CITY AND SUBURBAN.

RECEPTION OF ANDREW JOHNSON
The Reception of Andrew Johnson, President of the United States, at Pittsburgh, Pa., on Monday, September 10, 1866, was a grand and memorable occasion. The city was filled with thousands of people who gathered to witness the President's arrival. The streets were lined with flags, and the air was filled with the sound of music and cheering. The President was met at the depot by a large delegation of officials and citizens, and he was then escorted to the city hall, where he was received by the Mayor and the Council. The President's visit to Pittsburgh was a great success, and it was a fitting tribute to his administration.
