Hostetter's Celebrated Stomach Bitters

READ [illegible] E. S. SOUTHWORTH'S LETTER.
PROSPECT COLLEGE, Washington Co., Pa.,
April 5, 1865.

MESSRS. HOSTETTER & SMITH—Gentlemen: It gives me pleasure to add my testimonial to those of others in favor of your excellent preparation. Several years of residence on the banks of a Southern river, and of close application to literary work, had so thoroughly exhausted my nervous system, and undermined my health, that I had become a martyr to dyspepsia and nervous headache, recurring at short intervals, and defying all known remedies in the Materia Medica. I have come to the conclusion that nothing but a total change of residence and pursuits would restore my health, when a friend recommended Hostetter's Bitters. I procured a bottle as an experiment, it required but one bottle to convince me that I had found at last the right combination of remedies. The relief it afforded me has been complete. It is now some years since I first tried Hostetter's Bitters, and it is but just to say that I have found the preparation all that it claims to be. It is a Standard Family Cordial with us, and even as a stimulant we like it better than anything else.

We use it in all nervous, bilious, and dyspeptic cases, from fever down to toothache. If what I have now said will lead any dyspeptic or nervous invalid to a sure remedy, I shall have done some good.

I remain, gentlemen, respectfully yours,

E. D. E. N. SOUTHWORTH.

The Case Stated—Laughing Gas.

Every profession has its fossils, and scientific fossils are the most invulnerable of the species. The outlaw variations and ridiculous dogmatisms of such bodies as several successive congresses, statistical corps, boards of trade, medical and mechanical institutes, with their threadbare scientific commonplaces, and generalizations; monotonies of treatment, and queer mosaic of cloudy allusions, have become matters of derision with advanced, progressive truth-seekers. Such bodies [illegible] to be useful because they are never willing to move along with the newest learning—the latest scientific revelations. A conclave of bishops could not accept Columbus' theories of a new world because it was contrary to the accepted interpretation of the scriptures. Nor were their opinions changed even after the discovery.

We present a local application of these truths. Dr. C. Sill, No. 246 Penn street, for many years a skilful and successful dentist of Pittsburgh, was the first of his profession to apply laughing gas here. A large practice demonstrated its safety and usefulness. It was a duty to humanity to publish, proclaim the virtues of this discovery. Several eagles be kept under a bushel. But the Pittsburgh Dental Association, of which Dr. Sill has been a President, considered him for alleged improper mode of conduct in administering the gas, the only motive, however, being jealousy of his very large practice, and a "retiring" member of the Association, one J. S. King, arose and said that he has heard of false accidents at the east from the use of the gas, and insinuates that a young lady was made ill as a application at an office on Penn street, although he took very good care not to name it. In Sill's office, as he knew that not a single accident of any kind had ever occurred in Dr. Sill's practice. King affects to abhor the gas bag and inhaling tube as not clean enough for his immaculate mouth. Hundreds of clean, respectable and intelligent people don't object; they are satisfied with Dr. S.'s precautions in the matter. The more widely the virtues of the gas are known the more general does its use become. In Sill's practice increases daily, hundreds of members of the Association are [illegible] to the discovery of a much better, more painless and [illegible] practice.

The Civil Rights Bill.

NEW YORK, March 23.—The Post's special says: The President is still considering the Civil Rights bill. It is understood that he has asked counsel of distinguished jurists in regard to its constitutionality. If returned to the Senate with a veto, the objections will relate to the second section of the bill, on the ground that it declares penalties against State Judges. The President has asserted that he approves of the general principles of the bill.

The Loan Bill.

NEW YORK, March 23.—The Commercial's special says: The Committee on Ways and Means have determined to report a loan bill with amendments, restricting the reduction of circulation to $20,000,000 during the first six months, and $40,000,000 a month afterward.
