Now, we believe in punishment. Without it, as we judge, law dwindles to advice and government disintegrates and become mpossible. Of all the offenders this country has produced, we hold Mr. DAVIS to be the most deeply criminal. If he shall be let off, a sense of shame ought to prevent the execution of another offender. Mr. GREELEY is not a believer in "arbitrary arrests," as a certain sort of capture and detention has been aptly designated. He holds it is not a safe precedent to de prive men of liberty without "due process of law." In this we concur in his judg-ment. Mr. DAVIS has been a captive for more disposed of moiths ago." He either should be tried, conderned and eccented of the intermediate where would seem to be tried.
