THE CONGRESSIONAL PLAN.

It can no longer be asked, why does not Congress present a plan for the restoration of the Union? Why does Congress stand in the way of the re-admission of the revolted States to full participation in the Government? Congress, by a majority of more than two-thirds in each House, has agreed upon a plan. This is it:

A Joint resolution proposing an amendment to the Constitution of the United States, passed by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America, in Congress assembled, two-thirds of both Houses concurring.

That the following article is proposed to the Legislatures of the several States as an amendment to the Constitution of the United States, which, when ratified by three-fourths of said Legislatures, shall be valid as part of said Constitution:

ARTICLE — Sec. 1. All persons born or naturalized in the United States, and subject to the jurisdiction thereof, are citizens of the United States and of the State wherein they may reside. No State shall make or enforce any laws which shall abridge the privileges and immunities of the citizens of the United States, nor shall any State deprive any person of life, liberty or property without due process of law, nor deny to any person within its jurisdiction the equal protection of the laws.

Sec. 2. Representatives shall be apportioned among the several States according to their respective numbers, counting the whole number of persons in each State, excluding Indians not taxed, but whenever the right to vote at any election for electors of President and Vice President of the United States, Representatives in Congress, Executive and Judicial officers, or the members of the Legislature thereof, is denied to any of the male citizens being twenty-one years of age, and citizens of the United States, or in any way abridged, except for participation in the rebellion or other crime, the basis of representation therein shall be reduced in the proportion which the number of such male citizens shall bear to the whole number of male citizens twenty-one years of age in such State.

Sec. 3. No person shall be Senator or Representative in Congress, or elector of President or Vice President, or hold any office, civil or military, within the United States, or under any State, who, having taken an oath as a member of Congress, or as an officer of the United States, or as a member of any State Legislature, or as an Executive or Judicial officer of any State, to support the Constitution of the United States, shall have engaged in insurrection or rebellion against the same, or given aid or comfort to the enemies thereof; but Congress may, by a vote of two-thirds of each house, remove such disability.

Sec. 4. The validity of the public debt of the United States, authorized by law, including debts incurred for the payment of pensions and bounties for services in suppressing insurrection or rebellion, shall not be questioned, but neither the United States nor any State shall assume or pay any debt incurred in aid of insurrection or rebellion against the United States, or any claim for loss or emancipation of any slave, but all such debts, obligations and claims shall be held illegal and void.

This proposed amendment does not go to the President for his approval, but directly to the States for their ratification or rejection. Officially, the President has nothing to do with the matter, except ultimately to make proclamation of the result, which ever way the States may decide. Yet incidentally, his influence upon the fate of the measure must be very considerable. It it was known at the South that the Executive was fully in accord with Congress, the eleven revolted States would hasten their assent. As the case stands, the hope is confidently entertained that the requisite number of States will ratify the amendment by the middle of next winter.

This Amendment does not fully meet our desires. When the rebellion collapsed we indulged the hope that the time had come when our national institutions could be so revised as to take from them not only slavery, but all those odious peculiarities which grew out of the sufferance of Human Boudage. Such an amelioration would not only have imparted additional lustre to the great struggle, but have compensated, as nearly as compensation is possible, for the terrible sacrifices the nation was called upon to endure. As soon, however, as the discussion of the subject was approached, it became manifest the people were not as fully prepared for these changes as we had hoped. A great contrariety of opinion was elicited. Directly the President threw the weight of his great authority on the wrong side. Some of the earnest friends of Reform, more accustomed to deal with principles abstractly than in practical applications, manifested a lamentable impatience and self-will, and thus some points which might have been gained were recklessly lost.

Under these circumstances we acquiesced in the proposition of Mr. STEWART, of Nevada, to grant Universal Amnesty in exchange for Impartial Liberty. The end we desired to secure was not the exemption of the rebel leaders from disabilities or punishments, but the acknowledgment of the just and equal rights of all classes of citizens. It was of vastly greater consequence, in our estimation, that the Liberty and Equality of all the People should be put on an enduring basis, than that offenders, no matter how flagrant their crimes, should be brought to justice. We hoped the President might be induced to meet the masses of the party that elected him on this middle ground. In this we were disappointed. The transformation in his ideas, feelings and purposes, was apparently complete. His aim seemed to be, not to take advantage of a providential opportunity for bringing our political fabric into harmony with Essential Truth and Justice, but to restore it as nearly as possible upon the old foundation, conserving with like care the good and the bad.

From the northern wing of the democratic party we hoped even less than from the Southern wing. We had searched it down to the very bottom, and had found no soundness in it; only perfidy and insincerity, contempt for humanity and respect for success. Making, in vague and ambiguous terms, loud professions of zeal for universal freedom and absolute equality before the laws, we found it, nevertheless, the most unscrupulous champion of caste and privilege; the most malignant hater and contemner of millions of native born inhabitants, for no better reason than because their complexion is not of the fashionable hue.

While, therefore, we confess the amendment falls short of our wishes, we cordially accept it as the best measure attainable under existing circumstances. So lenient a measure was never before offered to armed rebels against any government. Indeed, the opinion may be hazarded that only under a government by the people could so large a degree of lenity be exercised without endangering the existence of civil order. As the case stands there remains but this choice of alternatives—either to accept the congressional plan or to allow the leaders of the rebellion to resume their former places in all the Departments of the Government, and renew their old domination—in which case loyal men will be constrained to "take back seats."

WEST POINT ACADEMY.

This school was established, and is maintained by the national government, for the purpose of educating officers for the army. Such being the object, the inference is natural that care ought to be taken to select the most promising youths for pupils. The fact is far otherwise. Appointments have hitherto been made by political favoritism. No competitive examinations are enjoined or practiced. The President and members of Congress select at pleasure. Rules do, indeed, exist, providing that incompetent or inattentive students shall be dropped; but these rules are steadily evaded. At the commencement of the rebellion we made a careful examination of the Report of the Examiners of the Academy, and found that full one-half of the pupils had been recommended for dismissal, either on the ground of inferior mental capacity or of indisposition to study. Not a few had been in this catagory two or three years, but, through political influences, had been put back into the earlier classes, and allowed to remain.

Hence, the fact that a man is a West Point graduate gives no assurance that he has even the common amount of brains or has taken on a superior degree of culture; but rather the contrary. It indicates the man has had "a friend at court," and so has had good advantages.

That such a system of selection is intrinsically vicious, everybody sees. Why it has been tolerated, for so long a period, is difficult to tell. But the present Congress—thanks to radicalism—has broken the system up. The Senate and House have not only agreed to Senator ANTHONY'S amendment to the joint resolution, establishing competitive examinations in the Congressional districts, but have applied the principle to the Presidential appointments. Hereafter the President will nominate fitly candidates. All will be subjected to thorough examinations, and only the ten highest admitted as students. This does not ensure the best nominations possible, but does ensure some sort of competition. It will do for a start in the right direction.

The true system would be to allow, at least in congressional districts, free and fair competition. In such of the States as have a fully organized Common School System this is perfectly feasible. By following this plan cadets would be obtained of such a grade of natural powers as to make it pre-eminently worth while for the government to expend elaborate training on them. The fact of being a West Pointer would be a certificate of superiority. Now, brains have to stand aside for nepotism or favoritism of some sort, and the nation is deprived of more than half the advantages for which it pays its money.

GENERAL NEWS.

—Tilting hoops are going out of fashion.

—The "Sunday excitement" has reached Cincinnati.

—The Texans are subscribing a fund to defend Jeff. Davis.

—The ladies wear mohair dresses and more hair head-dresses.

—John M. Botts is to be the Fourth of July orator at Baltimore.

—$20,000 are to be expended in improving the streets of Nashville.

—Mahoney, the victim of "Military despotism," is about starting a Democratic paper in St. Louis.

—Judge Lane, formerly Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of Ohio, died at Sandusky yesterday.

—Six hundred Mormons passed through New Haven, on Friday, en route from England to Utah.

—The first recorded victim of trichina was Herod. "He was eaten of worms and gave up the ghost."

—Although labor is scarce and wages high, in every part of Ireland, the exodus to America is rapidly on the increase.

—Mr. H. K. Potter, of Grafton, Massachusetts, was crushed to death, Friday, by a large stone which he was engaged in sinking on his farm.

—Two Germans quarrelled in Cincinnati. One of them threw a pint of vitriol into the other's face, putting out an eye and frightfully burning him.

—Henry J. Batchelder, of Boston, mysteriously disappeared in Philadelphia, on the 29th ult. $1,000 reward is offered for any information concerning him.

—Nine acres of corn planted by two gentlemen in Pickaway county, Ohio, were recently devoured by rats in a single night. They both eat the grain and the blade.

—A garroter attacked a bruiser in Cincinnati one night last week, and demanded his fives. He got them—in the way of shoulder hits, and was left in a bleeding, senseless condition.

—Victor Emmanuel is building a palace in Paris. Some of the Continental correspondents are good enough to say, and perhaps green enough to believe, that he is going to abdicate immediately in favor of his son.

—The creation of Prince Albert as Duke of Edinburgh corrects the popular idea that the second son of the British sovereign must necessarily be Duke of York. The new title has never before been conferred on the son of a reigning sovereign.

—Few people not personally acquainted with the coal mining county of Schuylkill, in Pennsylvania, can have any idea of the reign of terror which has for some time prevailed there in consequence of numerous assassinations.

—Serious apprehensions begin to be entertained concerning Mr. Thaddeus Stephens, whose complaint is dropsy in the chest. Private letters speak gloomily, for while his intellect is yet unimpaired, his physical frame is rapidly breaking down.

—During a severe storm at Leavenworth, Kansas, not long since, five men were struck by lightning on the military reserve, north of the city, near the mouth of Two Mile creek. Four were instantly killed and the fifth badly scorched, but not fatally injured.

—The very latest singular case of theft occurred at Fort Wayne, Indiana, a few days ago. A man stole a canal boat loaded with goods, towed it to Toledo, from whence it was brought to Buffalo and transferred to the Erie canal. The owner of the boat is in pursuit.

—A young woman was recently arrested in Lockport, N. Y., for being disguised in men's clothing. She was twenty-one years old, and had dressed thus for some two years, because she could thereby obtain higher wages. The Justice sentenced her to the city jail for three months.

—Gus Colcher, a detective of Cincinnati, has got himself into a difficulty through killing a man whom he was trying to arrest. The inquest proved that no charges existed against the victim, which Colcher admitted, but said he had been a thief a good many years before and he was bringing him on a suspicion that had been attached to him in the past, when the man resisting, he shot him dead.
