech, referring to the contingency of Lincoln's election declared that "he should take his seat as a Senator to support and defend the Constitution, the rights and integrity of the State, and when they could no longer be maintained, he should render back to her the high trust reposed in him by Virginia, reserving to her wisdom and patriotism in that exigency to do the best."

The Slave-Trade.

Among the extracts from foreign journals, published in yesterday's Times, was one from the West African Herald, in which it is clearly shown that the Slave trade was never more prosperous than it is in the year 1860. When the traffic was legal, and was carried on between many countries and the Coast of Africa, the tra
