

TUESDAY MORNING, MARCH 7.

THE UNION IS SAVING US.

James Bevelay says in his last paper:

"We have been a member of the Methodist Church for many years, and freely spoke in all that affected her interest; and we still do. But if she is considered as a church to become the Anti-Slavery party, we ought to say in the Anti-Slavery work of this country, that we are no longer members of the Union. We have no further use for such an organization." The book "Sovereignty of the Slaveholding States" has been published, under which churchmen will be peculiarly liable who have professed for near a century.

The preservation of this Union is of infinite importance than all else, fraud, treachery, and perfidy, and all the efforts of all the sects in the States. If the eyes of the people of the mounting States have not been blinded by the most base, cotton seeds that can be found in the world, they would see that it is our fathers, neither the labors of ministers, the teaching of book, concern, or the love of God, that have brought us into this world than the Southern Confederacy. These all soul sectionalists where they are, and all their work out of their dominion with greed and covetousness, it is to be expected that leading men of the South will be chafing at the South, and the Union, and the stamp, advocating secession, denouncing the Union, and uttering treasonable sentiments, which merit the death of all.

THE UNIONISTS DEFEND AS TO TAKING FUGITIVE SLAVES.—In Clark County, Indiana, James A. Almon, a colored man, was indicted for keeping up a fugitive slave, and was put on trial, recently, charged with kidnapping a fugitive slave, and taking him to the Free State of Kentucky. On a trial to the jury, he was found guilty, and admitted the law, to be as declared in the case of Fugitive Slave Law of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania. That he had taken the slave into a free State, and taken him to the Free State, and then sent him back to the South, whence he escaped, without proving his claim to him under the Fugitive Slave Law. 2. That the master had a right to pursue and recover his slave, and 3. That it is a master's duty to take a slave from slavery back to his master, and a master's right to do so. He was put on trial, and was found guilty, and the sentence was that he should be confined in prison for life, and pay a fine of $1000. The trial did not end, however, without leaving the box. The testimony did not show that any force or threats were used to get the negro to go to the State of Kentucky.

A MAGNIFICENT CHARITY FINALLY DISCLOSED.—We learn from a report, just issued by the Committee of Relief of the Pemberton Hospital, that the benevolent donation of the people of the United States, for the relief of the slaves, amounting to $65,831, has been finally all distributed for the relief of the sufferers, and the colored relatives of the slaves. One more death has occurred, and the number of negroes who have never been freed from that state, making the total deaths eighty-eight. The Committee has had under their care during the past year, one thousand three hundred and fifteen families and persons. For two persons severely injured, 1600 annuities have been purchased of three hundred and fifty, and four hundred dollars each.—See New York.

The fatal damage by the fire which occurred in the Boston Palace, the destruction of the pictures, and the paintings, "The Rape of Procrustes," by Rouben, a masterpiece of art, the world over, it is scarcely possible to estimate. The Boston Evening Transcript, says that Victor Adamson King of Scotland, to John Duke of Marlborough, but were hidden from public view till the visit of Sir Joshua Reynolds, who painted the picture. It is now to be recommended their being placed in a separate room for the gratification of the lovers of the fine arts.

The French Emperor, before putting the finishing stroke to his great work, "The History of the Empire," has done some local information from Asia Minor, and has selected a young architect of Valencia, M. Edmond, to add a fine Roman specimen, to give him to that country to make up.
