PITTSBURGH:

FRIDAY MORNING, JAN. 11, 1861.

ACROSS THE RIVER.

In any work on the physical geography of America, the States of Virginia and Kentucky are described as lying contiguous to the State of Ohio, and separated from it only by the river of that name. That river, too, as we can all remember, was once made to appear a very doubtful matter, even as a river, by a celebrated Virginian of caustic mood and witty speech. But whatever may be thought of the Ohio river, whether it be just what Randolph represented it, or not, the political and social geographer has le mark a broad line of demarcation between the two States first named and the State of Ohio.

We have just now before us the Annual Message of Governor Dennison, and as we thought a few days ago, when we received the Message of the Governor of our own State, we think now, that if any man in either of the neighboring States named, with but a grain of common sense in his head, would read one of those documents carefully, and consider the facts of progress which they set forth—of progress so great as to be almost without example or parallel in the world's history, and indeed altogether so, till some portion of our own was written—he would need no other argument, no other logic, than the comparison of the facts here and there, a comparison which he must inevitably make too, in order that he should stand on the right side when the question of secession would come up, if indeed there should ever be found Wises enough, and fools enough, to make such a question an issue in either State.

With but that supposed grain of common sense, a man who had learned that in point of fact, both Virginia and Kentucky have like natural resources, are equal in every respect to Ohio and Pennsylvania—in fertile soil, vast mineral wealth, and a salubrious climate—would and must enquire why the development of those States has been retarded. Here are two sister States eastern, and two sister States western. The eastern are maritime States, and certainly Virginia had equal, not to say far superior, natural advantages to start with, and yet see how Pennsylvania has outstripped Virginia, notwithstanding the incomparably superior harbors of the latter.

So of the two sister States of the Great Valley. Besides her unrivalled pasture and farming land, the Geological Survey of Kentucky shows what immense mineral wealth sleeps undisturbed within her boundaries.

What enchantment has spoken the spell by which that sleep continues unbroken? No man could have the hardihood or falsehood to deny that it is—Slavery.

We know of no better means that could be used to lead the sener portion of the people of the border States to profitable reflections than such arraying of facts as the following, for instance, which we group together from the message of the Governor of Ohio, which, as we have said, has led us into these reflections.

The exhibit it presents of the rapid growth of the State is most satisfactory, and in some respects, startling.

"In population the increase since 1850 has been eighteen and four-tenths per cent.

The increase in improved lands during the same period has been 3,254,462 acres, or thirty-three per cent. Increase of grain crops, fifty per cent; increase of hay crop, twenty-five per cent; increase of coal mined, six hundred per cent; increase of iron mined, one hundred per cent; increase of salt made, three hundred per cent; increase of mining values, four hundred per cent; increase of manufactures, (value) one hundred and twelve per cent; increase of mechanical and manufacturing industry, ninety per cent; increase of vessels built, one hundred per cent; of tonnage built, two hundred and sixty per cent; of whole tonnage, eighty-five per cent; of foreign trade, ninety per cent; increase of turnpikes, fifty per cent; of railroads, seven hundred per cent. In 1850 there were but 380 miles of railroads in the State. There are now 3,064 miles; and the estimated cost of the 2,700 miles of railroad built since 1850 is eighty millions of dollars.

The increase in the value of property in the last ten years is seventy-five per cent. In this connection the most remarkable evidence of the prosperity and development of the State is presented in the fact that the entire debt of the State and the people of Ohio is considerably less than the increase in the value of property in the last ten years."

The Liberal Triumph in Mexico.

That millennium, which prophet and priest of a Liberal turn, have long and wearily predicted for Mexico, seems at last to have dawned. Our news, brief as it reads, is to the utmost exciting and gratifying. The Constitutional Army, speeding advance upon the capital has been slow certainly, but, as the result proves, eminently guarded and circumspect, seems to have been anticipated in its approarch by a sortie of Miramon, who on the 22d of December encountered his enemy, and after a contest, of which we lack particulars, sustained a fatal rout, and fled alone to the city. Staying only long enough to pack his portmanteau and portmanteaile, and perhaps to secure the company of his wife, he resumed his flight on the 24th. Christmas witnessed the entry into the capital of the triumphant Liberals, and, in all probability, the close of the war.

The whole of the Republic is thus in the hands of the Constitutional Government. Every State is in the interest of the Liberal cause; and at the very commencement we in this country are treading on the confines of anarchy, peace and unity are restored to our long-vexed neighbor. The contrast is necessarily mortifying; but while we accept the lesson, we cannot absolve in no degree the interests of our profound satisfaction at the new era opened in the land of exhaustless possibilities.

The immediate effect of this triumph, so far as the internal affairs of Mexico are concerned, will be the prosecution of those measures for reducing the power of a seditious clergy, which have already been promulgated from Vera Cruz. Church property will be generally secularized; peculiar odium will be heaped for; trivate, heretofore poured lavishly into the coffers of the church, will be diverted into those of the State; foreign trade will be reopened, encouraged and protected; mining grants and property confirmed and perfected; manufactures developed; and in fact every temptation offered for the introduction of foreign capital, which the enlightenment of the gentlemen who surround and advise President Juarez, has already recognized as the great wants of the State. A few years of peace and progress in the generous policy these briefly indicated, must carry Mexico forward an age in material prosperity.

In its external relations it will be no less fortunate, if the foreign Powers who have reclamations founded on the recent calamities of the State exhibit that momentary forbearance which its present condition of convalescence exacts. England, fortunately for its own intimate relations with Mexico, has just expressed its warm sympathy with the Liberal cause, and indicated in time to be too late, but not too late to be appreciated, its disposition to back the Juarez Administration. Spain, whose demands are known to be merely a pretext for cementing the Ecclesiastical faction, and who is rumored to have a fleet with that object on the way to Vera Cruz, will find its casus belli contrary, and the moment, of all others, untimely, for insisting on a pecuniary claim. France has been satisfied. In regard to the United States, the Liberals have as much reason to rejoice as we have to lament that our government declined to ratify the McLane treaty, and so acquire the prodigious advantages which the present event would have realized.

The "rankness in the horse," which so long afflicted Mr. Buchanan, when he had to stand against the Disunionists and Traitors who had used him and now abuse him, has at length, it would appear, given way to the corroborative remedies which in the stress of the political storm, were administered to him. Under the vigorous administration of these remedies, see how he has improved already, for the Tribune's dispatch reports the following:

"The President remains firm in carrying out the new and vigorous policy which has been adopted. He said recently, in reply to the suggestion of apprehended difficulty in inaugurating Mr. Lincoln, 'if I live till the 4th of March, I will ride to the Capitol with Old Abe, whether I am assassinated or not.'

The reinforcement of marines sent to Fort Washington, on the Potomac, only verifies the statement in my recent dispatch, that troops were to be concentrated in this vicinity as a precautionary measure for the protection of the public property here."

Wm. H. Russell, connected with the Washington embroilment, is a Vermonter, a great stage man, and hitherto considered a Napoleon among financiers. He is President of the Central overland mail, which runs also the pony express, and a partner in several firms, one of which is the Russell, Majors & Waddell, under whose control to carry Utah army supplies those frauds have been perpetrated. He resides in Leavenworth, where he is President of the only bank of issue in the Territory. His property is said to be immense, but it is so scattered and may be so involved that it is doubtful if Government realizes anything from attaching it although the attempt will be made.

[Special Correspondence of the Daily Pittsburgh Gazette.]
HARRISBURG, Jan. 9 1861.

Edit. Gazette: In the House, to-day, Mr. Leisenring (Dem.) offered a series of resolutions instructing the Committee on Judiciary to submit the 95th and 96th sections of the code (the anti-kidnapping law of 1847) to the Judges of our (State) Supreme Court and solicit their opinion as to whether they are in conflict with the Constitution or not.

The House proceeded to the second reading and consideration of the resolutions, by a vote of 50 to 47, many Republicans voting aye for the purpose of getting a direct vote upon them.

Mr. Williams denounced the resolution and the Supreme Court, in a very able speech, in which he showed that that Court was entirely unworthy of confidence. He also opposed, in a masterly manner, the spirit of concession and conciliation, contending that it was the duty of the Republicans to stand firmly by their principles, and use all the power of the government to put down the rebels of the South.

Mr. Wilson moved to postpone the further consideration of the resolutions for the present, which was agreed to. Yeas, 55; nays, 39.

Mr. Armstrong, of Lycoming, (Rep.) offered a series of resolutions, condemning the South for its laws against free speech and a free press and its outrages upon northern men traveling there; declaring the power of Congress over Slavery in the territories; but recommending for the sake of peace, the repeal of the 95th and 96th sections of the Code, and the restoration of the Missouri Compromise. Laid on the table for the present.

There is, I regret to say, a growing weakness among a certain class of members in the House, upon this subject. They are beginning to tremble about the "Union," and talk glibly about conciliation and compromise to save it. There are not enough of them, however, to give the locofocos with them a majority, as yet; what there may be, time only can tell.

In the Senate, House bill to re-incorporate the Butler Mutual Insurance Company was passed and has gone to the Governor.

Mr. Blood's bill relative to a writ of error in Clarion county, passed as amended, and the amendment having been concurred in by the House, the bill has gone to the Governor.

The rest of the day was spent to business unimportant to your readers, chiefly a struggle over some additional officers created by resolution. An additional Sergeant-at-Arms was given to Philadelphia, an additional Transcribing Clerk to Centre county, and three pasters and folders to Lancaster, Philadelphia and Bucks.

The Governor has signed the supplement and the charter of the Pittsburgh and East Liberty Passenger Railway. It authorises the stockholders to appoint the judges at the annual election. E.

HARRISBURG, Jan. 10, 1861.

EDS. "PITTSBURGH GAZETTE".—The two Houses met in joint convention to-day, and elected Henry D. Moore, of Philadelphia, State Treasurer for the unfinished term of Eli Slifer, resigned, and who has been appointed Secretary of the Commonwealth under Gov. Curtin. He received the entire Republican vote, 98. The Democrats voted for Mr. John Rowe, of Franklin county.

The joint convention also counted the votes for Governor as officially returned to the State Department. The returns correspond with those already published. Andrew G. Curtin had 262,349, and Henry D. Foster, 230,239.

The list of appointments by the Governor elect, published in the Centre Democrat, and extensively copied by the press, is bogus. The Governor's confidential friends here have so declared it; and a private despatch from the Governor elect, himself, confirms it.

Mr. Purviance will be Attorney General, and Mr. Slifer, Secretary of the Commonwealth, but it is now given out authoritatively that Geo. W. Hamersly is not on the slate for Deputy Secretary of the Commonwealth. The appointment, it is now said, will be given to Samuel P. Thomas, of Delaware county. The announcement of the change gives general satisfaction.

The Adjutant Generalship is still in doubt, but the latest and most authentic report gives it to Gen. E. C. Williams, of Dauphin county.

The Pittsburgh appointments have not been determined upon. The city is filling up with candidates for both places, from your city, each of whom is busily engaged in electioneering.

The Governor will be here on Saturday. Extensive arrangements for the inauguration, which will come off with great pomp on Tuesday.

The following are the Standing Committees for the session of 1861:

Senate.—Finance—Messrs Finney, Gregg, Welsh, Smith, Benson.

Judiciary—Messrs. Penney, Yardley, Hall, Ketcham, Smith.

Gen. Scott in Richmond, Va.

A correspondent of the World, writing from Richmond, thus refers to Gen Scott's visit to that city:

ARRIVAL OF GEN. SCOTT.

I have just heard of the arrival of Gen. Scott in this city. He has come, as is supposed, to confer with Gov. Letcher on the present crisis. The governor is holding back his message from the printers until the last moment consistant with the possibility of its preparation in time for the meeting of the legislature, on the 7th inst. The object of this course is to embody any new views which the rapid and momentary development of events may suggest. It is generally reported that he will oppose a State Convention; and those most familiar with his sentiments, express the fullest assurance that he will deal back full measure of indignity upon South Carolina which her govern or heaped upon the Old Dominion. There is much curiosity manifested in the city to ascertain the real object of General Scott's mission. His presence causes considerable flattering among the secessionists.

The Effects of Secession.

The Charleston correspondent of the Baltimore American writes as follows:

"Your remedy will never be found in secession. You have the example of South Carolina before you for this. She was to flourish a maritime and commercial State within a month after declaring her independence, and what is the fact. Her port is virtually blockaded. No vessels arrive, because the merchants of other countries and States fear to send them. They fear trouble, danger and loss. They know well enough that the insurance companies do not insure against the hazards of revolution, and therefore the cargoes and vessels remain at home. The proudest result of South Carolina secession, for the present, is to drive all trade to the ports of New York and other cities, where there is no risk and where there is no revolution. Even with freedom from duties, vessels from foreign ports would not prefer Charleston as a market at this time to New York, for in the latter city they are always sure of a good profit, while in the former a larger one may be attained with all the danger of revolutionary eras, when no man's property is safe."

Important Army Movements—The Reinforcements for Fort Sumter.

Further investigation respecting the expedition for the relief of Major Anderson, has elicited the fact that Col. Thorn as, the Aid-de-Camp of Lieut. General Scott, came on from Washington and personally superintended the embarkation of the troops destined for the reinforcement of Fort Sumter. They consisted of two hundred and fifty artillerists and marines, with ample supplies of provisions and arms, and were put on board of the Star of the West in the lower bay on Saturday night, so as not to attract attention.

It is stated that a movement had, last week, obtained the sanction and support of several wealthy merchants of this city for sending relief to the gallant Anderson, and that a large amount of money and materiale were contributed, and a steamer selected for the purpose. On Saturday the parties who were at the head of the movement were informed that the United States Government had undertaken to send supplies and men to the post, and that consequently their patriotic services would not be required.

It is understood that South Carolina has agents in this city, and at other important points who promptly notify the Governor of every movement of troops intended for reinforcing the military posts at the South.

We have good reason to know that it is now understood on Governor's Island that an order has been received in this city from the War Department, in obedience to which all the available troops at this station will be mustered and critically inspected at Governor's Island on Thursday 10th. Lest any man should be absent at roll call the utmost strictness is exercised in making out the daily liberty lists; and no soldier can leave the Island except by special permission. The order is supposed to have authorized the complete equipment and preparation for the road of all the troops in garrison.—New York Times, 8th.

ROMAN EYE BALSAM—For Weak and Inflamed Eyes. Read the following testimony:

BINGHAMTON, January 7th, 1861.

Messrs. A. B. & D. Sands—Gentlemen: Mr. Henry Bolsten, which I was recommended to me for my daughter's eyes, has acted on them like a charm. Her eyes, which had been for several months very much swollen and inflamed, after a few weeks' use of the Balsam, were perfectly cured and well as ever. Yours truly, C. W. FOLEY.

Prepared and sold by A. B. & D. SANDS, Druggists, 140 Fulton street, New York.

Sold by FAHNESTOCK & CO., Pittsburgh, Pa.
Sold also by Druggists generally. ja10:1w&wlt
