"The 'policy,' as it is called, of Mr. Johnson, seems not only to have corrupted the morals, but to have deranged the very intellects of its followers. They seem to forget that the success of such a scheme ar gues the corruption of the whole American nation; that the spoce may be bribed by their own treasury; that the soldier whole fought to put down rebels will now vote to give them power; and that the people will now soldier freedom will now suffer it to be the slave of an usurper."
