Quack Nostrums.

THE NEW YORK DAY BOOK says: "The Mexican Hair Restorer, Wood's Hair Tonic, Hair Oils, and the numberless preparations which are now before the public under such extravagant, hyperbolical and humbugging terms, are generally the result of window cards, and newspaper headlines, as hair preparations, are all humbugs of the first water, their real merit, when they possess any, is due to some of the following: SPERM OIL, WHALE OIL, LARD OIL, SWEET OIL, scented and colored, made up, when in bottles, wrappers and with first class bottles, the costliest character of device; and when thus costly, are baptized with some lofty-flown term, and caught at by verdant people, who have no brains. Such is not the character of Professor Wood's Hair Restorative. The gentleman come before the world without any high flown Kophokeramic or any other such nonsense, and startling cataclysmy terms to simply advertise a Hair Restorative—what it expresses precisely—and as a Restorative it acts. Buy Professor Wood's Hair Restorative and as you value your scalp, size, your very brains, apply nothing else for it may be that you will get some worse substance for it and spoil your hair all the same. Such is Wood's Restorative for the Hair is the best article extant."

It Will, by Nature's own Process, Restore Gray Hair to the Original Color, Will make Hair Grow on Bald Heads, Will restore the Natural Secretions, Will remove at once all itching, Will remove all Dandruff, Will cure all eruptions—even Scald Head, Will make the Hair Soft and Glossy, Will make the old appear young again, Will preserve the Color of Hair to old age, Will always Fasten it and stay its Falling, And is one of the best Toilet Articles for the Hair now in use.

PITTSBURGH: WEDNESDAY MORNING, MARCH 13.

From Washington.

WASHINGTON, March 10, 1861.

The United States sloop of-war Levant, Captain Hunt, bound direct from the Sandwich Islands to Panama, a voyage of say fifty days, has now been out since September 16, and scarcely the faintest hope can be indulged of her safety. Capt. Hunt went to the Islands under instructions from the Department to institute inquiries into frauds said to have been perpetrated upon the Government in the Consulates and United States Hospitals of Honolulu and Lahaina. He collected a vast amount of information, bearing upon this matter, in which the charges of gross corruption in the public service are fully confirmed. Those charges for invalids have been made for several months after they have been discharged, cured, and had left the Islands altogether, or were employed on the Islands; proofs that five times the cost prices has been charged for clothing to seamen; proofs of collusion with shipmasters, boarding-house keepers, physicians, &c., &c., to defraud the Government; proofs that physicians have paid as high as $3,000 bonus to United States Government agents to be employed in the hospitals, beside many other specifications of direct cheating, were collected by Capt. Hunt, to be reported through Flag Officer Montgomery, at Panama, to the United States Government. These evidences have all been lost with the ship. Dr. Bailey, of Ohio, who has been to Valparaiso and Callao, investigating hospital accounts, &c., of those Consulates, left Panama on the 20th of January, to retake these evidences, and may be expected in Washington with them in the course of the next three months.

Southern Union men express the earnest hope that the Administration will pursue such a policy as will render it unnecessary to send Federal troops South. If that is not done, they say the pressure brought about by secession is pushing on at a fearful pace, which will sweep the odious band, and so left the kitchen overwhelmed with conflicting passions, remorse, and confusion.

"Harold sleeps no more—the cry hath reached his heart ere the deed he accomplished," said the youth on duty, in a voice not devoid of pity, as he looked after the wretch.

"What! T. H.?" said the General, sorrowfully, upon receiving the information, "Can it be possible so young, so fair, so gentle! He would have been the last upon whom a suspicion of that nature could have fallen by right of countenance. You have done well," said he to the youth before him. "Go join your comrades, and be secret."

The young man went accordingly, and Washington returned to the pieces, where several generals were assembled, among whom was the hero of Saratoga, who was waiting for further instructions from Congress before he departed for Canada.

In a few minutes dinner was announced, and the party was ushered into a handsome room, where a sumptuous board was spread, covered with all the delicacies of the season.

Washington took his seat, and placed General Gates on his right hand and General Wooster on his left. When the remainder of the officers and company were seated and eager to commence the duties of the table the General said very impressively:

"Gentlemen, I must request you to suspend your meal a moment. Let the guard attend to me."

All was silence and amazement. The guard entered and formed a little toward the upper end of the apartment.

Washington, having put upon his plate a spoonful of peas, fixed his eye on T. H.

"Shall I eat this vegetable?" he asked.

The youth turned pale, and became dreadfully agitated, while he faintly uttered:

"I don't know!"

Here H. raised his hand, as if by an involuntary impulse, to prevent their being tasted. A chicken was then brought in that a conclusive experiment might be made in the presence of all those witnesses.

The chicken eat of the peas, and immediately died, and the wretched T. H., overcome with horror and remorse, fell fainting, and was borne from the apartment.

The Inundations in Holland.

AMSTERDAM, Feb. 12.—Thank God, the frightful desolation of our inundated districts begins to abate, and the waters are returning to their natural channels. But what scenes of distress, misery and penury do they leave behind them. Some villages are entirely destroyed, not a vestige of habitation remains to show that they were the dwelling place of man. Nearly forty thousand acres of cultivated land have been submerged, and their cultivators been driven from their dwellings to seek shelter in schools and churches, and to eat the bread of charity. The number of cattle drowned or killed it is impossible to state with accuracy, but it is said to amount to several thousand. This, however, is a slight calamity compared with the loss of human life, which, notwithstanding every effort made by the authorities to render assistance, has been swollen to a high figure. When the dykes broke at numerous points, the waters rushed through with such fearful violence as to carry all before them; houses, barns, and cattle, mingled down in their approach; how then could the laborers on the dyke, and their families, resist the crushing strength of the flood and the pressure? The descriptions sent me from the scene of desolation are really shocking. What the poor creatures whose homely dwellings but recently afforded them a comfortable shelter, have had to encounter in the shape of cold, nakedness and starvation, is almost incredible. Truth, indeed, in this case, is stranger, much stranger, than fiction.

VARIATIONS IN THE COMPASS.—In a publication some time since put forth, on the dangers to which vessels are exposed on account of complex variations, it was suggested a plan of some practical importance to commerce. This is, that, in all large ports at least, where vessels are equipped, a competent person ought to be appointed, whose duties should be to select in every ship as advantageous a position for a standard compass containing the two requisites in such selection of a manageable focal attraction and of convenient access for navigating the ship—to determine experimentally the focal deviations of the standard compass in different azimuths, to instruct the master how to repeat the same on future occasions, and to see that he rightly and thoroughly understands the directions of the true magnetic courses from those of the standard compass, and of the course by the standard compass corresponding to the course which he desires to steer.

The Treasury.

"Attention has been drawn to a statement in some of the newspapers that on the morning of the 6th inst. Mr. Corwin, the present Secretary, entered upon his duties, there was a balance in the Treasury, subject to the drafts of the Treasurer and disbursing officers, of six millions of dollars.

On examination into the facts, it appears by the last returns that a balance of three millions was held subject to the Treasurer's drafts by the several depositaries, including New Orleans, Mobile and San Francisco; and, by the last returns, the several depositaries held two millions nine hundred thousand dollars, subject to the checks of certain disbursing officers to whom that amount had been advanced for expenditures for specific purposes.

"There was legally, indeed, about six millions of dollars; but it is obvious that not one-half of that sum can in any sense be regarded as available for the current demands for the public service. Secretary Dix' confidential report to the officers of the Treasury with equal ability during the brief period of his administration; but he had not address enough to get possession of the two or three millions of Government money held by the sub-Treasurers in the seceding States.

"The above paragraph from the National Intelligencer, of Saturday last, presents another evidence of the manner in which the Secession conspirators have succeeded thus far of establishing the Government. They not only capture the forts, and arsenals, and custom houses of the United States, but they steal, here or three millions of Government money, or what is the same as stealing, withhold it, and defend themselves in doing so upon the right of 'existent deeds!'—Phila. Press.

An Incident of the Inauguration.

One of the Representatives of this State in Congress reports an interesting and rather funny incident of the Inauguration, which, not having seen in print, we record. On approaching the platform where he was to take his oath and be inducted into the office of Chief Executive, Mr. Lincoln removed his hat and held it in his hand as he took the seat assigned him. The article seemed to be a burden. He changed it awkwardly from one to another, and finally, despairing of finding for it any other easy position, deposited it upon the platform beside him. Senators and Judges crowded in, and to make room for them he removed nearer the front of the stage, carrying his tile with him. Again it was awkwardly, casually, and as Senator Baker approached to introduce him to the audience, he made a motion as if to replace the silk on the stage under the seat, when Douglas, who had been looking on quietly, and apparently with some appreciation of a catastrophe to the hat, said, "permit me, Sir," and gallantly took the vexatious article and held it during the entire reading of the Inaugural! Dog must have reflected gravely seriously during that half hour, that instead of delivering an inaugural address from that portico, he was holding the hat of the man who was doing it.—Cin. Commercial.

"The authoress of Jane Eyre," says her biographer, "was remarkably felicitous in her choice of words. Shilahs possessed no such talent as could dispose with a nice discrimination in selecting words. One set of words was the truthful mirror of her thoughts; to others, how apparently identical in meaning, would do. She would well patiently searching for the right term till it presented itself to her." This circumstance, says her biographer, explains her style present the finish of mosaic. Each component part, however small, has been dropped into the right place, and she never wrote down a sentence till she clearly understood what she wished to say, and deliberately chosen the words, and had arranged them in the right order." Her manuscript might show the erasure of an entire sentence, but rarely the alteration of any of the words.
