GEORGE Y. MCKEE, North Fayette Tp.

BRADFORD COUNTY.

Mr. HENRY W. TRACY is a gentleman of excellent social position and character, but is endowed with only a common measure of understanding and culture. His home looks out upon the Susquehanna river, at Standing Stone, a few miles below the beautiful and thriving borough of Towanda. He followed the fortunes of the Whig party until it was dissolved.

His political associates failed to discover in him the elements which constitute natural greatness, or even the lesser qualities which render a man serviceable in the performance of public functions. On the other hand, he was possessed by an ambition to circumvent nature, and become a statesman. This sharp difference of judgment induced in him an uncomfortable frame of mind. A morbid self-consciousness overmastered him. He became discontented, querulous, exacting.

At last, to appease his disquietude, he was sent to the Legislature for two years in succession. At so fell out that the Hon. THOMAS WILLIAMS occupied a seat in the House during the same two years. Agreeing in sentiment and opinion on public questions, Mr. WILLIAMS, as a vastly superior intellectual force, so attracted Mr. TRACY that he revolved around him, in an eccentric orbit, as a satellite. As a menial study the phenomenon presented was interesting; as a political appearance it was thoroughly ridiculous.

Mr. TRACY did not so understand the matter; and he became intensely desirous of figuring in the broader and more conspicuous field of Congressional life. The Republicans thought they could do better, in the person of Mr. GEORGE LANDON, and they made him their candidate. A year or more previously, that gentleman, as a member of the State Senate, had voted for the repeal of the Tonnage Tax on the Pennsylvania Railroad. Mr. TRACY raised a clamor against Mr. LANDON on account of that vote, and announced himself as an independent candidate. The Democrats joined in the clamor, and adopted Mr. TRACY, notwithstanding his avowed abolitionism. Mr. LANDON, two or three weeks before the election, withdrew, and the canvass resulted in Mr. TRACY's election. This was four years ago. In the House of Representatives he acted with the most advanced wing of the Republicans.

Two years ago Mr. TRACY was again an independent candidate, with democratic support. He was beaten out of sight by Mr. ULYSSES MERCUR, who will, doubtless, be re-elected next fall.

But Mr. TRACY's ambition has not yet entirely consumed itself. Enamored of the part he fancied he played at Washington, and of the admiration he elicited, he is anxious to re-appear on that stage, and in an entirely new character. After having acted the part of a flaming radical, he wants, if any persons retain a recollection of him, to surprise them, by acting the role of a frigid conservative.

Hence, he has espoused the President's Policy. With the aid of the democrats, on the 8th of May, he got up a meeting at the Court House in Towanda. Of course, he was quite at home in that crowd. He made a speech, the ingredients of which were a large stock of passion and a mild flavoring of common sense. A string of resolutions were adopted, endorsing the President, denouncing the action of Congress, condemning the action of both the Democratic and Republican State Conventions, and recommending the convocation of a new one, in order that the nation might not perish through lack of wisdom and patriotism. The proceedings of this meeting were appropriately sent for publication to the Bloomsburg Columbian, the organ of Senator BUCKALEW. As the meeting was designed simply as a grist for the democratic mill the right shop was selected to grind out the proceedings.

No republican need have any apprehensions concerning Bradford county. Mr. TRACY is played out, and ought, from sheer self-respect, to subside. But he won't. There was a time that "when the brains were out, a man would die." As so much discretion is no longer practiced, he must be allowed to act his farce.

In the 25th ward of Philadelphia, on last Monday night, a meeting of the admirers of President JOHNSON was called to organize a National Union Club. To their great surprise, the friends of "My Policy" were decisively voted down. To add to their discomfiture resolutions of this sort were adopted:

Resolved, That the conduct of certain smoke-faced Republicans, who would sell their birthright for a mess of pottage, to obtain a share of the public plunder, and to oust men of known Republican principles, is against our idea of right and wrong.

Resolved, That the conduct of Edgar Cowan, the Cataline of Pennsylvania, in voting with the secession, Democracy, so-called, meets with our most hearty condemnation.

Resolved, That the course pursued by the national Union members in Congress in guarding against the admission of delegates from the rebellious States meets with our hearty approbation, and that we approve of the noble stand taken by them to reconstruct the Union on correct principles.

On the 27th of June the venerable AMOS KENDALL leaves this country for a pleasure tour of a year in Europe. Thirty-two years ago, as Postmaster-General of ANDREW JACKSON's Cabinet, Mr. KENDALL permitted Southern Postmasters to rifle the mails and burn the anti-Slavery matter contained therein. In 1865 the same AMOS KENDALL gave $34,000 to found the most anti-Slavery Baptist Church in Washington.

MR. CLINTON, there is no longer any probability of the withdrawal of this gentleman from the position he holds as the Democratic candidate. It is much more probable that he will soon receive the open support of the supporters of "My Policy" among the Republicans.

THE New York Times well says:

"If the people of the South knew the damage done them by the rabid newspapers which they support, as we know it here, they would very quickly compel them to change their tone. In a political point of view these papers are in a large measure responsible for the treatment the Southern States are receiving at the hands of Congress. But they also prevent the South from obtaining those means of development which she so greatly needs. They prevent the flow of capital required in her cotton fields, in her manufactories and workshops, by her merchants and traders, by her railroads and steamboat lines, for her public improvements and the service of the State. They hinder Northern travel and intercourse, and prevent the flow of labor and emigration."

This is a virtual confession that Congress, and those who sustain Congress, are actuated by a wise caution. Nothing can be plainer than that the tone of the Southern journals, excites uneasiness, if not alarm, in every thoughtful man. But the Times seems to assume that the Southern journals do not truly represent the views and feelings which prevail among the masses of the Southern people. We see no evidence that this assumption is warranted by the facts; but much evidence to the contrary. Nay; we see that the censurable tone of the Southern press has increased in intensity just in proportion as the President has pressed his peculiar Policy; and to the hopes so inspired that it might be successful. If the President would show a determination to concert with Congress the needful measures of restoration, the notes of defiance and threatening which now float from the South on every breeze, would speedily be heard no more.

THE Chambersburg Repository says:

"We assure the Pittsburgh Gazette, one of the most faithful and able of our Pennsylvania Union journals, that we are more than 'content' to resist the pretensions of all aspirants for the United States senatorship who evince a disposition indicate that he could be corrupted, or who shall have failed in the progress of the canvass to show beyond all possibility of doubt where he stands and how he will act. It is just our platform, and these sentiments we would not exaggerate the case, but see no way, from the testimony of competent observers, to estimate the total loss at less. At the same time, this is to be said on the other hand. The Agricultural Department estimated the crop of wheat in 1863 at 191,000,000 bushels, which increased in 1864 to 12,256,000. If this be correct the ordinary crop of 1865 would be 212,000,000. A deduction of 40,000,000 would be a deficiency of 20 per cent. on what the crop would yield, or only 10,000,000 bushels less than the crop of 1860. If these estimates are correct, there will be an ample supply of wheat for the country, but a small surplus to export. We fear, however, that our estimate of the loss in the Central States is too small."

"IDEM," writing in the Armstrong Republican, says:

"Massachusetts, looking to her own aggrandisement, seldom changes an able, true and faithful representative, and consequently her Senators and Representatives have been remarkable for their power and influence over the nation. At this time it would be unwise and impolitic for this district to pursue a different course from that of the Bay State, especially as we have a faithful, honest, true and upright representative in the person of Hon. THOMAS WILLIAMS—an orator of rare power, a statesman of superior ability, and a man worthy of the confidence of the people. Since he entered upon his official duties, during the present session, his record has been so clear, his voice so loud for freedom, his power against insurgency so marked, that it is my solemn impression he should not be changed for any other, as his place could not be easily so well filled."

The Deficiency in the Wheat Crop.

F. D. Mansfield, the statistician of Ohio, in a communication published in the Cincinnati Gazette, says of the coming wheat crop:

"Making allowance for much exaggeration, we think the wheat crop of Ohio for 1865 can not be accounted above half an average crop. Indiana is not very different in its condition. Illinois is better, but will fall much below a full crop. Kentucky, from all accounts, is about the same as Ohio. It is probable that the more Northern States are in better condition, but on the other hand, they do not produce so much. On the whole, we must look for a large falling off. In two or three States we can make a tolerable accurate estimate. Twenty-three millions of bushels may be considered the fair average product of wheat in this State. This, and we have but half the average crop, we have lost more than eleven millions of bushels, equivalent to two million two hundred and fifty barrels of flour. In this estimate the proportion of a half crop is assumed, and each one will of course judge for himself about that.

"Supposing that the falling off in Illinois and Kentucky is one third, and in Indiana one half, we have a loss in these States of 18,000,000 of bushels.

"The whole product of wheat in 1860 was 173,104,000 bushels, of which the four States above enumerated produced 63,000,000 bushels, of which the four States above enumerated produced 63,000,000 bushels. It is not too much to count the loss in these Western States at 11,000,000; and thus the Central West will have a deficiency, in one of forty millions of barrels of flour and sixty millions of dollars. We would not exaggerate the case, but see no way, from the testimony of competent observers, to estimate the total loss at less. At the same time, this is to be said on the other hand. The Agricultural Department estimated the crop of wheat in 1863 at 191,000,000 bushels, which increased in 1864 to 12,256,000. If this be correct the ordinary crop of 1865 would be 212,000,000. A deduction of 40,000,000 would be a deficiency of 20 per cent. on what the crop would yield, or only 10,000,000 bushels less than the crop of 1860. If these estimates are correct, there will be an ample supply of wheat for the country, but a small surplus to export. We fear, however, that our estimate of the loss in the Central States is too small."

A WESTERN EDITOR'S EXPERIENCE.—Never will we forget the time we met our sweet Kitty in the center of a vast wilderness of briars, in the old Buckeye State. Her eyes were as black as the berries in her basket, and as brilliant as those of the cat-bird chattering over her head; her lips were ruby red, her cheeks lily white, except a bright streak of purple from the berry juice in the corner. Heavens! did she look lovely? Our own basket was full and we voluntered our assistance to fill that carried by Kitty. Often while picking the melting fruit from some glorious cluster, her curls—Kitty had curls glossy and golden—her curls brushed our cheeks we thought very often; but it seemed somehow accidental. Somehow, too, we were always at work upon the same cluster, and Kitty's lips were very close to ours, when she rarried to speak. At last Kitty's lip pouted, Kitty's eyes flashed and she almost succeeded in coaxing into her smooth white brow one or two indignant wrinkles.

"Don't you think," said she, "that the other day when I was out here all alone, just as we are, Ned Jones, the naughty fellow, up and kissed me!" We chided the Ned and we were very ready to call the little one naughty. "He just caught me this way," and her lips almost touched ours and we felt a violent thumping in the region of our heart; but she did not fade and the peril was soon over.

We felt all over that we were on the verge of being just as naughty as Ned, for our badness stayed us. Still pouting, and we thought worse then ever, she placed both her hands on our shoulder and turning her sweet young face towards ours, said: "You are a dear good boy! you ain't going to be naughty, like Ned was!" Heavens how our heart fluttered! we seemed losing our breath and a moment after Kitty was saying:

"You are a very, very naughty boy!"

—A new and dangerous crevasse has occurred six miles below New Orleans.

—The State Tobacco Warehouse, in St. Louis, was sold at auction for $132,000.

—All the flags at Washington were at half-mast on account of General Scott's death.

—A man was arrested in St. Louis yesterday for a murder committed thirteen years ago.

—Last Sunday afternoon the treasury of Green Lake County, Wisconsin, was robbed of $80,000.

—The Executive Committee of Maryland Conservatives was in secret session yesterday, at Baltimore.

—The young ladies, bless 'em, are having their heads all coiled for the spring—like sweet little snakes.

—In the financial system credit is the principal cause of disturbance; for it is by credit that its equilibrium is most affected.

—It is believed that Napoleon's "Life of Cæsar" will extend to four volumes, as the second only goes as far as the passing of the Rubicon.

—A lad named James Bradley was run over and killed by a street car in Cincinnati. The driver was arrested on a charge of murder.

—A young lady, named Busher, living in Springfield, Illinois, was shot and killed by two boys who were carelessly handling a loaded gun.

—A young girl has died in Calumet from the effects of a rape committed upon her by a human monster named Wood. The village is at large.

—Jemmie Donnelly married a girl in Buffalo, last week, after five minutes acquaintance. He must have been a five minute patent freezer.

—Eight hundred delegates are expected to be present at the Convention of Young Men's Christian Associations, which is to meet at Albany on the 1st of June.

—In some business where swearing to returns happens so often, an oath becomes a trifling matter. The following is the Custom House oath: "Take off your hat, hold up your hands, schelpyorgodayourter!"

—There is something exquisite in our countryman's reply to the European traveller, when he asked him whether he had just come across the Alps: "Wal, now you call my attention to the fact, I guess I did pass risin' ground."

—One of the London beer brewers paid license duty last year for more than 350,000 barrels, another for more than 400,000, a third for more than 450,000, a fourth for more than 550,000, and a fifth for more than 600,000 barrels. These five brewers togeth er paid $150,000 license duty.

—In a personal altercation, at Fond du Lac, Wisconsin, between Major General C. C. S. Hamilton, late of the volunteer army, and R. A. Baker, Cashier of the Farmers' and Mechanics' Bank at that place, the former was twice shot by the latter, but his wounds are not very severe, and are not likely to prove fatal.

—A committee of one hundred influential citizens have been appointed in Cincinnati to collect funds for the erection of Mr. Pike's proposed new Opera House. The plan is that the requisite amount—$150,000 —be raised by the sale of tickets at seventy-five cents each, good for two years, and admitting the bearer to one dramatic entertainment.

—A letter from Berlin, says the Natchez Democrat, received by a gentleman in this city, states positively, that John Wilkes Booth, who killed Lincoln, is in Berlin, playing an engagement at one of the theatres of that city. It adds that he expressed much surprise that there should be so much credit attached in this country to the story of his death. All bosh.

—General Tecumseh W. Sherman, at a banquet a night or two ago, at St. Paul, Minnesota, took occasion to defend the petition to the Southern coast. He said Port Royal had been denounced as a failure, but, if it were the last word he expected to utter, he would say it was not a failure. No expedition, with the same resources, in the late war, produced one half the results.

—In a criminal court in London, the other day, William Robinson, a cripple, who could only walk by means of crutches, was convicted of stealing a watch in midday from a gentleman who was looking into a shop. In consideration of the infirmity of the prisoner had been convicted several times before, and that, although only twenty-eight years of age, he had passed seventeen and a half years in prison.
