A CHANGE. Awhile ago it was fashionable for journals as the New York Times to of the Radicals with supercilious contemp as a handfull of fanatics, barren of intelligence and destitute of influence, who were literally to be crushed into proper insignifi-cance by a majestic uprising of the many Policy. Latterly a new light has flooded the minds of these journalists. They have made the discovery that the Radicals are pointer fow in purples and design and the second to the seco neither few in number nor despicable in resources. The Times confesses that they are "alarmingly effective; and charges that they have aroused public passion to an intense and perilous height." It depicts the more terrible civil war." Some of these statements are so wild they show how of the loyal multitudes has made on the fears of our contemporary and the unserutives, to sneer at and contemn the authority of the People, as exercised through their slavishly quail and consent to any exactions that might be laid on them. The President and Secretary of State, in the speeches made by them in their Progress to Chicago, have so far presumed upon the power with which they are clothed, and paveal the true and full significance of the the power. Why did they not make the New Orleans massacre, and excite just ap prehensions that like bloody and detestaof the rebellion they were not sadder than they are now, nor more fully resolved, whatever may betide, that treason shall be made odious, and that traitors shall be pun-

This is the plain, unvarnished truth. In view of it, we want you to explain why you steadily refused, in your place in the prosecution of the war. No dodging, sir. Was it because you was on the side of the rebels, and hence opposed to the preservation of the Union, the sustainment of the Constitution, and the enforcement of the rogatory, we beg your attention to another matter. The Constitution defines the nature of treason, and the laws prescribe its punishment. The President spoke truly when he said, "treason is the highes crime known to the laws, and ought to be punished as such." The Radicals stand to-day for the preservation of the Consti tution and the enforcement of the laws and in this very case. Why don't you stand with them? Are you opposed to the enforcement of the laws? or do you want to make an exception in favor of the rebels because they are your political friends?

adopt a similar system here, that it was de-manded in vain till the Republican Party came into power, when it was at once adopted, and now any amount under twenty dollars can be sent from any Money Order office to any other Mon office in the United States, without risk to either the one that sends the money or the Government, for ten cents, and any ion of the President and his sum under fifty dollars for twenty-five

Let us now look at the Interior Department. For ten years a large majority were in favor of giving the public lands to actual settlers. The Whigs said they were in favor of it, the Free Soilers said they were in favor of it, and the Democrats said the sion thereto of "thousands and hundreds same. They had the power, but it was supof thousands of candid and well-meaning posed to be against the interest of Slavery that the "poor white trash" should be "there is imminent risk a renewed and still come independent farmers, owning their own houses, and cultivating their fields, and voting as they doubtless would, in favor of freedom in the territories, there fore the Homestead Bill was defeated every winter, till the "poor white trash" declar-ed their independence by electing one of their own number—a rail splitter, Presi dent. The Homestead Bill was passed and now thousands of poor men are settling on quarter sections of the public lands, and they and their children after them will have cause to bless the day when the Executive and Legislative powers of the Government were placed in the hands of the great Union Republican Party. Had the Homestead Bill been adopte ten years sooner, the Slavery question would have been settled without war, the United States would be out of debt, and, better still, hundreds of thousands of precious lives would have been saved.

Next in order comes the Pacific Railroad All parties were in favor of this measure upon the docility of the People, as to The Cincinnati Platform unfortunately left it out, but Buchanan, in his letter acceptance, put it in. The Democrats had reason is that it was above and beyond bie tragedies are in preparation all over the their capacity. They could make political Southern States. The People sec; they platforms which could be read to mean one hear; they reflect; they decide; and they thing at the North, and quite another are prepared to act. In the darkest days thing at the South, but how to construct a railroad to the Pacific was above their comprehension. As soon as the Republicans ame into power the work was commened, and every few weeks we read that forty les more of it had been completed, and within a few years the greatest internal imrovement ever undertaken by man, will e finished. The same might be said of the Pacific telegraph. Indeed, we look in vain for any great improvement which was made while the Democrats were in power. The people made many improvements and inventions, but the Government none. Let us now look at the Army and Navy See what improvements have been made in our ships of war. One of our iron-clad nonitors would sink all the ships we owned When Buchanan was President, he went to war with the Mormons. He sent an army of several hundred men, under command of General S. Jounson, to subdue them, and such was the imbecility of the War Department that it took one whole summer to furnish the soldiers a suitable outfit, and they started so late in the fall that they were stopped by the snows in the Rocky Mountains, and it cost forty cents per pound to transport provisions to keep them from starving, and when they finally got to Salt Lake City the Mexical folly was repeated—a civilian was sent to insult the Commanding General by nego tiating for peace without his advice of

The Assassination Conspirators. A letter from Fort Jefferson, Dry Tor tugas, says:

Beside the State prisoners, Arnold, Mudd (Dr.) Spangler and O'Loughlin, there are two hundred other prisoners sentenced here for different periods by the widely extended provost jurisdiction of the army. All these prisoners are working upon the large and stately fortification. The party of prisoners of State are each and all in the enjoyment of excellent health. Arnold is the clerk to the commanding General, who represents him as a staid and useful vounce. tugas, says:

This body met at Syracuse on Wednesday, and unanimously and enthusiastically re-nominated Reuber E. Ferrors for Governor. He is a man of great stability and integrity, and eminently fit to be trusted in such a crists as that through which the country is now passing.

The speeches delivered during the sessions of the Convention were decidedly clear and strong on all the current issues. He and O'Loughlin are at work on the fortification.

his fixed determination, so far as in him lies, to restore the rebel leaders to the control of the government, has aroused a storm of indignation from the masses of loyal men which will not be appeased, and which he cannot hope successfully to confront.

The resolutions adopted, though expressed in measured and dignified language, are in sentiment fully up to the occasion. There is no giving way under the threatened coercion of the President.

No resonable doubt whatever remains
