

Senator Riddle, of Delaware, declared on Friday last that within ten days or more would be issued in all the States for an election of members of Congress, and that within thirty or sixty days these members would be elected and in the afternoon of their arrival they would be sworn in, under the proclamation, the declaration of the oath and their admission into Congress as loyal Representatives of bona fide States in the Union, of course, in their choice of men to become Representatives from the Southern States, care would be had not merely to select those who can or will take the oath, but equally that all of them shall support the Southern cause.

THE NATIONAL JOHNSON CLUB

It has been a split already in the National Johnson Club. Johnson party. Johnson does not like the form of the "National Johnson Club" at Washington by Mr. Johnson. Johnson has held a meeting, and Johnson was addressed by himself and Governor Johnson of this city, which took ground in favor of admitting to Congress those Southern men who can take the oath and who have been in the Union since the outbreak of the rebellion. Johnson is in favor of repealing the oath altogether, and wants to cut Johnson from the cabinet, while Johnson and his friends want to keep Johnson in the cabinet.
