TUESDAY, MAY 23, 1866. WE BESPEAK attention to the card in our advertising columns headed "Kramer & Rahm's Banking House." It gives us iately after the heavy losses of the Philaconnected, the friends of Kramet & Rahm came promptly to their rescue, and adneed them an amount of capital abundantly adequate to their necessities. In this satisaction we are confident this whole business community will participate.

The testimonial of the depositors, which we publish, full and complete, as to the ableness of the house, is not needed here. Of the integrity and probity of each member of the firm, no doubt or suspicion has ever been felt. Of the senior partner, Allen Kramer, Esq., we have been contemcorary for forty years, and can truly say that his life has been one of great moral excellence. To no other man can so many persons, now prosperous, ascribe their success. No one has surpassed him in the ople habit of aiding others. No philanpropist among us has been more frequent or more munificent in his benefaction We express the common sentiment of this city when we declare our deep gratification at this new arrangement in the interest all the members of the late firm.

AN ENGLISH NABOB. A late London letter contains the follow ing about Earl Grosvenor, an English nabob, and at present a prominent charac-nabob, and at present a prominent character in Parliament:

He is a very "mild" young gentleman, with just about brains enough to put up his umbrella when it rains. But what he lacks in brains he makes up in cash. He is the heir to the great estate of the Marquis of Westminster—an estate from which the annual income is one million and a half of dellars. Every day that passes over this man's father, whether he lies in bed or gets up, brings to him its regular return of over $4,000. The way the family acquired this fabulous wealth was as follows.

over $4,000. The way the family acquired this fabulous wealth was as follows:

The grandfather of the present marquis was a "poor lord," owning a quantity of low marshy land in Westminster. With the growth of London, that land, hitherto unproductive, began to assume an immense value; when a master builder, named Cubitt, who lind worked his way up from porerty, leased the land, turued it into city lots, built that magnificent portion of London known is Fimilico and Belgravia, acquired a vast fortune for himself, and loaded down the marquis with wealth. In a few years, at the expiration of Cubitt's lease, all these magnificent houses, a city of palaces, will become the property of the marquis; and the present enormous wealth of the Grosvenor family will be increased more than six-fold. Yet this, Earl Grosvenor, the heir to all this property, begrudges the poor working men, whose toil has built up such a colossal pile of opulence, the mere right of voting for those who are to make the laws of the land.

Well; his lordship is like many a South-

Well; his lordship is like many a Southern nabob, who acquired large wealth through the unpaid toil of black men, and now is unwilling they should enjoy any of the rights of citizenship.
