THE BENIAN FIASCO. Col. O'MAHONY has seen fit to explain in a published letter a part, at least, of the mystery of the Campo Bello enterprise. According to his statement, fear and jeal ousy were at the bottom of the ill-conceiv ed and wretchedly managed undertaking O'MAHONY had his project, which he claims was the conquest of Ireland from British domination. SWEENY had a differ ent scheme, which was the invasion and subjugation, of Canada. O'MAHONY thought, if he remained inactive, his retainers would break away from him and go over to Sweeny. This pricked him onto a premature and reckless expedition. To complete his discomfiture, which was sure Further, that such soldiers should assem to overtake him soon enough, the New York World, after he started, detailed accurately the whole plan of operations, thus putting both the Government of this country and that of Great Britain on his track. Whether this disclosure was the result of treachery among his followers, and was Meadville the result of keen reportorial enterprises following delicate hints with intuitive riday last certainty, it is not worth while to specu While O'MAHONY and his retinue are mourning over their failure, SwEENY and his set are jubilant. Next to taking Canada, nothing could have given them more unalloyed satisfaction than the embarra ment and confusion of their rivals. Just at this point HEAD CENTRE ST PHENS made his appearance in New York having adroitly succeeded in cluding th vigilance of the keepers of a British jail. and making good his escape. He is represented, by nost unanim us consent, as man of ordinary intellectual capacities; even destitute of that demonstrative will which frequently passes for talent, and is in many exigencies of active affairs, better than the highest mental gifts. It is a marvel what effects followed his appearance O'MAHONY made servile haste, upon a hint from him, to abdicate his authority and retire into obscurity. SWEENY nimbly sue for commendation. He uttered the manlate, and KILLIAN passed under a cloud of disgrace. At his nod the men who clam. few days ago. ored for the invasion of Canada, united in declaring that Canada should not be molested.
