APPARENT INACTIVITY.

There is nothing more dangerous in a great nation, and especially at a time of great excitement and peril, than for the people to get ahead of the government; yet this appears to be the condition of this nation at this moment. Grandly have the people risen up to defend their constitution and their flag against the most enormous treason that the world ever saw; but the generous outburst is already checked by the apparent want of nerve in their leaders at Washington.

No one doubts the fidelity of a single member of the cabinet; but these times require other qualities besides fidelity. Courage, promptitude, decision are what the times require—a firm, unfaltering, onward movement in the path of duty, regardless of the arrogant dictation of men whose treason is already patent to the world. To suffer Maryland to force the supreme government to take a route through that State, unusual, inconvenient, and precarious, over which to transport troops and provisions to the capital, is only one step from a surrender. But it was worse, still, to beg the poor privilege of using that one out-of-the-way route by giving a promise that the force so transported "is intended for nothing but the defence of this capital." Is that all? Is Maryland to be left in the hands of an organized mob, over which the government at Washington is to have no authority or jurisdiction. Is Baltimore to be permitted to bar the only proper avenue between the free States and the National Capital indefinitely? Is treason to be permitted to run riot on the other side of the Potomac, even up to the very gates of the capital? Does the government intend to do nothing to protect the men and women of Virginia, who are still true to the Union, from outrage, expatriation, and every abuse which the brutal leaders of this treason may choose to heap upon them? We tell Mr. Seward that if the defence of the capital be all that these brave men who have gone from our midst are to be allowed to do, the capital is not worth defending—that its salvation would be dearly purchased at the expense of a single life.

We fervently hope that there will be no more elaborately courteous correspondence with, nor "distinguished consideration" for, men who, if not traitors themselves, are in the hands and under the control of traitors and outlaws. Mr. Seward, in his unfortunate dispatch to Gov. Hicks, has made a promise the keeping of which would be the utter destruction of the government.

Action is what is needed now; swift, stern, decided action—action that will challenge the respect of both friends and enemies—action commensurate with the mighty pulsations of the great heart of the nation. Let the conduct of the administration be such as will bring the flush of patriotic pride into every true American's face, not the blush of shame and mortification.

The times require plain talk, and plain talk is the order of the day. In such a cause as this now pending, men, however honored and distinguished, are of no account. Mr. Lincoln is believed to be a man of courage, let him, therefore, rise to the high and tremendous responsibilities of his station, and suffer no man to hold his hands or put him in a false position. Really we begin to believe that there is some truth in Talleyrand's celebrated aphorism, that a blunder is worse than a crime; for we doubt if the scandalous treason of Cobb and Forsyth combined inflicted so sore a wound on the popular heart as did Mr. Seward's dispatch to Gov. Hicks.

VIRGINIA THE BATTLE FIELD.

Virginia is likely to be made the battle field in this contest; for Maryland is not able to resist the progress of the hosts from the North for a single day. No state more richly deserves to be made the battle-field, for her perfidious, sneaking course throughout the whole contest. Her Unionism was sheer hypocrisy, as we often said it was, weeks ago. With her professed devotion to the constitution, her conservatism, her mediation, and her ultimatums, she managed to gain much time for the secessionists, and now she casts aside her mask and appears in her true character—as arrant a traitor as South Carolina or Alabama. Give her war, and plenty of it, until she begs for quarter, and promises to be submissive. The cotton States can be starved into submission; but Virginia needs a sound thrashing.

BEWARE, MAGOFFIN!

Thomas H. Clay, of Kentucky, a son of Henry Clay, has addressed a letter to the citizens of Fayette county, reviewing the action of the Confederates and denouncing secession. He says Kentucky has one hundred millions in slave property which would be destroyed by secession and the establishment of a foreign border on the North. He advises a conference of the Border States for the purpose of combining to maintain a neutrality. The following concluding sentence of his letter is an exhortation to Governor Magoffin:

> I would say respectfully to the Governor of our Commonwealth, beware! You dare not take one step toward revolution without the approbation of the people. You cannot constitutionally call a Convention. Should you attempt it, the judgment of an indignant and outraged people will rest upon you forever.

TREASON.

Judge Betts, of the United States Circuit Court, New York, delivered on Wednesday an important charge to the Grand Jury on the law of treason and piracy. He defines treason to include acts of building, manning, or in any way fitting out or victualing vessels to aid the enemy; sending provisions, arms, or other supplies to them; and raising funds or obtaining credit for them. Any person cognisant of such acts who does not promptly inform the authorities is guilty of misprison of treason, the punishment for which is seven years imprisonment and a fine of $1,000.

The Border States' Governors.

The feasiest proposition yet put forth is, that the government shall refer the present difficulties between the North and South to the arbitrament of the governors of the Border States—Hicks, of Maryland, Letcher, of Virginia, Magoffin, of Kentucky, and Jackson, of Missouri. They can fix it up directly.

TREACHEROUS TAMPERING.

On the 22d inst., L. P. Walker, Secretary of War of the Confederated States, sent a telegraphic dispatch to Gov. Magoffin, of Kentucky, as follows:

"MONTGOMERY, April 22.

HON. B. MAGOFFIN, Frankfort:

SIR: Your patriotic response to the requisition of the President of the United States for troops to coerce the Confederate States, justifies the belief that your people are prepared to unite with us in repelling the common enemy of the South. Virginia needs our aid. I therefore request you to furnish one regiment of infantry without delay, to rendezvous at Harper's Ferry, Virginia. It must consist of ten companies of not less than sixty-four men each."

Then follows the details of the official organization of the regiment. Is Gov. Magoffin a traitor? Evidently the authorities at Montgomery take him to be so, and probably not without good reason. The Louisville Journal comments with great severity upon the position in which the Governor has allowed himself to be placed. Should he attempt to comply with the requisition he will raise a storm in Kentucky that will be likely to have a wholesome influence upon the political atmosphere of that State.

THE Rev. Dr. Cheever, of New York, has been lecturing in Liverpool with more than usual success, and he is now devoting all his energies toward the prevention of any acknowledgment of the Southern Confederacy by the British Government. In the effort he has shown an undoubted ability, and is doing good.

LATEST BY MAIL.

[From the New York Post of Thursday.]

HARRISBURG, April 25, 1861.

Two Massachusetts men fleeing from Thomasville, North Carolina, arrived here this morning via Carlisle.

Last Sunday morning five hundred South Carolinians passed Thomasville on their way North. All along their route north troops were getting in the cars, and they heard them talk freely, and said their destination was a southern camp twenty-five miles south of Washington, on Aquia creek.

The men left Baltimore via the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, and could not get out any other way. They passed Harper's Ferry, and saw a number of troops there; they judge from three thousand to four thousand, and batteries were erected on the high ground commanding the town. The arms the troops had looked new and bright and their tents clean. They had no means of ascertaining the accurate number at Weldon, North Carolina, but saw one man pleading for his life with a mob, but are unable to state the result.

Three men reported that they had to volunteer or leave. They left, however, and quite suddenly. They are both intelligent men, and bore interrogation well.

A gentleman who left Washington Monday evening, and came to New York by way of the Relay House, and the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad to Wheeling, and thence by way of Pittsburgh to Philadelphia (the most commodious route now open) states, that at Harper's Ferry a battery of four guns had been planted on the Virginia side, commanding the bridge. The train was stopped on the bridge (the gunners standing at the guns with port fires lighted,) and searched by officers with drawn swords. The baggage was examined to detect any munitions concealed.

The road for about a mile before reaching Harper's Ferry was lined with soldiers at short distances.

At Martansburg, Va., the landlord of the Supper Stand stated that a dispatch had been received there that evening, declaring that Jefferson Davis was within a few miles of Richmond with five thousand troops, where Beauregard was to join him with an equal force.

The Virginia force at Harper's Ferry was claimed by themselves to number three thousand. Our informant thought it true, from what he saw.

At Wheeling a strong Union feeling prevailed. Two thousand five hundred men were under arms. The American flag flew from the Custom House whence the people said it should not be removed. Any number of people from the Ohio side were ready to aid the people of Wheeling at short notice.

At the large iron factory, opposite Bellair, the proprietor, on Tuesday, hoisted a secession flag. His operatives all refused to work till it was pulled down and the National flag hoisted.

No troops were at the Kelay House on the Baltimore Railroad when our informant passed.

BOSTON, April 25.—The following officers attached to the Niagara have resigned:

First Lieutenant, N. Brown, of Mississippi; Fourth Lieutenant, D. D. McCreele, District of Columbia; Midshipman, Ed. D. Read, Virginia; Chief Engineer, Wm. P. Williamson, Virginia; First Lieutenant of marines, Israel Green, Virginia; Second Lieutenant of marines, H. George Bulkley, Virginia; Purser, Thomas Ware, Virginia; Assistant Engineer, H. A. Ramsay, District of Columbia.

Midshipmen Swan and Schley have telegraphed their friends last night for instructions as to their course.

The Niagara will sail to-day for New York.

HAVRE DE GRACE, April 25.—The Baltimore South of last evening, received here, speaks about the election yesterday as progressing quietly, and that about two votes polled being consequently small. There was no opposition to the "Southern Rights" ticket, and no contests manifested, the people voting or not, according to their convenience.

A freight train at Slemmer's Run was seized, loaded with provisions, etc., supposed to belong to the Eighth Massachusetts Regiment.

PHILADELPHIA, April 25.—An arrival from Annapolis reports that five additional regiments had arrived there with the sappers and miners, and a corps of flying artillery with twelve pieces, and the railroad and locomotive workmen to attend the repairs of the railroad and machinery.

New York with 30,000 Men in Arms.

Gov. Morgan, of New York, has issued a proclamation calling out twenty-one regiments in addition to those called for by the former proclamation —thus making the full complement of 30,000 men. [From the Baltimore American of Thursday Afternoon.]

The Troops at York, Pa.—More Bridges Destroyed.

It has been currently reported and believed by our citizens that the Pennsylvania troops which have been stationed for several days past at Cockeysville, Baltimore county, had left and proceeded to Harrisburg, but it now appears that such is not the case, as they are stationed at York, Pa., awaiting the arrival of reinforcements.

The train containing the troops left Ashland station, about one mile above Cockeysville, at 3 o'clock, Tuesday morning, and after a somewhat tedious journey arrived in York about 9 o'clock the same day.

They were received at the depot by an immense concourse of citizens, and received a military escort as far as the Fair Grounds, about one mile from the city.

Here they encamped, being furnished with a large number of tents by the authorities, and will remain to await the arrival of the reinforcement of volunteers.

Large numbers of volunteer companies are hourly arriving in the city and enroling themselves under the command of Col. Wynkop.

Immediately upon the departure of the train from Ashland, the authorities of Baltimore county dispatched a body of armed men to follow in the rear of the train and destroy the bridges, which they did, burning all the bridges, large and small, from Ashland to the Maryland line, with one exception, the "Gunpowder Bridge," which was spared.

During Tuesday the train which had conveyed the troops to York was sent, together with seven powerful engines, to Bridgeport station, opposite Harrisburg, for the purpose, it is said, of carrying 5,000 volunteers (now in Harrisburg) to York.

Several of the officers state that they are to concentrate 15,000 men in York, when they will take up a line of march through the northern counties of this State, and force their way to Washington at all hazards.

Great excitement exists among the people residing near the State line. All business and farm work has been given up, and the citizens quietly but anxiously await the course of forthcoming events.

The turnpike from here to York is literally black with vehicles of every description, containing whole families from Baltimore, who are hurrying to the country. A great many strangers are also proceeding to Pennsylvania, for the purpose of embarking for the North.

The country hotels upon the line of the road are reaping a harvest from the travellers.

Several volunteer companies are being formed in Baltimore county for the protection of their homes.

REPORTED CAPTURE OF FORT PICKENS.—The Portsmouth Transcript of Wednesday has the following:

Dispatches received last night give the important and glorious news that Fort Pickens has been taken by the gallant sons of the South. The loss on our side is said to be heavy. One of the dispatches states that the loss on the side of the South in the desperate struggle was twenty-five hundred. But the victory is ours.

Mr. Seward's Letter.

The New York "Tribune" thus concludes a notice of this production:

The tone of the Secretary's letter is deprecatory—almost apologetic. He seems to fancy that Treason may be diverted from its fell purpose by Rhetoric, and a base foiant vanquished by a pathetic appeal or a striking historic parallel. But it is not by such positions or such a tone that the heroic spirit which has been evoked to save the Nation can be satisfied. If Gov. Hicks's letter were answered at all, in simplicity innocence should have been met by a simple statement of his duty to the Federal Government as Executive of one of the States, and a demand that he should state categorically whether he would do it or take the consequences of a refusal. There should have been no word of assurance, nor statement, nor suggestion even, as to the use of the troops now rushing to the Federal Metropolis, beyond a bare reference to the President's Proclamation by which they were called out, and which Gov. Hicks has as yet done nothing toward obeying.

Men in power at Washington in the loyal States look to you for words of cheer—words replete with the dignity of conscious justice and strength—in this our Country's hour of deadly peril. Better had you never been born than that they should thus look in vain!

DR. SABO was committed by U. S. Commissioner Betts on a charge of treason or misprision of treason, he having been conspiring with intent to enlist sailors for the navy of the South. The information against him was given by a printer, who, by order of the accused, had printed a form of enlistment similar to those used in the United States service. It is claimed that the prisoner intended to delude his recruits into the belief that they were to be engaged for service in the United States Navy of the South.

EXPELLED Union men from Richmond report that the secessionists are fearfully "down" on New York. It had been confidently expected that thousands of volunteers and millions of money would be cast by New York in favor of revolution and anarchy. They say they built up New York themselves, and consider it a very ungrateful thing for it to turn round against them. They intended to make fearful retaliation for the ingratitude.

THE officers of the Sixth precint, New York, continued the search for the southern uniforms ordered by Newbrick & Co., No. 4, Dey street, and succeeded in finding about 40 coats and 12 pairs of pants, which were taken charge of by the Superintendent. The uniforms are all of grey cloth, with brass buttons bearing the flag of the Confederate States on them.

SENATOR WIGFALL aid to Beauregard, has sent his mother and children to Boston, and they are now residing near that city, to remain during the southern rebellion. Traitors have no confidence in their own cause.
