SATURDAY MORNING, APRIL 13, 1861.

THE WAR HAS COMMENCED.

With a swift and cruel contradiction of its message last night, the telegraph now brings the stern tidings that the cloud of war so long gathering around Anderson and the brave men with him, who have faithfully guarded their country's flag within the walls of Sumter, has burst upon their devoted heads at length.

The chronicles in this paper are pretty full, and unquestionably authentic as to the main facts; but let the reader bear in mind that they all come from the Secessionists. As to the reported breach in the south-east angle of the fort, we do not believe it; for in that place the wall is some 14 feet thick. The fleet had not arrived, according to those accounts; but surely it would reach that point sometime during the night. Further advices will be awaited with intense and painful interest.

The secessionists have drawn upon their own heads the fearful responsibility of inaugurating civil war, and a tremendous war it is likely to be.

The passage of the war bill last evening by the Legislature of Pennsylvania will be hailed with unanimous satisfaction.

LATER.

Dispatches received at midnight announce the arrival of some of the ships of war. There will be hard fighting to-day.

A SECESSION "OPERATION."

Our readers are all aware that the Congress of the Confederate States, some time ago, authorized a loan of $15,000,000, to enable their government to carry on the magnificent operations, both civil and military, which were laid down in the programme of secession and revolution. No doubt ever disturbed the brain of one of them but that the capitalists of the world would feel honored in being permitted to buy their stock. To have any misgiving about the ability of the man upon whom the whole world was dependant for cotton, to borrow fifteen millions at 8 per cent., would, to a Southern Statesman, have been to the last degree absurd. Boldly and confidently they threw out their net to catch the dollars, but the shy things would not come in.

But money must be had; and men who could loan, but would not, must be made to loan. That kind of thing is not new. Numerous precedents for the practice may be found in all despotic governments; and when we become better acquainted with the administration of his majesty of Dahomey, no doubt we shall find that his august example may be added to the long list in justification of the measure.

The statement of the case in brief is this: Finding that there was no probability of the stock going off by its own buoyancy, the treasury department has been obliged to apportion five millions among the banks of New Orleans, Charleston, Savannah, Mobile, and some other places. New Orleans being the only wealthy city in the Confederacy, three millions of dollars were allotted to it. The other two millions were divided among the rest. We take it for granted that those banks will be constrained, on pain of extinguishment or worse, to "fork over."

When the secessionists seized the New Orleans Mint, they found $600,000 in the real hard stuff, a large proportion of which belonged to individuals. This they stole, of course; and it served those patriots to vapor upon for a good while. But it is all gone now, so the only alternative is to rob their own banks, or suffer the whole grand affair to collapse, and leave the South to fall back under the rule of Lincoln and the Black Republicans. When the banks shall be crushed out, we cannot tell what they will do; unless they take to playing pirates on the Gulf, and that would be very dangerous.

We said a few days ago, that the government of the Confederacy had in it no strength or element of endurance, and facts like this go far to confirm the opinion. Money is the sinew of war; but if the Confederate States are obliged already, before a gun has been fired, to resort to forced loans, there is not much reason to be alarmed. While Secretary Chase can get any amount of money at six per cent., the Southern government is unable to raise a dollar at eight per cent. That fact alone settles the question as to the relative strength of the two governments.

Important Movements in Italy.

Rome is to be the capital of United Italy under Victor Emanuel, unless the almost unanimous design of the Italian Chamber of Deputies should be thwarted by new complications. The Pope is to be completely divested of political power, while his independence as the spiritual head of the Church is to be guaranteed.

On the 25th of March, Count Cavour delivered a very important speech in the Chamber. Speaking of the union of temporal and spiritual power in the same hands, he used these deeply significant words:

"When these powers are united, liberty disappears, the rule of caliphs prevails. It will never be so in Italy. Let us examine under all its aspects this question of the influence of the union of Rome with Italy upon the independence of the spiritual power. Now, in the first instance, does the temporal power render the Pontiff really independent? If it were so I would hesitate to solve the problem. But no person can maintain such a view in the times when sovereigns, resting upon the divine right, regard their domination as a right of absolute property over men and things.

"If we are the defender of the temporal power, but I must be just towards it. I hold neither the Pope nor his ministers to be responsible for the atrocious acts to which, at certain points, the reaction tended. These acts only prove the deplorable influence which such a regime exercises over human character. I believe I have sufficiently established the antagonism which exists between the Holy See and the populations. If that be so, this power is not for the Pope a guaranty of independence."

What ponderous rebukes for past abuses and oppressions lie concealed in those heated phrases! Nothing could be better calculated to strike the shackles from the consciences of the people; yet no offence can be taken. While he courteously apologizes for the Pope in regard to the atrocities committed in his name, he rolls the entire responsibility upon the system of which he is the head and embodiment. Let the reader ponder the words carefully, and he will see that the blow reaches far beyond the temporal part of the system—even to its essence and spirit. We add the closing paragraph of this remarkable speech:

"History shows us that Rome, invaded by the Spaniards of Charles V., saw the Pope some time afterwards crown Charles V., and ally himself with him. Why may we not see the same change wrought on Pious IX. at the present day? But if the Pope should repulse us, as he has hitherto done, we shall not cease to remain faithful to the same principles. Arrived at Rome, we shall proclaim the separation of the Church from the State, and the liberty of the Church. When this has been done, and consecrated by the representatives of the nation, and when the veritable tendencies of Italians and their sympathy for the religion of their fathers have been made evident in the face of Europe, the great majority of Catholics will approve, and will come to fall on the right hand, the responsibility of the struggle into which the court of Rome would have sought to enter with the nation. At the risk of being damned Utopian, I avow my belief that when these principles have been proclaimed and consecrated by you, the soul of Pius IX., opening itself anew to the generous sentiments which earned for him such hearty approval some years ago, will stimulate him to seek to acquire the immortal glory of having reconciled the Italian nation with the church, and religion with liberty."

The great problem will now be tested, whether the Catholic Church, as a great system, can be maintained in the midst of both civil and religious liberty. To vest uniform and rigid intolerance, as of old, as the system in the States of the Church, and in other countries where it had the rule, has been taken by Catholics as a matter of course, and it would not—but never—occasion surprise that it should not. But never, on either side of events has taken away from it all support except its own inherent merits and status, whatever they may be, and left it to weapons or elements exempt these.

"Our Secession Correspondent" Again!

G. N. S. sends the following despatch to the New York Tribune, dated Montgomery, April 10:

"A collision at Charleston and Pensacola is momentarily expected.

"In order to prevent anarchy and war, the Democracy of the North should at once rebel, and accept the Constitution of the Confederate States.

"The entire South will soon be under arms, but the New York Democracy, by prompt action, may possibly ward off the impending danger."

It is evident that he and the conspirators for whom he speaks, rely on such rebellion as one of the means by which the Federal Republic is to be broken down and the Black Oligarchy established in power upon its ruins. But we think they are doomed to disappointment in this as in other respects. While there are among the Democrats and so called Union men of the Free States plenty of traitors who would gladly extend the Negro Dictatorship over the whole country, they are yet in a minority so hopeless that they can be of no practical service to their treasonable friends at the South. The mass of Northern men are loyal to the Union. It is true, that such creatures as control The Express, for example, desire the extension of the Montgomery constitution over all the States, except perhaps those of New England; but the great body of the Northern Democrats are for the good old Constitution of our fathers, and for sustaining the lawful Government. On this head read the subjoined extract from the Boston Herald, hitherto one of the most thorough going of Democratic journals:

"The President must either meet the rebellion and put down the traitors, or the nation must be disgraced at home and abroad. Civil war is to be deprecated, but those who have begun it must take the consequences of their acts. The traitors must be overpowered, or this nation must go to pieces. Procrastination will not answer, it only puts off the evil duty, and the war will be more deadly. If the rebels are determined on a fight, and will not be satisfied without one, why the best way is to meet it at once and have it ended. If the President has made up his mind to act, we hope he will make thorough work of it, and call into requisition the whole power of the nation, and show to the rebels and to foreign powers that the American people are still a unit in the land, and must be respected in their rights."

This speaks the earnest sentiment of the people of every party. The traitors among us to-day, noisy as they are, are proportionally much fewer than the Tories in the times of the Revolution.

The Republican Central Committee of New York, held a meeting Thursday, and unanimously passed resolutions approving the course of the Administration in asserting the authority and upholding the rights and dignity of the nation. The Committee also strongly condemns the traitors in that city who are striving to give aid and comfort to the public enemy, and to paralyze the arm of the Government at a time when its very existence is menaced by rebels.

FROM HARRISBURG.

[Correspondence of the Pittsburgh Gazette.]

HARRISBURG, April 11, 1861.

Eds. Gazette: The Senate, yesterday morning, took up the Apportionment Bill, and passed it without essential alteration. It took only two hours to put it through—the first instance, on record, of such dispatch. Several efforts were made to amend it, but in vain; and it passed finally, 25 to 8—Messrs. Nichols and Thomson voting with the Democrats, because dissatisfied with their districts.

The bill appropriating $49,900 to the Farmer's High School, also passed, 18 to 15. This is, I think, the most foolish expenditure of money ever made by any Legislature.

The House took up the Apportionment bill in the evening, and spent the session upon it. All attempts to amend it were voted down. It will probably pass to-day.

In the Senate the following local bills passed:

House bill to divide Ebensburg into two wards.

Senate bill, supplement to the Wampum Coal and Iron Company.

Senate bill, supplement to the act extending Pennsylvania Avenue.

Senate bill, supplement to the Pittsburgh and Birmingham Passenger Railway.

Senate bill, to confirm title to certain escheated estate in Elizabeth tp., Allegheny county.

The bill to authorize a re-examination of the claim of Sherman Bills, was killed, 14 to 13.

The Senate sat again early, morning and afternoon, in the private calendar, putting through on first reading the bills not reached the day before. The following passed first reading:

A further supplement to an act incorporating the Bedford Iron Company.

A further supplement to an act authorizing the citizens of the borough of Mercer to erect a Union school house in said borough, approved the 15th day of May, A. D. 1856.

An Act to incorporate the Allegheny Oil Co.

An Act relating to Allegheny county.

HARRISBURG, April 11, 1861.

EDS. GAZETTE:—In the Senate, to-day, the vote killing the bill for a re-examination of Sherman Bills, was reconsidered and the bill passed, 18 to 7.

The following bills were passed:

Senate bill to make it a felony to resell, alter or defraud with, railroad tickets.

House bill supplementary to the act incorporating the Pittsburgh and Erie R. R. Co.

House bill to lay out a State road in the counties of Erie and Venango.

House bill to lay out a State road in Clarion and Venango counties.

House bill supplementary to the act incorporating the Fayette County R. R. Co.

In the House, the bill to take away from the Supreme Court, the power to appoint Inspectors of Penitentiaries, passed after a severe fight, 54 to 40.

The following Senate bills also passed:

An act to enable the county of Armstrong to compromise with the holders of bar bonds issued to the Allegheny Valley Railroad Company.

An act reannexing the farms of John McCullough and John L. Williamson, in Mercer county, to the Cool Spring District.

An act annexing the real estate of W. W. Corbett, of Rose tp., Jefferson co., to the borough of Brookville in the same county for school purposes.

The House then took up the private calendar and passed finally about one-half the bills that had previously passed first reading. The other half will not be reached until to-morrow.

The Special Committee on the Governor's War Message are in session, as I write, and will probably report a bill in accordance with the Governor's suggestions.

ROBERT HUNTER.

The Democratic members held a caucus upon it and were at first disposed to put themselves in opposition to any bill to arm the State. But on talking it over, the secessionist faction proved the weakest, and the party vote will not, by any means be cast against the bill. F.

From Washington.

[Special Despatch to the Evening Post.]

WASHINGTON, Apr. 11.—A despatch from Charleston, dated at noon to-day, has just been received here. It states that everything was quiet at that hour, but that the southern troops were prepared for immediate service.

Two companies of Virginia troops left Richmond for Charleston last evening. It is supposed they go to reinforce Beauregard's command.

The Southern Commissioners left this city to-day for the South.

This movement was expected. The Commissioners have already expressed their opinion that war was inevitable, and some days since announced their intention to withdraw.

Before leaving town they transmitted to Secretary Seward a rejoinder, setting forth their reasons for departing, and replying to the positions assumed in his answers to their demand.

The President still hopes for peace, although he apprehends the occurrence of a collision at Charleston at any moment. He declared this morning, however, that he thought no decisive event could take place till Saturday.

The military fever is rapidly spreading here. The militia of the District of Columbia are to-day offering their services to the government in large numbers, and the greatest enthusiasm prevails. The Administration will be fully sustained in its position, and the safety of the capital is undoubtedly ensured by the ample preparations which have been made to repel any attack that may be made upon it.

The Secretary of the Treasury has deferred the opening of the bids for Treasury Notes from ten to three o'clock, for the purpose of giving the banks of New York time to make up a combination bid for nearly the whole amount. Proposals for about $1,000,000 have thus far been received.

More Treason.

It is reported that immense activity prevails at the private manufactories of arms in Hartford and other portions of Connecticut, and that orders from the South are constantly received and filled.

At a single factory in Hartford one hundred and fifty men are working night and day, making patent rifles for the rebels of the Confederate States. Great numbers of the ordinary style of Sharpe's rifles are also manufacturing in the same city.

It is further reported that the orders from the military authorities of the seceding States are of the heaviest kind: it is no unusual circumstance to receive orders for work to the amount of one hundred thousand dollars in a day.

These contracts, we are informed, are exclusively southern, and we learn, moreover, that they are invariably accepted and are now filling as rapidly as possible.

It thus appears that the Confederates, who are in rebellion against the government, still find aid and comfort from the North.—N. Y. Post, 11th.

Additional Texas News.

By the Concascolcos, we have the following additional particulars:

The troops in Texas are in excellent health and condition, and are abundantly supplied with provision and means of transportation.

The Empire City was to leave Indianola in about eight days after the departure of the Concascolcos. She would take on board the third detachment of troops.

She Star of the West would probably be detained for twenty-five days.

The number of troops left in Texas is about one thousand men, some of whom have to perform a march of seven hundred miles to reach the coast.—N. Y. Post, 11th.

Rheumatism! Rheumatism! Rheumatism!

It is well-known that bathings, ointments and external applications, only drive Rheumatism from one part of the system to another. Sometimes, with fatal results. MORE NEW TESTIMONY!

From the Rev. Father Rondeau Purcyastsky:—I have been troubled with Deafness for a length of time, and am consulting Dr. VON MOSCHZISKER. He operated on my ears successfully as to restore my hearing entirely. I think it, therefore, my duty to those afflicted with defective hearing, as well as an acknowledgment of the Doctor's great skill and talent, to make the above publicly known. I most strongly recommend all sufferers to avail themselves of this rare opportunity.

TO BUSINESS MEN.—An excellent chance for reliable business men to secure a profitable manufacturing business, requiring but a small capital in its establishment and prosecution.

The manufacture consists in the application of a peculiar compositition or enamel to common sad irons, and a variety of other building material, ornamental architectural finishings, ceilings tiles for floors and for roofing.

This enamel may be finished of any color from the purest white to the deepest black, with all the colors and shades between. It imparts to the articles to which it is applied a hardness and capability almost incredible, and a beauty surpassing that of the rarest and most costly of the variegated marbles, and, unlike them, is impervious to moisture, and will never fade, stain, or discolor, resting but a few thousandth part of the price of ordinary marble.

It is also valuable for table and stand tops, mantle pieces, ornaments, and an endless variety of other articles of simple use. The process of applying the enamel is simple, while the articles enamled will command a ready sale, affording large profits. Responsible parties may procure licenses for manufacturing under the patent for any city or prominent town in the United States, by applying to the inventor.

A small tariff on the articles manufactured will be required for the use of the invention. Circulars giving full particulars will be forwarded to all applicants.

The superior merit and beauty of this enameled building material to anything in use has the unqualified indorsement of many of the most eminent architects and others in the city and other cities. For particulars address

THE ETHEREAL EAR INHALATOR,

AN INSTRUMENT INVENTED BY

DR. VON MOSCHZISKER,

Through which he has been enabled to cure the MOST OBSTINATE CASES OF DEAFNESS—cases in which every other means has failed and all hopes of relief given up. This is no idle statement. Its truth is attested by hundreds of gentlemen whose names are familiar throughout the United States—CLERGYMEN, PHYSICIANS, LAWYERS, CLERGYMEN and JUDGES, witnesses to the fact.

DR. VON MOSCHZISKER

begs to say to all who suffer either from

Deafness or any Malady of the Eye, that they should AT ONCE CONSULT HIM, in order to receive the

of his treatment.

The following are some of the names whom testimonials can be examined at Dr. Von Moschzisker's office. They have been entirely restored to their hearing by him:

PITTSBURGH:

JOSEPH PEARSON, Sailors' street, Lawrenceville;
THOMAS MOORE, First street.
H. LANGHAMP, north-east corner of Diamond and Market.
And others.

JAMES MACKEY, Jr., 259 Penn street.

ap9—To this list hundreds more could be added and can be seen at the Doctor's Office.

Office, No. 155 Third Street,

(Between Smithfield and Grant,)

where he can be CONSULTED DAILY from 9 a. m. to 3 o'clock p. m.

ARTIFICIAL EYES INSERTED.
