THE PRESIDENT VETOED.

On Friday last the Senate performed an act that will be memorable and conspicuous to the end of time in the annals of even this most remarkable epoch of our nations' history. It passed the Civil Rights Bill over the veto of the President. Many considerations conspire to make the transaction illustrious.

The President, after a season of artful dissimulation, made up his mind openly to betray the high trust reposed in him by the Republican party. He threw principles and policy the consistent and manly defense of which would have constituted his crown of glory with posterity, took upon himself the grave responsibility of attempting to turn back the tide of mighty events which has swept over the nation, carrying with it institutions incongruous to the best civilization of the age, and resolved to rescue the unrepentant rebel leaders in places of authority, where they would not only be judges upon their own traitorous conduct, but have the power to inflict humiliations and forfeitures on the men through whose sacrifices, wisdom and valor the Union was saved.

These are strong terms, but we speak upon full reflection. It is impossible to adopt the suggestion that the President, upon fuller investigation, and under altered circumstances, has discovered good reasons for changing his course. He makes no such pretensions. On the contrary, with a hardihood that would be deemed impossible if it was not demonstrated in the blight of all men, he insists he has not changed; that he is too old to subject his ideas or plans to review, and that they have changed and become disunionists and traitors whose sense of duty and self respect prevent them from following him.

Nor is this all. Upon the Freedmen's Bureau Bill and the Civil Rights Bill—the measures on which, so far, his antagonism to Congress is more palpable and extreme than on any others—he has been guilty of a duplicity that would be utterly disgraceful to an individual in the management of private concerns, and which is all the more reprehensible in a personage filling the highest office in a great nation. Leading members of both Houses of Congress consulted freely with him as to the principles and details of those bills, with a view to securing his co-operation. Offers were distinctly made to modify the bills so as to meet any objections or scruples he might entertain. He felt himself satisfied with the bills as they were; gave assurances that he would approve them; allowed them to pass both Houses under the impression that he was content; and then came out with objections of so broad a character as to render any measures impossible for the ends contemplated. It is manifest he sought a quarrel with Congress, even at the expense of personal dishonor, and for ulterior purposes which are not yet fully disclosed to the apprehension of many loyal citizens.

Congress has now asserted in a constitutional and proper manner its authority as the law making power of the nation. The blandishments and threatenings of the President have been alike impotent and ineffectual. Never did representative assemblages deport themselves in nobler manner. They have vindicated the theory and practice of liberty regulated by law. The loyal people of the country are in full sympathy with their proceedings, and whatever hazards may befall them, they may confidently rely on full and sufficient support. This is not their quarrel with the President but the quarrel of the people indignant at the treachery of are the contemplated victims dent has aroused a feeling of resistance to his aggressions which he cannot subdue, and has inspired a distrust of his sincerity and uprightness which he cannot eradicate. He has lost a rare opportunity, and incurred a reproach which many waters cannot wash out.

THE POWER OF APPOINTMENT.

The commissions of most of the men appointed to office by President LINCOLN have expired. They are holding over by sufferance, and may either be reappointed or superceded. The Senate is now in the fifth month of its session, and the bulk of nominations to office are purposely withheld. Hints are thrown out and intimations given that the incumbents must either adopt the ideas of the President and become facile instruments in his hands or else give way to individuals who will.

By the plain terms of the Constitution the appointing power is in the hands of the President, conditioned upon "the advice and consent of the Senate." The words clearly imply that the President shall take the advice of the Senate before making nominations, and that his nominations shall fall if the Senate shall refuse its assent. In other words, the power of appointing to office is equally divided between the President and Senate.

The delay of the President; his omission to seek "the advice and consent of the Senate," taken in conjunction with other indications, point to the conclusion that he means to act as if the public patronage was absolutely confided to his discretion. If he shall take this course he will find the Senate squarely across his path, and may find it much easier to displace the incumbents than to get in such successors as would suit his wishes.

CONNECTICUT.

General HAWLEY has polled the tallest vote ever polled in that State for Governor. The Republican vote for several years past for Governor has been as follows:

1858	36,036	1863	41,082
1859	40,329	1864	39,623
1860	43,015	1865	42,574
1862	39,782	1865	44,508

President LINCOLN polled only 44,692 votes, in 1864, in the heaviest vote ever polled in the State, and Gen. HAWLEY has within a fraction of that vote. The fact that he has polled the full Republican vote of the State shows that there was no defection from our ranks. His majority is less than that of Mr. LINCOLN because the Copperheads, in their anxiety to defeat him, colonized voters from New York by the hundreds in New Haven, Hartford, and other cities. The Copperhead gain is all in the large towns, and was accomplished through fraud only.

In 1860, the Democrats made a similar dead set to carry Connecticut. Governor BUCKINGHAM, in that year, had but 581 majority. But that effort exhausted them for six years, as this last one will probably also do.

THE RAILROAD QUESTION.

The Legislature is about to adjourn, and as it has done all the harm it can, and registered all the edicts of the master, the Pennsylvania Railroad, the only regret the public can feel in the matter is that it did not adjourn long ago.

In the early part of the session we thought there was some hope it might do better than its predecessors, and in that hope we urged the passage of a general railroad law, that the State might be emancipated from the thraldom of a gigantic railroad monopoly, but it soon became apparent that all such hopes were vain, and we gave up the contest. Some others, with a credulity perfectly childlike, have been hammering away at the Legislature ever since, expecting to make an impression upon it; but we fancy they have by this time learned that it was as useless as pouring water on a duck's back.

Every effort to obtain any legislation not liked by the Pennsylvania Road has been voted down, and every bill to promote the interests of that road and its connections, has been passed. That is the history of the whole session.

It is plain that if the people want a General Railroad Law, they must make it an issue in the nomination of candidates for the Legislature. They must not only resolve that they want such a law, but they must exact pledges from their candidates, as some security against possible betrayal. The best pledge they can have, however, is in the character of those they nominate for that place. Let them see to it that men of unquestionable ability and integrity are nominated—men whom they can trust from first to last, without the shadow of a suspicion. When such men are sent to the Legislature, bills will be considered and acted on, upon their merits, and not before.

NOT TO BE BUILT.—It may be regarded as settled that the projected new trunk railroad through Pennsylvania has received its quietus for at least a considerable period. The Atlantic and Great Western Company and the Pennsylvania Railroad Company have come to terms with each other. The Great Western Company have leased the Philadelphia and Erie Road, and stipulate to lay a third rail for a narrow track from a point eleven miles west of Corry to Cincinnati, and eventually on to the farthest point to be reached by that line. Until this third rail shall be laid goods will be trans-shipped at Corry. These stipulations have been forwarded to England for approval by the Capitalists there interested in the Great Western. This gives them a new route to Philadelphia by the Catawissa and the Reading roads, and by the Lehigh Valley and New Jersey Central to New York.

THE Raleigh Standard (Gov. HOLDEN'S paper,) says that the President's Policy in North Carolina is a complete failure—that, ultra-secessionists now fill every office in the State, from the highest to the lowest, and that the secession leaders are determined that the Union men shall never be permitted to govern the State. It adds:

"The cause of restoration has been defeated—the State has been set back to the point it was in when the work was commenced, and no one can foresee when the work will be completed. The generosity of the President has been trifled with, and the good he desired to do this people has been neutralized by these leaders, who have been actuated solely by the love of money and office. How long will it be before they are rebuked, as they should be, and made to know their places."

THE Chicago Republican, in giving the list of officers of the "National Johnson Club," says:

"The great fault of this list of officers is that it contains but three members of the Confederate Congress. This is altogether too small a proportion. However, such secessionists as Bon Bradbury, Willard Saulsbury, Augustus Cæsar Dodge, and James Hughes, make up pretty well for this deficiency."

THE Cincinnati Enquirer pronounces what Miss Dickinson says of President LINCOLN "an inflated eulogium upon the weakest, cnunningest and poorest spirited statesman that ever won an unmerited apotheosis." The Enquirer, however, thinks JOHNSON the pink of perfection.

THE Providence Journal, referring to the Rhode Island election, says:

"Rhode Island thus heartily responds to the call of New Hampshire and Connecticut, proudly crowns her gallant Burnside with civic honors, and records her vote in favor of constitutional liberty and universal freedom."

GOV. CURTIN did not preside over the Harrisburg meeting, as stated by us on Saturday. He was appointed to preside, and a committee waited on him to secure his attendance, but he did not find it convenient to be present.

Culver, Penn & Co.

MEADVILLE, PA., April 3.—At a meeting of the principal creditors of Culver, Penn & Co., held to-day, resolutions were passed unanimously expressing entire confidence in the ability and integrity of the firm, and recommending that the assignment be cancelled and an extension granted of six, twelve, eighteen and twenty-four months.

A committee appointed to report on the best policy to be pursued, submitted the following report: That we have full confidence in the integrity and financial ability of Culver, Penn & Co., and are satisfied that they can realize from their assets more than any assignees possibly can. We therefore recommend that all the creditors of Culver, Penn & Co. enter into a legal agreement for their release from their assignment, and stipulate therein that the debts of the said firm shall be paid in equal instalments in six, twelve, eighteen and twenty-four months.

GEN. HAWLEY, the newly elected Governor of Connecticut, was Captain at the Bull Run defeat, and was the hero of the following paragraph in the London Times correspondence describing that rout:

"I have, in these years, many times recalled that incident, and wished to know who he was who could so 'possess his soul' in all that fearful rout, could have and inspire his men with so serene a courage. Many times these words have rung in my ears, 'Steady, men, steady;' words spoken in darkness, there amid the chaos of a lost battlefield; but words of light to me, still in the heat and conflict of the great life battle."

It was opposition to such a man, and support of a party who hailed all these disasters as their triumphs, that Mr. Johnson declared to the Government office holders of Connecticut to be the support of him and his policy.—Cincinnati Gazette.

AN association has been formed in Cuba to aid in the complete extinction of the slave trade. The members pledge themselves to abstain from all acts that might extend the traffic, and to use every effort in their power to stop it. They began their exertions on October 26th, 1865, and are said to be meeting with success. The association would meet with a great deal of success if it could induce the Captain General of the Island and a few of the royal favorites at Madrid to become faithful members. The slave trade of Cuba would soon die out if its official encouragement were once withdrawn.—Phil. Ledger.

"A PRESIDENT who has taken his stand simply on the Constitution of his country, is in the way of the traitors and disunionists, and they announce that he must be removed."—Post Pilot.

A President who had taken his stand simply on the Constitution of his country was in the way of the traitors and disunionists, and they announced that he must be removed, and did remove him.—Detroit Trib.

GENERAL NEWS.

A NASHVILLE letter-writer tells of a poor boy who walked seventy five miles from his home in Hancock county, Tennessee, to Knoxville with his old mother, to get something that might keep them from starving. When they arrived they had no means of procuring food, and the boy was so exhausted that he fell prostrate upon the pavement. He served as a Union soldier in a Tennessee regiment. Part of his business in Knoxville was to provide clothing for money still due to him for services as a soldier.

THE New York Tribune indignantly denies the statement of the Democratic papers that a large sum of money $100,000 for instance, of which the Loyal League Club gave $2,500, was raised in New York city to help carry Connecticut. There were not $5,000 in all raised in that city, not $2,000 in the Loyal League Club. The Tribune believes five times as much was raised on the other side as on ours, and more money spent on that side than by the Republicans.

THE Common Council of our city yesterday laid on the table, by a vote of 21 to 8, a resolution endorsing the Peace Proclamation of the President, and the State Legislature, on Wednesday, refused to consider a similar proposition. Only a meagre minority, composed mainly of sympathizers with the rebellion is willing to applaud the declaration of a false prophet, who cries "peace, peace, when there is no peace!"—Phil. Press.

THE Hon. Charles James Faulkner, formerly a Lieutentant Colonel on Stonewall Jackson's staff, after the death of the latter, temporarily with Jubal Early, and subsequently an applicant for a staff position under General Ewell, has been admitted to practice in the Circuit Court of Berkeley, West Virginia, first having taken the oath that "he has not, since the 20th of June, 1863, voluntarily borne arms against the United States."

THE President has undoubtedly forgotten the fact that Attorney General Bates, with some of his conspicuous supporters, and a fierce denouncer of the Radicals, several years ago gave an elaborate opinion maintaining the view that colored freemen are citizens of the United States. He seems to think it a recent radical invention.—Boston Transcript.

THE New Albany Ledger says that a disease something like hog cholera, is proving very fatal to the hogs in that city. They are dying in large numbers, and the Street Commissioner informs us that the morning before we went to press more than one hundred dying deacons in radius of two squares.

SEVERAL wealthy and prominent colored citizens of Boston, who have been refused admission to the Boston Theatre after purchasing tickets, are going to bring the matter before the courts and see what their legal rights in such cases are.

THE London Times suggests to Stephens, the Penn murderer, to keep a diary, wherever he may be in his wanderings, him that the details of the manner in which he eludes the detectives will one day be an interesting and profitable publication.

A DASTARDLY villain named Jones eloped from Columbus, Ohio, the other day, with a young girl, leaving a wife and several children behind. The injured wife followed the renegade as far as Cincinnati, but returned broken hearted.

THE New York Evening Post says that a business man in Wilmington, whose safe has been blown open three times by burglars, bore patiently the last one, leaving the key in the door. He is tired of paying for repairs.

THE tax of Pete. Scudder must now be divided equally between Mr. Wade and Mr. Sumner, both of whom elected the Senator in succession, and now count sixteen years of continuous service.

THE New York Democratic Advocate says that it can hardly take up the Democratic paper without finding Cowan described as a "pack of knaves," and as "rebels against the constituted authority."

IT is now stated that at the close of his address sustaining the first veto, Henry Ward Beecher got into a row with a number of his congregation who had just read the Freedmen's Bureau bill.

THE Staffordshire pig and manufacturers have contracted the prices of labor and earnenware at the rate of about 15 per cent. owing to the enhanced value of labor and provisions.

IN Berwickshire, England, there is a little parish called Legerwood, containing a population of 1,000 inhabitants, among whom there has not been a birth for fifteen months.

A CORRESPONDENT in Havana writes that if he wanted to describe the Island of Cuba in a single line he should call it, "The land of the flea and the home of the slave."

SAM HOUSTON'S judgement of Jefferson Davis was expressed in the following theologico-zoological characterization: "He is as ambitious as Lucifer, and cold as a lizard."

TWO more suspected rebel privateers were recently taken in custody from their beds at Milan, Mo., and hung. Subsequent events proved them to be innocent.

THE utter failure of the President to give success to the English interest in Connecticut is another salutary warning to the Free Traders.

The Providence Journal says "the impression is gaining ground that one of the surest and safest ways to get rich is to rob a bank."

REED BIGLER, a son of ex-Governor Bigler, of Pennsylvania, died on the 2d inst. He was an eminent civil engineer.

SEVEN young Japanese have been sent to Russia to learn the language and study military and naval science.
