We invite attention to the numerical statements embodied in a letter which we publish from a North Carolina correspondent, touching the manner in which the third section of the Constitutional Amendment will affect the Congressional apportionment in the rebel States. It will be seen that the Amendment tends to a simple and exact justice between the various inhabitants of different districts of those States, as well as between those States and the loyal ones. Under every aspect in which the Amendment is considered it commends itself to approval.

THE CASE PLAINLY STATED.

The Constitutional Amendment now before the States for ratification very properly leaves the question, as to who shall vote and who shall not vote, with the States. This is in accordance with the whole genius of our political system during all our past history. What it does propose to change is the basis of representation in the popular branch of the National Legislature. At present this is based upon population, irrespective of color, age, sex or condition. The peculiar provision contained in the Constitution as it now is, giving to the States a three-fifths representation upon their slave population, was virtually abrogated by the abolition of slavery and now all—white people, black people, freemen and freedmen—count alike.

It is proposed to change this, and make the voting population only the basis of representation, leaving it optional with the States to make that voting population as large or small as they please. Should South Carolina, for example, see proper, after having ratified the amendment, to adhere to her oligarchical forms, and debar all colored men, and all poor white men, from the privilege of the franchise, she is free to do so; but, if she does, she must be content to part with a proportional amount of her weight in the popular branch of the National Legislature. But it, on the other hand, she should elect to enfranchise all classes of her people, rich and poor, white and black, her representation will be proportionately increased. This is eminently just, equitable and democratic.

In order to see the effect of enfranchising or not enfranchising the colored population of the slave States, we have prepared the following table, showing their representation in Congress under the two systems—white suffrage and universal suffrage:

	White Suffrage.	Universal Suffrage.
Alabama	4	6
Arkansas	1	1
Delaware	1	1
Florida	1	1
Georgia	5	9
Kentucky	9	9
Louisiana	4	6
Maryland	5	5
Mississippi	2	5
Missouri	7	9
North Carolina	4	5
South Carolina	2	5
Tennessee	8	8
Texas	4	5
The Virginias	9	12
	70	95

The representation of the Northern States, especially of those in which colored men vote, is increased to the same amount that that of the Southern States is diminished.

Of course it will be the interest of those negro States to extend the suffrage to the colored portion of their population, and they will probably do it. It will, however, be more to the interest of the great manufacturing States of the North, and also of the republican party, if they shall stick to their old forms and principles. But we give them their choice and shall be content with their decision be it what it may. But they shall not have a fair representation upon a restricted suffrage.

THE RIGHT OF DISCUSSION

The Richmond (Va.) Whig of Saturday, 29th ult., after quoting an extract from the speech of J. W. RUSNICUTT, the Southern delegate, at Indianapolis, speaks as follows:

"If this man return to Richmond, ought he not to be arrested, not for his political opinions, but as an incendiary and disturber of the public peace?"

It is full time the Southern people were cured of this distemper. For thirty years they crushed out Freedom of Speech and of the Press. In time of profound peace, and on topics of general concernment, no man was allowed to speak or print otherwise than as the slaveholding aristocracy, and the political leaders assimilating therewith, consented and decreed. Northern men, going South, and only suspected of holding opinions obnoxious to that aristocracy, were commonly subjected to mob violence, and found themselves without means of redress. The rights guaranteed to them by the Constitution were defiantly trampled upon. Now, the loyal men of the nation mean that this condition of affairs shall not be renewed; that all Southern men, subject only to proper amenability to the Constitution and Laws, shall enjoy the right freely to discuss, in their places of abode, or elsewhere, all public questions, and that Northern men going South, shall be just as secure from violence, or insult, in consequence of giving expression to their feelings and ideas, as Southern men are when they come North, and exercise the same right. This is one of the meanings of the first section of the Constitutional Amendment, and of the fifth section.

The sooner the leaders of Southern opinion understand the unalterable purpose of the North on this subject, the better it will be for them and for all. When they consent, not simply in form, but in substance, to these conditions, the day of the complete restoration of the Union will dawn, and no sooner.

INDISTINCT visions of impeachment flit before the eyes of the President. It is always thus that wrongs committed disturb the imagination of transgressors.

STATE OF THINGS IN TEXAS.

The dispatch of General SHERIDAN to Gov. THROCKMORTON, of Texas, which we published on Saturday morning, reveals an alarming state of things in that State—one of utter lawlessness and anarchy, and, in fact, a renewal of the rebellion and the war. The General, after begging him to do all in his power to keep order, says to the Governor: "I will do all in my power to satisfy the ends of justice in every case, but I doubt if much justice can be done in a community which compels our officers and soldiers to remain inside of the defenses thrown around their camp."

This looks very much like a renewal of the scenes of the early part of 1861, when Major ANDERSON was shut up by surrounding traitors in the national defenses of Charleston harbor. We had a President then who, although perversely wrong, was too imbecile and cowardly to do much, either right or wrong; but the man we have now is much more dangerous, for he has shown himself to be wicked enough to rule if he cannot rule. Our hope, so far as we may place it upon human agency at all, concentrates upon Congress. Let us strengthen Congress by our votes. That is our great duty now, whatever we may be called upon to do hereafter.

WHITES AND BLACKS.

In his St. Louis speech the President said:

"Now, mark you, the colored man that served two years can get his $100 bounty, but the white man must serve three years before he can get his."

The bill passed by Congress, and to which dishonest reference is here made, was approved by the President, and has the force of law only in consequence of his signature. If he signed a bill knowing it to contain so unjust a provision as the one he declares to be contained in this bill, he committed a great wrong which, in common decency ought to close his mouth from criminations against Congress for such a act in his wrong. But the fact is, no such law was passed by Congress or approved by the President. When Mr JOHNSON made that assertion at St. Louis he was deliberately lying. This is a hard saying, but it is true one. The man who garbled Gen SHERIDAN'S dispatches, so as to make that officer appear to say what he did not say and had no intention of saying, is capable of committing any other outrage upon veracity.

THE GAZETTE puts it as a challenge that the Gild does not dare publish which broken series was renewed to-day by REUBEN MILLER, Jr., Esq., who, in continuing the subscription not only consults his own choice, but honors that of our veteran REUBEN MILLER, Sen., whose name in series in 1801. Mr MILLER, Sen., is well remembered by all the old business men of the city, was gathered to his fathers some ten years ago. We trust Mr MILLER, Jr., and his venerable father may long enjoy each other's confidence and esteem.

LETTER FROM NORTH CAROLINA.

[Correspondence of the Gazette.]

NEWBERN, N. C., Sept. 29, 1866.

There will become a result of the adoption of the Howard Amendment, which I have not noticed, and which I think not to be considered. It has been shown how the Southern representation is to be reduced. The Northern man, 100,000 in number, will be just as it does not. It's purpose is to secure equality.

But the inequality and injustice so apparent will be corrected by the Amendment operating only against the Southern States. It will affect the same degree against every other State of the late slaveholding States. To illustrate, the district of North Carolina, composed of the counties in the extreme Western part of the State has by the census of 1860 a population composed as follows:

Whites	127,901
Free Blacks	1,462
Slaves	1,462
In all	130,825

The Second District, consisting of seven counties, in the eastern half of the State, has by the same census, a population as follows:

Whites	75,000
Free Blacks	4,000
Slaves	71,000
In all	150,000

It is seen that a strong negro district, one on the eastern part there as much power as a voting population of this in the Western part. All the district's members are in favor of any district South, and any district North.

Now see how the Howard Amendment affects the adoption or rejection of the amendment. If it is rejected, a new apportionment must be made of Congressmen, to determine whether the colored population should be counted, and under which, the 3/5 ratio of representation, or the 1866 law. The latter would give to the Eastern District as much Congressmen as the Western District, when the white population of the former is but one-half of the latter. On the contrary, by the adoption, now which we see, a loss which falls entirely on the western districts. The question is whether East Tennessee shall control three-sevenths of the remainder of the power of the State in Congress.

No one needs to be reminded of the tried fidelity to the Union of the people of East Tennessee and Western North Carolina. A State carved out of that vast mountain region would have been, during the war, as true as Vermont. Free labor is loyal wherever it exists, and throughout the slave States the attachment of the white people to any institution which has been found to be in an inverse ratio to the proportion of slaves to the section. And yet these people are to have no representation in their just rights by the operation of the very unequal clause in the Constitution, which is now right to abrogate. Where are the friends of the Union who will say that for their very loyalty they shall pass an unexpected penalty, or degree of injustice and more galling. Where is the friend of the Union who will not rather demand that radical change in the constitution which will give them their just rights and equal representation on the floor of Congress.

As far as the Northern States, the security of the Union depends on the adoption of this Amendment. As regards the loyal men of the southern States, it is a matter of simple justice to those who deserve our warmest sympathy, and on whom in the hour of national peril we can always rely.

The strongest inducements continue to be held out to immigration from the North. We are tendered to Northern men settled in our midst every day accounts of magnificent openings in the State, which stands of the real old North Carolina spirit. The last was the visit of a dozen armed men to the plantation of Mr. Wallace Ames, of Massachusetts, who is raising cotton in the upper part of Craven county. They generously refrained from last Saturday night from driving off some three dozen of his mules and one horse. It is said that Captain Wheeler, formerly of the army, planting in the north-western part of Craven county, has had a similar visitation particularly not stated.

At an election of Militia officers the other day, I noticed one John Oxendine was chosen Lieutenant Colonel. This hero of blue was figured at the hanging of Union soldiers in Kingston in 1864. This last exploit carried the vault and battery committed on a coloured woman in this city, for which he was duly fined fifty dollars by the Superintendent of the Freedmen's Bureau.

Up in Elizabeth city, the other day, a soldier undertook to quell a disturbance in which a ruffianly fellow was threatening the life of a freedman amid the applause of a crowd. He succeeded in arresting the fellow, who was, however, discharged without bail. But in a way did the meddlesome "Yank" escape. He was immediately arrested for an assault and committed for trial. Judge Brooks, however, of the United States District Court, having undertaken to become his bail he was released. These things, of course, along with the occasional shooting of a negro, are too insignificant to find notice in the local papers. But they show that the work of reconstruction is going on briskly here, as well as in New Orleans and Memphis. RASH.

—A young Englishman, who has been eking out a wretched existence in this city by begging from door to door and sleeping on the City Hall steps or among the docks, was a few days since informed of the death of a titled relative in the old country by which he is left heir to nearly $50,000.

C. C. SEELY'S
CHOLERA PREVENTIVE.

FOR REGULATING THE BOWELS, destroying Acidity in the Stomach, creating healthy action of the Liver, assisting in the secretion of Healthy Bile, giving Regularity to the Bowels, and assisting the System to a Healthy state, the PREVENTIVE is unsurpassed. It has been tried in thousands of instances. And has never been known to fail where the directions were strictly followed.

At this time, when we know not at what moment the fell destroyer may be upon us, nothing should be left undone that can be done to give the system a healthy action, and it is with a view to bring about this great object, that we offer to the public the strongest bulwark against the attacks of cholera, that can be offered to an invalid public. Seely's Cholera Preventive as a remedy for Diarrhœa is magical. One dose of the Preventive serves to check the most violent person is relieved.

Seely's Cholera Preventive

Is the result of many years study and labor. To obtain a remedy for the first place to produce a specific for DIARRHŒA, CHOLERA and fellow complaints, the sufferings of hundreds have been witnessed, and it was found that the mixing explained in a great many cases, and that in cases where it was administered it was wonderful. Physicians of every school were compelled to succumb to the power of this medicine.

Having tested it in his own case, and that of his family, satisfied himself of its curative powers, he offers it to the public in full confidence that it will effect all that he claims for it.

During the summer months, when cholera and diarrhœa are more prevalent than at any other season of the year, no family should be without a supply of it.

Seely's Cholera Preventive is pleasant to the taste, simple in its nature and instantaneous in its effects.

It can be procured of respectable druggists and country merchants.
